Browne Interviews U.S. Ambassador

The following is an exclusive interview with United States Ambassador Jack Vaughn. Before becoming ambassador to Colombia, Mr. Vaughn was Director of the Peace Corps under the Johnson Administration. In 1965 Ambassador Vaughn was Assistant Secretary for Inter-American Affairs. At the same time he held the position for Progress. The previous year, 1964, Mr. Vaughn was U.S. Ambassador to Panama. Jack Vaughn was first introduced to life in Latin America when in 1941 he served as a prize-fighter in an unlikely starting point for a diplomatic career. When did you consider leaving the ring in favor of a career as a prize-fighter in Latin American affairs?

VAUGHN: I realized after 28 or 30 professional prize-fights I couldn't continue, but I top, and I think when a person realizes that in the Marine Corps in World War II, I rather had my fill of fighting all kinds and have since been engaged in other more peaceful pursuits. When I came back from service I continued my gradual work, and based in the good ability I developed for in and working in Latin America as a result of my Mexican experience, I majored in Latin American studies and retained my interest in Latin America. I went to graduate school in Mexico, and was teaching Latin American history, and Spanish, at the University of Pennsylvania. And that's pretty much history, ever since. That's 20 years of non-violent steady.

CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

Hollis Appointed Leo Housemaster

Stanley Hollis has replaced Brother Patrick Gallaghcr, who resigned as Housemaster of Leo House. Brother Patrick Gallaghcr who has returned to the University of Appalachia continues as a member of the faculty and a faculty advisor.

Stanley Hollis is now charged with the dual roles of student and administrator, and joins the ranks of such activists as Bro. Fred Lambert and Bro. Joseph Belenger.

"Stan" is no stranger to Leo House for he has served there as faculty advisor for two years.

The new Housemaster is formerly a native of Boston, Massachusetts. He attended the University of Massachusetts and graduated with an Associate degree in Agriculture after farming in New England for ten years.

Faculty to Vote Soon On APC Proposals

The faculty will vote on Tuesday, February 5, on the recommendations of the Academic Policy Committee. The APC recommended unanimously the following three major proposals: (1) The granting of the B.S. in Business, (2) The elimination of the theology requirement, and (3) The establishment of a major in environmental science.

The B.S. proposal originally proposed a core which contained no language requirement. This houseowen evidently met with opposition and the proposals for retention of the language requirement recommended that the B.S. core, at least temporarily, be maintained like the B.A. core. Consequently, if the wording of the B.S. core is temporarily maintained, the core requirements will have to be established later by the APC. The other two proposals are also expected to be approved despite the resistance by the theology opponents to the environmental proposal, and to those opponents of the theology requirement being eliminated.

The faculty vote will be on a roll call, and the vote will be open to all students and faculty members.

F.P.C. Proposes Pay Raise

The Faculty Policy Committee which has functioned as a representative faculty, although theoretically there is no bargaining agent, has proposed pay raises totaling nineteen percent in salary, sixteen percent in salary, plus four percent in fringe benefits. The salary increases do not affect all the faculty in the same proportion, whether the instructor is of assistant or associate professor status, or other status in a factor. The high wage scale is made by corresponding “pitting” of tenth of the way in the country. The fringe benefits are free for educators, for instructors children, Bro.

Above is the living room of "suite" 217 Sheahan Hall.

Hollis Appointed Leo Housemaster

 informações nos arquivos de texto foram extraídas para este documento. Nada de ficcional foi adicionado.
Browne Interviews Ambassador Vaughn

Interview From 1

BROWNE: Well, as a member of the United States Department of State, I have been at least somewhat involved in Latin American affairs for some time. I am deeply aware of the importance of Latin American affairs to the United States and of the complex nature of those affairs. I have been involved in a number of diplomatic negotiations aimed at promoting hemispheric unity and cooperation. I have also been involved in efforts to improve the economy of Latin America and to promote agricultural development. I have been a strong advocate of the concept of "economically sound" foreign policy and have supported efforts to promote free trade and to encourage the development of a market economy in Latin America.

Browne: I think the criticisms that we have made as a result are not the result of a lack of support for Latin American nations. The United States has always been a strong supporter of Latin American nations and has provided substantial aid to them. However, we have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole.

Browne: I think that there are a number of reasons why we have been critical of Latin American nations. One is that we believe that the United States and Latin America have a shared interest in promoting the stability and progress of the region. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole.

Browne: I think that there are a number of reasons why we have been critical of Latin American nations. One is that we believe that the United States and Latin America have a shared interest in promoting the stability and progress of the region. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole.

Browne: I think that there are a number of reasons why we have been critical of Latin American nations. One is that we believe that the United States and Latin America have a shared interest in promoting the stability and progress of the region. We have been critical of some of the policies of Latin American nations that we believe to be detrimental to the interests of the United States and of the hemisphere as a whole.
Notes from Bogota

Dateline Lima, Peru

by Paul Brown

The government had issued a law against the students, threatening them with expulsion if they continued their protest. The law was unpopular, and opposition to it grew stronger among the students. As a result, students took to the streets in protest, chanting and marching. The authorities tried to quell the unrest, but the students were determined to continue their pursuit of the fleeing students. The government seemed to be losing control, and the students' spirits were high.

About 10 yards from where I was standing, a man was caught, and we both ended up close as we advanced in years. John's birthday was February 15th, and he was always a good American we should heed. He was a leader, and his influence was felt throughout the community.

Then things began to get even more intense. The students were calmed when tears began to flow, and the authorities were forced to retreat. They left their trucks and let the students through. The authorities had caused a lot of harm, and there were many questions about their actions. The authorities had not anticipated the students' response, and they were surprised by the intensity of the protest.

So it was, and still I-didn't know what to think. I was confused, and I didn't have the answers. Perhaps, when the authorities asked me to do something, I should have made sure I knew what I was doing. I didn't want to hurt anyone, but I didn't want to be silent either.

Through A Broken Window

by Bill O'Dell

Here it is, the calendar of future events for April 1970. The month is filled with activities, and there is something for everyone.

Newspaper Published by Students

The San Francisco Chronicle, a newspaper published by students, is a source of information for the community. The newspaper covers local news, events, and cultural happenings.

Financial Aid News

- Applications for Federal aid for the 1970-71 school year are due by May 1st.
- Financial aid for Junior College students is available.
- Grants, National Defense Loans, and scholarships are available.

Calendar Proposed

A proposal for the next calendar year includes events such as concerts, lectures, and cultural programs. The proposal is designed to attract more students and visitors to the community.

Editorial

"Who laugh last laughs best" goes the old adage, and in the case of Mr. Ronald Reagan, President of America, we know that he will laugh last. After receiving much chagrin and defeat from the previous administration, he will be the last one to laugh. The upcoming elections will be a time of celebration and joy for all Americans.

Sad State of the Union

In a country such as the U.S., which is on the brink of revolution over Vietnam, it is important to remember the values of our country. The government must work to maintain a strong and united country.
Bitsy's Bits

In Perspective

Tom Cooney

WMCR Announces New Slate Of Shows

Johnston

Spring Schedule 1970

Peas And Carrots

Joe Mcmahon

Bill Leber

In Perspective

Bill Leber, of Union City, New Jersey, has been a starting quarterback for the football team for the past three years. The team has won several games with his leadership and has been ranked as one of the top teams in the league. However, his most memorable moment was during a game against Ridgewood, where he led the team to a comeback victory in the final seconds of the game. Bill has always been known for his work ethic and dedication to the sport. Despite some injuries, he has continued to play and improve his skills, which has earned him a scholarship to a larger university. His greatest goal is to contribute to the team's success and lead them to victory.
Having the same type of early season troubles that they suffered through last year, the Red Foxes went into last night's game at least Nuysec, with a record of 5-5, and hoping to snap a two game losing string.

Last Friday night the Foxes played host to the college of New Haven. After leading for most of the first half, the home team fell apart and wound up on the bottom of the head's end of a 84-70 margin. The men in red-and-white couldn't cope with the explosive shooting of New Haven's Ron Rindard and Scott, who threw in 33 and 26 points respectively. Joe Scott (18 pts.) and Ray Charlton (14 pts.) led the way for Marist.

The previous Saturday Marist traveled to Kings Pt. Long Island where they were tripped up 52-49 after leading throughout most of the contest. Poor shooting and ball-handling proved to be the Fox's undoing as Kings Pt. moved ahead to stay in the closing minutes. Joe Manning and Charlton led with 15 pts. apiece.

The previous week, the box scores had pulled off successive victories over Western Conn. St. (199-70) and Plattsburgh St. (82-72). In the WSC game, Marist led all the way as Coach Petro substituted freely throughout. Manning led all scorers with 24 points while adding 16 rebounds. Bill Spena (32 pts., 18 reb), Charlton (11 pts., 8 assists) and Ray Carlisle (9 pts.) supplied the support. Jeff Olson topped the loops with 14 pts.

In the Plattsburgh contest the Foxes led by a 10 or 12 pt. margin for most of the contest.

However, the home club cut the lead to 5 with a minute to go before Manning struck with two big buckets to ice the victory. Spena topped the loop with 16 pts. while Tom Clark knocked up 23 for P.S.O.

---

Cagers Erratic Record Stands at 5-5

Grapplers Fall To CCNY by Bob Sullivan

Competing without the sources of Coach Jerry Patrick, the Marist wrestlers dropped a 24-16 decision to C.C.N.Y. last Saturday. The loss dropped the Kid Grapplers to 7-5, as they were looking for Marist to hold New Haven.

It was a streaky game for the Red Foxes yet when they clicked they were sensational, especially to Marist's Jim Martell and they were clicking most of the time. Plaudits should go to New Haven's Bob Zoglio and other big guns for Marist as they, unchallenged, escaped from the bottom, took game honors and they were clicking most of the time. Plaudits should go to New Haven's Bob Zoglio and other big guns for Marist as they, unchallenged, escaped from the bottom, took game honors and they were clicking most of the time. Plaudits should go to New Haven's Bob Zoglio and other big guns for Marist as they, unchallenged, escaped from the bottom, took game honors and they were clicking most of the time. Plaudits should go to New Haven's Bob Zoglio and other big guns for Marist as they, unchallenged, escaped from the bottom, took game honors and they were clicking most of the time. Plaudits should go to New Haven's Bob Zoglio and other big guns for Marist as they, unchallenged, escaped from the bottom, took game honors and they were clicking most of the time.