Middle East Lecture

The third Intercolligate Day of the international affairs clubs of the area colleges was held at Vassar College, May 5, 1965. The Fleur de Lis of Marist, headed by its President, George Geiler, attended this last in a series of three meetings. The whole idea of Intercolligate Day is to provide a forum for the discussion of the major areas of international affairs.

The introductory speaker at this event was Mr. Richard Willy of Vassar College, who gave a general background on the Middle Eastern situation. His basic point was that the problem in the Middle East, as in other underdeveloped areas, is one of modernization.

These nations must modernize in order to exist in the 20th century world, according to Mr. Willy. The importance of this modernization to the United States is the fact that it will bring prosperity and stability to these nations. With a stable Middle East, Western Europe could be more secure.

The valuable oil resources, which keep the nations of Western Europe going, would be safeguarded with a strong one-party system. A party maintains control of the military. He cited the Soviet Union and China as examples of this type of control.

Mr. Willy contends that these two nations have advanced significantly in recent years because of their strong one-party systems.

Mr. Willy's second assertion was that these underdeveloped nations, particularly in the Middle East, needed a strong central government in order to organize the people on the large scale necessary for fast modernization.

He suggested that communism was not the only answer to a strong one-party system. A party with a strong emotional ideological appeal and a program of social reform could easily fill the needs of these nations, Mr. Willy contended.

In the discussion that followed this introduction, Marist College students brought out various issues ranging from the past history of the government in the area to the various aspects of the type of monolithic government, as advocated by Mr. Willy.

The Football Club fund raising drive is heading into its final spring moments. Highlights of its drive were the associate membership certificates sent to parents and friends, a $50 donation by the Marist Associates, and a $55 donation by the class of '63. President Bob Finn expects that Foughonne will back the team at the gate if the club can hurdle the financial barriers and field a team with full equipment early next fall.

Presently he's very optimistic, and has scheduled a number of games, both home and away, to prove it.

La Maison Francaise

by Ray Stewart

On the night of April 29th in Leo Lounge Bro. Joseph L. Belanger proposed a new project of interested students who came to the meeting. The purpose of "La Maison Francaise" is to promote student usage of fluent French and to foster an interest in French culture. This project might be of special interest to students wishing to attend graduate school.

Bro. Belanger received his M.A. at Middlebury College in Vermont. Middlebury is one of the best language colleges in the U.S.

The proposed set-up is to have a half of a floor in Champagnet Hall for the exclusive residence of the project. Those who accept the challenge must promise not to speak anything but French in that area. This section of the dorm will be equipped with a shortwave radio, French records, and literature.

The requirements for admission to the floor are 1) to be an upperclassman, 2) to be a fluent speaker of French or the equivalent, and 3) to have a French or the equivalent major.

The Circle wish that this project be successful and become a permanent part of Chapagata.

Literary Club

Evidence of Marist's youthful vitality can be found in the continuous emergence of new clubs and the renovation of old ones on campus. The Literary Club is a combination of the two. A literary club of sorts is in existence, but its functions have been redefined to publishing the college literary magazine, "Mosaic." However, with the aid of the enthusiastic freshman class and a core of interested upperclassmen and student-brothers, the Literary Club is planning an expanded program next year. The club intends to revitalize the "Mosaic" and held literary discussion groups approximately once a month.

There might also be opportunities for small groups of students to get together to discuss their own work.
In order to discourage repetition of offenses and to maintain fairness in the administration of penalties, the college will, in the future, give points to and from the wash rooms! Have you Earned the privileges and the responsibilities they feel we are capable of handing over to us the veterans. However, members of the Class of '69. The physical plant is not everything, now is also the time to make some changes that will entail far greater expenditure than those you mention, and which may be more effective for the student body. Neither should one permit his enemies to be used as a vehicle for harping on the threadbare topic of socials, elections and other student activities. The enthusiasm, imagination and effort that are required to keep Marist football as it is today-commercial sports—a lure that is more than a little tempting to our students to be wary of rash decisions. The administration, and their needs might be clarified concerning club sport memberships. The only way to get the student body to work together is to get the student body to work together.
Springtime is here. At Marist you could hardly tell. The soft breeze through the newly tinted trees and the warm sun on the green sweet grass has hardly touched the senses of Marist youth. The fresh life of each new day and the bany fever of midday glow forces not the sultry spirits of the Marist soul to linger on the romantic and the picturesque. The cool refreshment of an afternoon swim, the relaxing heat of the afternoon sun, the intense delight in an afternoon stroll, the fresh life of each new day... Marist men love spring with the awakening of a beautiful new spring better than most, can appreciate the beauty seems to awaken the dulled sense of Marist youth.
