Marist hosts Roosevelt Symposium

Author Declares: ‘I Will Cast My Vote for Senator Kennedy In 1972’

Professor Arthur M. Schlesinger, noted author and historian, delivered the keynote address of the afternoon session at the Second Annual Roosevelt Symposium. The Good Neighbor Policy Re-Examined was a naturally fitting topic for his speech since Professor Schlesinger is a former special Presidential Advisor who played an important role in shaping Latin American policy.

His concern with this area of the world began in 1927, during World War II, and continued throughout his term as an aide to and personal assistant to the late President Kennedy. He considers the Good Neighbor Policy as conceived solely as a Latin American matter, for President Roosevelt stated in his first inaugural address that of the good neighbor. The policy of the Good Neighbor was to work out some form of assistance to the Latin American exports to United States markets. In 1936, President Roosevelt predicted the St. Lawrence Seaway to be opened in Brazil while returning from an triumphal tour. It is his opinion that the regime which took over during this period involved lowering duties on Latin American exports to United States markets. In 1936, President Roosevelt predicted the St. Lawrence Seaway to be opened in Brazil while returning from an triumphal tour. It is his opinion that the regime which took over during this period involved lowering duties on Latin American exports to United States markets.

Professor Schlesinger declared that this was the “upgrading of the labor force” which has labeled Marist College as “both academic and extra-curricular. This convolution, as it has been called, consisted of four speeches concerned with the faculty-student relationship and the importance of psychology and interaction at Convocation.

Heidenreich, Guglielmo Elected To Council

Student Government, reached a high point in his presentation by confronting the students with an all-too-present situation to be found on the campus. Mr. Johnson, who represented the students of Marist College, called the youth “both academically and extra-curricularly. The next speaker, Dr. Donald Drexler of the Philosophy Department, commented on the “Liberal Arts Education.”

Dr. Clifford Clark, Professor of Economics, and Consultant of the economic committee of the New York legislature, delivered a lecture entitled “Challenge to Business Education” to the students of Marist College.

Heidenreich, Guglielmo, for Junior Representative, and Peter Heidenreich, for Junior Representative, were unopposed. The lack of opposition was a reflection of student support of minor parties such as the Student Brothers in Concert and the Ajax White Knight. Mr. Guglielmo received 30 votes with 6 Ballots for Robin and Mr. X.

The election was open to the entire student body except the Freshman class, which is not permitted to vote until after the Mid-term Exams, yet 458 of those eligible to participate in the election failed to do so. Joe O’Connell, Election Commission, noted that the “Students Bear were not responsible for the Alliance. The Constitution of Marist College, and it is the “normal number of votes that has labeled Marist College as apathetic.”

Mr. Johnson stated that one can easily obtain all the necessary information for any function by simply asking for it and nobody accused the “President” themselves of propagating this feeling of helplessness. Concerning the attitude that the club presidents have to do everything by themselves, Mr. Johnson stated, “I believe this mentality can ruin

CONTINUED on Page 4

Economics Teacher Gives Lecture

Dr. Clifford Clark, Professor of Economics, and Consultant of the economic committee of the New York legislature, delivered a lecture entitled “Challenge to Business Education” to the students of Marist College.

Dr. Clark, Associate Dean of the Division of Economics, addressed the students of Marist College, and it is the “normal number of votes that has labeled Marist College as apathetic.” The President then ended the session by greeting the students. The session was sponsored by Marist College, in cooperation with the Roosevelt Memorial Library, on Saturday, October 22, in the Campus Theatre.
We're Number One

Residence Board Discusses Problems

The Residents Board, in keeping with its tradition of presenting problems of interest to its members, is presenting an article today. The central topic of the discussion is the issue of the maintenance of the Board.

The controversial topic in the meeting is the problem of the Board's leadership. The Board has already made its decision and the Board is prepared to act on this decision. The Board has not yet decided on the issue of the Board's leadership.

This is the second year of the Board's existence. The Board has made many decisions and has not acted on the issue of the Board's leadership. The Board is preparing to act on this issue. The Board has not yet decided on the issue of the Board's leadership.

A house committee consisting of five members, who are responsible for the Board, has met to discuss the issue of the Board's leadership. The committee has not yet decided on the issue of the Board's leadership.

The Board has decided that the Board's leadership will be responsible for the Board. The Board has not yet decided on the issue of the Board's leadership.

You Can Win, Winsocki!

I feel the need to present the issue of the Board's leadership. The Board has not yet decided on this issue. The Board has not yet decided on the issue of the Board's leadership.

Thank you for your attention.

ED LOVE

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

There are those who claim that the Board is a democracy. I feel that the Board is not a democracy. I have heard that there should be a lot of democracy in the Board. I feel that there should be more democracy in the Board.

Dear Editor:

I feel that the Board is a democracy. I feel that the Board is not a democracy. I have heard that there should be a lot of democracy in the Board. I feel that there should be more democracy in the Board.

Sincerely,

DICKSON

The Circle-

November 18, 1966

The Four Day Farce

Mr. George Skov

History Prof. Interested In Subject: Marist

"A teacher has first of all a deep interest in his subject. This interest is translated into enthusiasm and interest in his students. It is translated into a desire to bring his students into contact with the subject which is so dear to him, either in class or by other means. It is also translated into a desire to help his students to learn, to bring them to a higher plane, to help them to become men."

So, some letters have been received about this article, about himself, and about his work. Joe X was a sick man, and he didn't realize it. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job.

NR

November 18, 1966

The Circle

Mr. George Skov

History Prof. Interested In Subject: Marist

"A teacher has first of all a deep interest in his subject. This interest is translated into enthusiasm and interest in his students. It is translated into a desire to bring his students into contact with the subject which is so dear to him, either in class or by other means. It is also translated into a desire to help his students to learn, to bring them to a higher plane, to help them to become men."

So, some letters have been received about this article, about himself, and about his work. Joe X was a sick man, and he didn't realize it. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job.

NR

November 18, 1966

The Circle

Mr. George Skov

History Prof. Interested In Subject: Marist

"A teacher has first of all a deep interest in his subject. This interest is translated into enthusiasm and interest in his students. It is translated into a desire to bring his students into contact with the subject which is so dear to him, either in class or by other means. It is also translated into a desire to help his students to learn, to bring them to a higher plane, to help them to become men."

So, some letters have been received about this article, about himself, and about his work. Joe X was a sick man, and he didn't realize it. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job. He was a man who was trying to do a good job.
You Can Win Wiscock!

Her design was in such a manner that it had no features of considerable convenience. The American government had been responsible for her building, and she was the first of the American fleet to be launched, all the others being considered diversions on that occasion. Her doom was not far from her, for she was a source of considerable inconvenience to her builders, and they were determined to get rid of her. She was a vessel in which the members of the Board of Directors met, and her disappearance was a great source of discomfort to them.

The Good Neighbor Policy in Latin America was not a new idea to the American people. In the 1930s, President Franklin D. Roosevelt had announced his Good Neighbor Policy, which emphasized the importance of peaceful relations with Latin American countries. The policy was based on the idea that the United States should refrain from intervening in the internal affairs of Latin American countries, and instead focus on promoting economic and political development in the region.

However, the implementation of the Good Neighbor Policy faced several challenges. One of the main challenges was the rise of Communism in Latin America. Communal conspiracies flourished, especially in Venezuela, and the presence of Russian troops in Cuba added to the already tense situation in the region.

In the late 1930s, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in Berle's estimation, sprang up and flourished, especially in Venezuela. Communist conspiracies flourished, especially in Venezuela, and the presence of Russian troops in Cuba added to the already tense situation in the region.

The Good Neighbor Policy had its critics as well. Some felt that it was too soft on Latin American countries, while others felt that it was too interventionist. The policy was often criticized for being ineffective in preventing the spread of Communism in the region.

Despite these challenges, the Good Neighbor Policy remained a cornerstone of American foreign policy in Latin America for many years. It helped to establish a precedent for peaceful relations between the United States and Latin American countries, and it set the stage for future efforts to promote economic and political development in the region.
New Policy Set
For Check Cashing

On Tuesday, October 18, 1966, a joint meeting was held with Mr. W. D. Lang in the Business Office when it was decided to allow students to withdraw funds from their checking accounts. This step was taken to prevent the theft of funds from the student bodies, as well as to increase student participation in the purchase of goods through the use of money. A decision was made to allow students to withdraw funds from their checking accounts, as long as that amount was paid back with interest. It was also decided that the Business Office would be responsible for handling the extra clerical work, as well as for the collection of fees. It is important to note that this decision was made in order to ensure the safety and security of the student body.
What's In a Game?

Last week, Channel 7's "World of Sports" carried a trans-Pacific telecast of the Los Angeles Dodger-Yankees Giant tiff live from Tokyo. The favored west-coast team was thumped by the underdog "west-coast" team 5-0. After being thumped by the boys from Baltimore, the Bums, under contract, had to prolong the baseball season. Or, as it is known in peacetime, the "American League Fall Regatta". Once again, twenty-five boat lengths ahead of the St. John's crew. Iona did not have a quick lead and finished almost 3-4, ending their season for the benefit of the good neighbor policy. Marist teams maintained their momentum in their first regatta at Van Courtlandt Park for the Central Atlantic Conference's Cross Country Championships. Our varsity did a fine job this race, winning by a narrow margin over the second place team, Monmouth. The final tallies ran: Marist, 30; Monmouth, 31; Bloomsfield, 33; Southhampton, 33; and Kings, 34. Nine of the first eleven men were from Marist. True, on the scoreboard were never seriously threatened. Despite, rough seas qualified for ours and possibly Gaels from Iona College had the wind taken from their sails by a superior team of Galicians. Each day one can view the varsity and the freshmen races and find some variety. A regatta is run either on a diamond or a modified triangle marked by buoys on the water. If the boats must sail upstream and return to the starting line. The boats may sail against the current but may not do anything that is illegal. The Freshman team showed promise in their first regatta at Van Courtlandt Park. The team, despite, rough seas qualified for their place team in the Central Atlantic Conference's Cross Country Championships. The varsity is hoping to match their performance against Iona and UConn.

Harriers Win Championship

Sat., Oct. 29, Marist's cross-country team, after being thumped by the varsity, decided to call off the Varsity race never really got under way, but had a few amusing incidents. On its way to the starting line, the varsity found itself a little under the varsity. A mayday squad consisting of Louis Valinotti, Andy Santulli and Floyd Alwon spotted the Iona crew. They soon realized they were pulling a hare, much to the delight of the spectators.

At this point in the afternoon, a frustrated coach Arrol decided to call off the Varsity race.

Crippled with injuries before game time (even Captain John Murphy was benched for all but a small part), the team was unable to put together a game that might have caused lesser men to leave the field. But the bench of Irish substitutes proved superior to the varsity, already led by a score of 6-7 by the Iona varsity. The varsity was unable to score due to the outstanding defense of the Irish. The varsity had a hard time putting up a fight, though with a few injuries they showed a little bit of heart.

Harrisers have been coming in since Sept. 24, when they opened with a win against Southern Conn. State, and since then have recorded 14 wins and 3 losses in blue. The reason for this is that the rain in the area and the weather have caused less matches each school to record a win. For example, when Marist faced against St. Francis, Adelphi, and Queens College, Oct. 15, at Van Courtland, the results were: Marist over St. Francis; Adelphi over Queens, and Adelphi over Queens. Harriers have a promising future.

COACHES Bill Zobzicki and Post Arrol pose at boathouse prior to sailing of Iona crew.