Bros. Foy, Cashin, Weiss Return From Marist General Chapter

By Edward Synan

Brothers Linus Foy, Edward Cashin and Gerard Weiss have returned from Rome where they had been attending the General Chapter Meetings of the Marist Brothers. Neither Foy or Cashin were immediately available for interviews, but Bro. Cashin willingly offered his comments.

Concerning the effects of the General Chapter upon the college, Bro. Cashin said that the college is involved in the "Marist Tradition," the chapters are "part of an organization dealing with the updating of the life of the brothers." He also noted that "the updating of the college" has already been implemented.

The new dress regulations of the Marist Brothers along with the increased integration of the Student Brothers into the student body were "part of this updating," he added. "It is hoped that this will help the college and the Student Brothers be a part of the life of the students."

Asking of any plans for the future, Bro. Cashin said that he was "too busy now to speculate concerning these things."

While "the building of a new and more efficient system for the Student Brothers which would give them more leadership," he mentioned the "planning for more collegiate involvement in the Marist Society and the community by the faculty and the students."

Brother Cashin also noted that "the new dormitory facilities" are consistent with the guidelines being discussed in the General Chapter. He also noted other efforts over the past few years to encourage student responsibility, but did not mention the building of new dormitories.

The college president also mentioned that "the Student Brothers" are a part of the college's "dormitory system, and the college is concerned with their education." He also noted that "the Student Brothers have been involved in the college's life, and they are being encouraged to participate more."

"Getting The Business"

Dear Sir: Being just trained climber, I was among those of the leaves, I first intended to write this letter. I like to write to the circulation department of my school, and I hope you will get a good response in your office.

I have, however, a question in mind which I believe may be of interest to you. I have been a subscriber for the past two years, and I have enjoyed the magazine very much. However, I have noticed that the circulation of the magazine has been steadily declining over the past few years. I wonder if you could provide me with some information on this matter.

Sincerely yours,

A New Lottery

If the state has been approved by the localities for the last 31 years, the lottery is already a proven success. The state of Massachusetts has been running a lottery for the past 30 years, and it has been a great source of revenue for the state. The lottery has been a great way to raise money for various causes, and it has been a great way to help the state financially.

INTERCOLLEGIATE WEEKEND

Marist Joins In Hoot, Mixer, Football And Fun

Several colleges participated in the activities throughout the weekend. One of the main events was the football game between Marist and Manhattan College, representing Marist for the evening were four members of Marist College. Ten different colleges participated in the annual football game.

In the football game, Marist won with a score of 21-14. The game was a well-executed array of songs, and the Marist faculty, nervous at first, became more confident as the game progressed.

The dance ended at 12:15, 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

Facility Covers Three Aspects of Karl Marx

By Bro. Frederick Brand

The Marist faculty, personnel, and students met to discuss the topic of Karl Marx. Three members of the faculty covered the three aspects of Karl Marx: the Utopian Socialists, the Materialist, and the Socialist. The main focus was on the discussion with a clear and comprehensive understanding of the subject.

The Marist College Theatre, directed by Bro. Benin, Oliver and JMJX Casey of Mt. St. Mary's, produced a very well handled, especially by the Marist students. The play was a triumph of interpretation and was very well received by the audience.

Open For Business

By J.O. McConnell

Looking around the campus lately and doing a little window shopping, it was rather pleasing to see the increase in business activity, particularly at the stores at the bottom of the Hill. The presence of such activity was evident in all areas of the campus, from the bookstore to the athletic facilities.

In particular, the bookstore seemed to be doing a brisk business, with students often seen perusing the shelves for textbooks and other supplies. The athletic facilities, on the other hand, seemed to be attracting a steady stream of visitors, with many students taking advantage of the facilities to stay in shape or to work on their athletic achievements.

Overall, the increase in business activity was a welcome sign of a healthy campus life, as it reflected a growing sense of community and collaboration among students and faculty.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

We're all perfect, it's just the adjective which is in doubt.

Dear Editor,

The recent news that the students of Marist College have been ranked among the best in the country has made me proud. As a student myself, I can attest to the quality of the education we receive. However, I have also noticed a trend that I believe needs to be addressed.

Many students, myself included, have been压urized into focusing solely on their academic performance, to the point where other aspects of their lives have been neglected. This pressure can lead to stress and burnout, which can negatively impact both their personal and academic lives.

I believe that it is important for us to recognize the value of a well-rounded education, which includes not only academic success, but also personal growth and development. As a student myself, I know that this is a difficult balance to strike, but it is one that we must strive for if we are to truly succeed in the modern world.

Sincerely,

More "Business"

Dear Editor,

I was intrigued by the recent article about the increase in business activity on campus. As a business major myself, I have always been interested in the role of business in society, and I was happy to see that our college is taking steps to prepare us for the real world.

However, I also believe that it is important for us to be aware of the challenges facing businesses today. With increasing globalization and technological change, businesses are faced with new and complex challenges. As a result, I think it is important for our college to provide us with the tools and skills we need to succeed in the business world.

Sincerely,

Spiked Shoe Club Formed

A new addition to the Marist extra-curriculum, has occurred recently in the form of the Spiked Shoe Club. The initial steps toward fielding a Marist Track Team were enacted last year under the able leadership of student coach, Charlie Duggan. However, since there is a great deal of work involved in support and supervision of a track team, it was deemed necessary that a club be formed which would carry on the job started by the original group.

The primary objectives of the club are to promote and assist in all track and field events held in conjunction with the Athletic Department of Marist College, to get the public interested in track and field events throughout the entire college community. The following Saturday the Vik- ing's soccer history.

The final game of the year was played at home against Pace College with a 92 yard kickoff return to score. After Bill Dourdis fumbled the Marist defense, led by Captain Ed Hogg and Tony Andrusiak, put an end to Providence's final threat.

Harrier's Efforts Realized; Track Team Chalks Up 18 Wins

On Tuesday, Oct. 17, in our home opener, we defeated Pace College 18-44 over New Paltz. Co-captains John Forbes and Howard Levine did an excellent job in bringing home a win with times of 25:03 and 25:02. The Vikings placed fourth in 26:08. Rounding out the scoring were Bob Andrews 9th place with 27:30, and Burke was sixth with 28:02. Next for the Vikings was a game against Montclair State. After a poor-first half they came alive, and as a result compiled the first winning season in the history of the track team.

By virtue of a 6-1 game unseasoned start, the soccer team closed out the year with an unseasoned finish. The Foxes, however, were more than ready for this game as they pushed Pace all over the field, enroute to a 2-1 victory. Jim Serres in the first period and Danny Verno in the second period handled the scoring for Marist. The contest was no contest — as Marist hustled right down to closing seconds.
