LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

T.A.C.

Editors:

"When I was in high school," said a former student of Mr. George M. Smith, "my English teacher told us that we should always keep our opinions to ourselves, because they might hurt someone's feelings. But now, with the advent of social media, we are encouraged to express our opinions freely. Is this a good thing or a bad thing?"

Sincerely,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir:

I would like to provide some feedback on the recent article about the lack of diversity in our school's faculty. While it is true that the faculty is predominantly male, I believe that this is a result of the gender ratio in the student body, rather than intentional discrimination. The school administration is making efforts to recruit more female faculty members.

Yours sincerely,

Cannabis Controversy III

By Patrick W. Casey

Most of the controversy surrounding the legalization of cannabis has been centered on the health effects of its use. However, a recent study has shown that cannabis use can actually have some positive effects on mental health.

Cannabis use can improve mood and reduce anxiety, according to the study. It has been suggested that this is due to the plant's ability to alter the brain's perception of pain and stress.

The study also found that cannabis use can improve cognitive function, particularly in areas such as memory and attention.

While some argue that the use of cannabis should be strictly regulated, others believe that it should be legalized and monitored, similar to alcohol.

In the end, the question of whether cannabis should be legalized remains a complex one, with both sides presenting strong arguments.

CYNIC ON CAMPUS:

Horizons Limited

By James M. Morrison

Speaking of politics, there's a lot of talk these days about the importance of voting. But what about those who choose not to vote? Is it really necessary to vote in order to make a difference?

In the age of social media, it seems that everyone is asking for our opinions and feedback. But what about those who don't have an opinion or feel that their voice doesn't matter?

It's important to consider the reasons why someone might choose not to vote, and whether or not it's possible to make a difference in other ways. Whether it's through volunteering, donating, or simply being a part of a community, there are still opportunities to make a positive impact.

Believe It Or Else

By Jack Breitenbach

The recent changes to the center of campus life have had a significant impact on students. Many feel that the change is positive, while others are concerned about the impact on their social life.

One concern is the increased security measures. With the new modes of transportation becoming more popular, security is a top priority. However, some feel that these measures are overly restrictive and take away from the campus experience.

Overall, the changes are still in the early stages, and it will be interesting to see how they evolve over time. It's important to remain open to new experiences and to be willing to adapt to change.
Left unchanged are the names it gives him an area of study with it tends to help avoid narrow specialization too "early in the administration agreed that it was in the very nature of the work, which he can identify himself,"poses which affect the student.

A Positive Contribution

Dear Sir:

I find fascinating the idea of a former president of the college using the name "Marist College." The name is one that I have known for many years, but very seldom do I think of it as a name of a college. It is a name that is associated with the idea of a college, but I have never thought of it as a name of a college.

I would like to suggest that we use the name "Marist College" in a more correct manner. The name should be used in a way that is associated with the idea of a college, and not in a way that is associated with the idea of a university.

Respectfully,

Robert M. McGeorge

Who's Winning In Vietnam

By James Higgins

The Vietnam War is a complex conflict that has consumed the attention of the world for over three decades. The fighting has been intense, and the stakes have been high.

The war has been fought by two main sides: the North Vietnamese and the South Vietnamese. The North Vietnamese are supported by China and the Soviet Union, while the South Vietnamese are supported by the United States and other countries.

The war has also been fought by a third side: the American government. The United States has provided military aid and personnel to the South Vietnamese government, and has also been involved in the fighting.

The war has been expensive, and has had a significant impact on the economies of the countries involved. It has also had a significant impact on the people of the countries involved, and has caused thousands of deaths and injuries.

Despite the complexity of the war, there is no clear winner. The fighting continues, and the outcome is uncertain. It is clear, however, that the war has had a significant impact on the world, and will continue to be a factor in international relations for many years to come.

Rep. Lopez Discusses Asian Conflict

Representative Lopez, who represents the district of New York, recently spoke about the conflict in Asia.

He stated that the conflict is a complex one, and that it is important to understand the different perspectives of the countries involved.

He also stated that the United States should be cautious in its involvement in the conflict, and should not be quick to send military aid.

The conflict is also a complex one from an economic perspective. It is clear that the war has had a significant impact on the economies of the countries involved, and has caused thousands of deaths and injuries.

The war is also a complex one from a political perspective. It is clear that the war has had a significant impact on the governments of the countries involved, and has caused thousands of deaths and injuries.

FOXES TOPPLE COLONIALS

The Marist Cagers defeated the Colonialist of South- tampa in what proved to be the most outstanding team effort of the season. It was played against a team which had set the Marist Cagers back quite handily earlier in the season. From the moment Bill Goren dumped in two to put the Red Foxes ahead four to three in the opening minutes of play, Marist maintained the lead throughout. The Marist offense and defense were overwhelming.

At first a challenging third quarter to the Marist Red Foxes, the Colonialist was able to break the team, winning the third quarter 11-9 to reduce the Marist lead to 41-32. But in the fourth quarter, Coach Petro's Red Foxes were joined now by Bob Petro, the Marist point man. His timely outside shooting kept the Colonialist at bay. Petro, the Marist point man, received an all-around burst by Rick, McGunnigle and Pete Masterson who were able to give the Colonialist a run for their money.

The Marist Cagers received an all-around burst by their Captain, Rick McGunnigle, also fouled out of action due to his inability to keep up with the Colonialist. The Colonialist was stopped in its tracks, winning the game 92-70. The Marist Cagers were joined now by Bob Petro, the Marist point man. Petro's Red Foxes were able to hold a truly powerful South- tampa squad.

The Marist Cagers are 9-12 and after hosting Hunter at home, will travel to New York to meet Yeshiva in the final game of the year.
