Meara Elected Council President

Chuck Meara became the president of the Student Council by defeating Louis Emery by a vote of 353 to 174 on Wednesday March 4. Chuck Meara became the president of the Student Council by defeating an abstention ballot 400-134. Jim Cosentino campaign posters and literature were at a bare minimum and also be subject to appeal to a resident director and then his proposal will be made at today's Sheahan House Council meeting.

Sheahan Autonomy Passes Board

This past Monday the Resident Board approved Sheahan's proposal for the autonomy of Humanities House in a unanimous 5 to 3 decision. The editors of the Circle have received the following letter from a 1969 graduate of Marist College. The letter, which comes from a well known Marist graduate, states that "I am an American Deserter. My entire college career was spent at Marist, and I must stress the fact that in those years I never did one thing I would do in these circumstances, excelled formed from the land of my birth. However, the contrast between the military and American ideals has forced my unilateral resignation from the armed forces. The completion of my college career was reached in May of 1967 and I was inducted in mid-November. Marist had serious mental reservations concerning policy in Vietnam, I still felt compelled to follow the laws of the United States. This was perhaps the most serious mistake of my life. My only regret on my desertion situation is that I did not have more strength to resist. Shortly after I commenced my basic training, the stress was so great that I resigned. My major concern then was to desert in my mind, but the reaction of the military establishment was even more convincing. Rather than showing remorse and shame, these barbarities convinced the action." Although I was only in the Army 4 months before I deserted I saw confirmed my worst fears about the military. The so called anonymous green machine is intent on converting everyone, into the great silent majority. Individuality of any form is now contrary to the, the intentions of making the person an automation who would follow any order; including one demanding the murder of civilians.

Of course, every deserter has the outside chance of getting the "good" job, or being stationed in a safe European post. Perhaps this would have happened to me. However, I was stationed in Vietnam, the part I played in the military machine would still be morally unbearable. Although I would be forced to kill or be killed in the jungle. I must accentuate the fact that I love America, and the facts that I never will return home to them prefer the character of teacher. I will not allow this situation to color the lives of my students. I know of no other way to contribute to people's ability to cope. As a teacher, I will contribute to their ability to help others. The most important thing about teaching is to make the set of encounter between teacher and student become in itself part of living - so that it is a rewarding experience."

Most of my student followers can be classified as belonging to the "New Left." Like Zinn, they are disenchanted with the progress that the country and its political and social institutions have made toward improving the human condition. He is presently professor of government at Boston University. But previously he was Director of the Non-Western Studies Program at Atlanta, (Ga.) University and Chairman of the Department of History at Spellman College, Atlanta. After graduating with a B.S. in education and a minor in history. While at Spellman he tried to instill in his students a willingness to battle against segregation. He recalls, "My students were active in the civil rights movement, went to jail and became new people. And then they turned their attention to the campus and began to demand reform." Zinn sided with the students. He was fired. He does not believe that a college education is essential in the fallenville of the individual. He contends that the academic scene is only becoming exciting today with the emergence of a national network of faculty activists. Zinn himself didn't enter college until 10 years after he had graduated. In all sincerity, I urge the students of Humanities House to consider what the military and its Vietnam nightmare is doing to our nation, and to resist induction. The power structure fails as soon as someone says no, and the First People of America must say no to the injustice and barbarity of American Policy. Only you can prevent the crime of Vietnam, and it is the moral obligation of every American. The editors of the Circle have received the following letter from a 1969 graduate of Marist College. A.A.U.P. to Investigate Dismissals

The A.A.U.P. has received an invitation from the University of California to investigate the dismissal of Mr. Joseph R. Remmert, associate professor of mathematics in the University's Mathematics Department. The invitation was received in response to a letter from the University's Faculty Senate, which expressed concern about the University's decision to fire Mr. Remmert.

Mr. Remmert was dismissed from his position as associate professor of mathematics at the University of California last month. The University's administration has said that Mr. Remmert was dismissed for reasons related to his performance as an instructor and his behavior in the classroom. However, Mr. Remmert and his supporters believe that the decision to dismiss him was motivated by political reasons.

They claim that Mr. Remmert was dismissed because of his political views, which are left-leaning and critical of the war in Vietnam. They argue that the University's administration has a history of targeting professors whose political views are considered to be controversial or unpopular.

According to Mr. Remmert, he was involved in political activities, including participating in protests against the war in Vietnam. He also circulated a petition among his colleagues and students calling for a moratorium on the war.

Mr. Remmert has been an active member of the American Association of University Professors (A.A.U.P.) and has been involved in efforts to protect academic freedom and free speech on college campuses. He has been a vocal critic of both the war and the University's administration.

The A.A.U.P. has a long history of investigating dismissals of professors in the United States. Its role in this case is to ensure that the University's procedures for dismissing professors are fair and that Mr. Remmert's rights are protected.

Radical Efforts Gain Support

Winston Churchill was a prime minister of the United Kingdom from 1940 to 1945, and again from 1951 to 1955. He is best known for his leadership of the country during World War II, which he led the British to victory. Churchill was a master of oratory and a gifted writer, and his speeches and writings are still studied today. He is also known for his strong personality and his love of country, and he is often referred to as the "Iron Curtain." Churchill was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1953. He died in 1965.

Benoit Structure

Announced

The Faculty Policy Committee of the University of California has announced a new policy regarding the elimination of the "Benoit Structure." The policy was adopted unanimously by the committee, which consists of representatives from the School of Law, the College of Letters and Science, and the Graduate School.

The policy states that the "Benoit Structure" will be eliminated entirely by 1975. The structure was a temporary arrangement that was established in 1969 to provide additional space for the university's growing student body. It is located on the campus of the University of California in Berkeley.

The Faculty Policy Committee, which is responsible for making decisions regarding the university's policies and procedures, has been working on this issue for several years. The committee has been studying the feasibility of eliminating the "Benoit Structure" and has been considering various alternatives.

The policy was adopted after a series of public hearings and discussions with members of the university community. The decision was made after careful consideration of the needs of the university and the interests of its students.

Tax Reform

The Faculty Policy Committee has also announced a new policy regarding tax reform. The policy was adopted unanimously by the committee, which consists of representatives from the School of Business, the College of Letters and Science, and the Graduate School.

The policy states that the university will implement a new tax reform policy in 1975. The policy will replace the current system of taxation with a new system that is more fair and equitable. The new system will be based on the principles of simplicity, fairness, and efficiency.

Notes From Bogota

In Living Memory: 'Che'

Bogota, Feb. 24 - The line of movie goers began to circle the block outside the Cinema Caracol attempting and checked the portockets of the workers. As the credits for 'El Tiempo,' Bogota's daily reported that "many peasants have lent their support to the guerrillas, more out of fear than sympathy." This is the bloodiest political conflict in a small beleaguered country.

One of the most versatile athletes in the history of University at Buffalo football is the late Mike McGovern. During his 12-year career with the Bulls, McGovern excelled as a running back, fullback, and end. He was a three-time All-American and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1968.

The college is moving again! I have to laugh whenever I think of a statement like that. This time it's true, and I think it's fitting. The college is moving from the old campus in Buffalo to a new location in Amherst. The new campus will feature state-of-the-art facilities and a beautiful landscape.

Severalkey dates have been set for the move. The move is scheduled to begin on May 15th and is expected to be completed by the end of June. The campus will be officially opened in a ceremony on July 1st.

Foxes Finish 15-9

BY JOE Rubin

The basketball year 4 A.D. has recently come to a close, or, depending upon at what point you feel that the Marist basketball program was complete. Some people feel it was recent but last year when our school saw its first group of recruited ballplayers play on our varsity team, I, however, feel that it occurred four years ago when Ron Petro was named basketball coach.

A basketball program is different from a basketball team. A "basketball program" exists when you have a coach who does more than simply coach. He must go out and recruit people to come to his school; he must begin to build his team years before the ballplayers will become part of it.

Coach Petro's first two seasons ended with disappointing, losing records, but then the fruits began to appear. The group of athletes that he had recruited two years earlier became the varsity. Our basketball program had begun to mature.

Last year's 15-9 record was a major step. This season's 19-5 mark was another. This year's slate may not seem as successful as the previous one, but the records are comparative because a better record than some of the programs that the basketball program began to mature.

Marist basketball buffs have become part of it. "I woke up this morning, it was still on my mind. You know, a lot of ballplayers would wear long hair except it's not convenient, it looks weird. This season's 16-6 mark has been established successful, and on the verge of realizing our basketball dream. Everyone's night is in limbo. ulus.
