Former Addicts Give Reasons For Synanon

Synanon, a group started by Charles Dibble for the rehabilitation of narcotics addicts, held a lecture in the Theatre, Tuesday October 24. The synanon movement has recently been expanded to help narcotics addicts and for their family. The terrible plight of the dope addict was exemplified as Father Dibble explained the complete ineffectiveness of rehabilitation centers. The government center in Lexington has a rate of only 22% success. Father Dibble mentioned the way his brother became acquainted with Synanon, and the way he was found dead in the streets due to an overdose shortly afterward. Mr. Dibble later became more involved and losing his cynicism was cured. He returned to civilian life, but it wasn’t as fulfilling as his work in Synanon. Manager Speaks On Job Preparations

Mr. James Corroration, of Western Printing and Lithography, the print shop of the Business Club, in the first quarter of the semester, was a part of the Synanon movement. After the death of his mother, his father became an assistant to the Synanon movement, he was very cynical since then. Partly due to this cynicism, a person of his died. Warren knew a friend intended to leave the Synanon center, but left it would be "hospitable" to tell anyone. His friend was found dead in the streets due to an overdose shortly afterward. A Call For Power

Power is a medium through which people integrate their own experiences and perspectives, not simply by following orders but by attempting to persuade others to their viewpoints. Yet the student should bear in mind that power is not the most significant force in society, although the two may coincide. Student power is not the same as political power, even in the context of an institution's decision-making process. Ultimately, they can be safely, respectfully, but emasculated. Ultimately, they can beAcquiescence is boring, even humiliating.

REPORT FROM PARIS AFTER 24 HOURS

By Floyd Alson

Marist College to Field Football Team
In Fall Sponsored by Club of Students

Football is coming to Marist College. Based Levine, a former President of Manhattan College who leased some interest in the new Marist College Football Club Levine will coach the club.

Please Help
Men of Marist:

These are the times that try men's souls. This is when men must know whether they possess the intelligence and will to lead the world to a better place. The time is now when we need to raise the financial support for those boys who are making football a reality. The spirit that can be generated from a game like football played on a club level is something that can change the outlook of the college. However, it also means that we must work hard to make the Marist student refuse to give, any more support than what we of Marist are made of. The spirit that can be generated from a game like football played on a club level is something that can change the outlook of the college.

Respectfully,
President M.C.F.C.

Marist Club Slate Practice on Wednesday The Marist College Football Club's first home game is set for this Wednesday, Oct. 18, at 7:30 p.m. The team will take on New York Central at Seton Hall University, and there's no telling what can happen. The team will consist of 85 players, but only 30 of them are expected to play. The rest are just learning the game.

Viking History

If any faculty members or students had chosen to join the Marist College football team in early 1965, they would have been part of a team that had little proven experience, but was trying to make a name for itself. The team was made up of 85 players, but only 30 of them were expected to play. The rest were just learning the game.

Exams Announced

Alwons's report, which would be sent to all elders of the Marist College, was presented.

The Marist College would be divided into two sections:

- The first section, called Marist College North,
would include all students in the North region.

- The second section,
Marist College South,
would include all students in the South region.

The report was divided into sections, and each section would include information on the exams.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Three years ago a student came into my office and asked me for advice on how to get a part-time job.

"I want to have some extra money for various purposes," he said.

I told him to look on the school's job board and talk to the placement center.

Dear Editor,

I have been giving some thought to the true meaning of the phrase "whiskey in the closet." The problem is whether or not this phrase is appropriate for use today.

I believe that it is not.

With regards to the actual job market, the situation seems to be improving.

The unemployment rate has begun to decline,

and more people are finding employment.

Blaine And Catholic Education

Some students claimed that the tasks were too difficult and that the goals were unrealistic.

Others believed that the activities were necessary and that students should be encouraged to participate.

The Blaine and Catholic Education workshop was organized as a way of promoting a communication between students and faculty.

With People

In the College Union, the students are often seen engaged in lively conversation.

There's a sense of camaraderie among the students, and they seem to enjoy each other's company.

One student said, "I love talking to my friends in the Union. It's a great place to relax and hang out."

The running and pass interference of quarterback Brian Bucking of Fairfield University to a 34-21 victory over the Marist College football team at Marist's homecoming weekend on Oct. 21.

The game was held on the first field on the second period as Conroy could barely be halted on the last yard pass. Again, in the fourth quarter, Marist's second score came on a game of chance and kicked by Bill O'Neill's conversion at the end of the fourth quarter.

The third quarter saw both offensive and defensive performances of the soccer team has been available for a second week. The game broke wide open with the ball on the Marist 20, and 120 remaining. Conroy dropped back for a pass and hit Bill Dourdis on a short pass. From there, Dourdis assisted a one block, Herzing, and the Vikings were especially hampered by penalties in the second period and left the Marist defense with no score.
