There is too great an emphasis placed upon grades at Marist College. The cumulative index reduces the community. Then there is a student's attitude. A student's grade is based upon a teacher who values an A more than a B and student teacher under our present system.

Governance Committee

Closing Of Communication Gap

by ROBERT SMITH

The involvement of students, and a constructive impact from this involvement is the basis for student government. It is the function of the student government to direct the current of student interest towards the matters of most consequence.

To facilitate this, the student government funded the College Union Board and gave it the responsibility of running the social and cultural programs of the college. However, the student government to concentrate on matters that affect the overall process of the college.

The advent of curriculum reform was an important issue to the student government. In addition, however, the government failed to educate the students with the issues. The result was a lack of communication between the student government and the students.

Is Education Possible At Marist College

by JAMES DALY

Norton: Must find a more human way of dealing with this situation.

Alpert: It is more likely for an instructor to give up his status than a full professor to give up his position.

Kirk: I would like to see if the faculty would give up tenure, the response of the faculty would prove to be very interesting. I would give up tenure, I don't need it. I would, however, ask for student due process in its place. I feel it would be to my personal good.

Alpert: You would have one or two martyrs and that would be it.

Norton: I would ask the other faculty members why they would want to keep rank and tenure.

Kirk: Less than 50% of this faculty have tenure, we may just attract more innovative people to our faculty.

Norton: We are not sure if we will set up new system for tenure. There are so many alternatives, but we are not attempting any of them.

Alpert: If you have to apply for promotion after three years or else according to college rules you have to leave.

Kirk: Rank sets us apart as collegians, even if it does not satisfy the rational. You are more comfortable about the promotion than the students.

Circle: Mr. Alpert would you give up the opportunity for tenure?

Alpert: Mine is not a typical case, I have a substantial outside income and I do not have any financial security. I already have it.

Norton: The tenure loses its true meaning by connecting it with financial security.

Alpert: There are two sides to the tenure question. One view is that a tenure system cannot stop growing, but on the other hand he can, if a person has tenure, say unpopular things. Norton: The object should be to remove tenure and enforce a new tenure system.

Alpert: Due process can be wise, any person can become a victim. Why were Jane Tate and Jerry Remberry denied due process? The F.P.C. is a unanimous vote demanding searches to those two instructors. The administration ignored this proposal.

Norton: The F.P.C. should have set up a proposal before the fact.

Alpert: Those five people elected by the faculty (F.P.C.) to set rules for the faculty at Marist College. In other words, why do you want to be the leader? The decision comes from Marist College for a reprieve for these two people and the administration denied them this. If we give up

"CONT. P. 3 col 4"
Disabled In Action
by MIKE WARD
When I was the week of September 12 because of the birth of my son, I watched part of the United Cerebral Palsy Telethon. At one point, I realized that I was more interested in the people from the audience than in the performers. The performers were just trying to get the most amount of money the simplest way. We can be grateful for the noble intentions, but I must break down the basis of sympathy. On the individual basis we must break down the disabled child is feared because of the hurt they bring in the family, so people can't understand the medical problems of the disabled child. We have to understand the medical problems of the disabled child before our friendship proceeds beyond their knowledge of my existence.

Q. What is your hope?

A. That the children can be handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen或patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.

The most beautiful thing is at a convention you can be at one of the meetings and not be able to express yourself as much as you would like to people have seen or patrons have seen in the past. The children are handled as medical cases, disability equals disability; it's the same regardless of the family. If you have a healthy (read disabled) child, you can't get married. Maybe this is an extreme, but for the health of the children they can't be. And we've had our share of this sort of thing. We think of the children as normal and just enough to get through life but not to think that they are special. We think of them as normal, but not enough to think of them as special.
Two nights ago the varsity cagers traveled to North Boston, Mass., where they dropped a 74-69 decision to Stonehill College.

Stonehill led almost all the way, taking a 36-28 halftime lead and building it into a 13-point margin with 2:24 to go in the contest. At this point Bob Ulrich came off the bench to help cut the lead to two points with 2:20 remaining.

Stonehill, however, then hit several key one and one foul shots to ice the game. Bill Spennin (18 pts., 12 reb), Ray Manning (17 pts., 10 reb), and Joe Scott (13 pts., 10 reb), led the Marist attack.

Herb Jackson, 27 pts., and Mike Albonico with 22 pts., led the way for Stonehill, now 18-4, Marist stands 14-5.

The Red Foxes slipped away from Dowling in the second half Saturday night and won, 56-45 in a Central Atlantic Conference Basketball game at Our Lady of Lourdes High School.

The victory moved the North Road school into a tie for first place with Bloomfield. Both have 6-1 records.

Marist, ranked ninth in the latest poll by The State Sportswriters Association, is 14-6 overall and has won 10 of its last 11 games.

Dowling, routed by the Marathons earlier in the season, used slow-down tactics and for a while it appeared they might work.

Herb Johnson and Tony Frontino hit several big baskets for Dowling early in the game. Each basket came after a long period spent looking for the good shot or after a defenseless ball.

With 4:30 to go in the first half, the Red Foxes, frustrated by the visitors’ pass-and-move plan, trailed 18-10. It took nine straight points and then some for coach Ron McGowan to salvage a 23-23 deadlock at the half.

The teams traded buckets until midway through the second half when Brian McGowan sunk a free throw and Ray Manning added a field goal to give Marist a three-point lead it never lost.

Dowling’s shooting woes continued in the second half as the Marist defense shut down the Visitors’ attack. Dowling shot 19-48 or just better than 57 percent but with the clutch shots lacking in the second half.

Marist shot 19-48 just under 40 percent.

WHY I … from 2

Love it.

Upon reaching Ralph, the collie circled and circled barking joyously. Ralph broke into a run and Sam followed him.

They ran the distance of one jerry and then Ralph sat down in the sand breathing deeply and laughing. The sun was setting around him several times and licked his face. Ralph, basking in the sun, hooked his hand gently around the collie’s neck and then the dog settled himself beside Ralph.

They sat in the sand and looked out to sea. A ship sailed away off in the distance. Above some snow clouds were rolling in from seaward, Ralph felt the coldness seeping through his uniform.

The collie circled and circled barking endlessly up and down the shoreline. They never take a stand on anything. They just wander around aimlessly.

The cold winter day made him nauseous. He closed his eyes and thought about it, he would concentrate on something besides his orders.

As the sun began to play with his hair, he thought about Janet. He could see the both of them stretched out beneath the summer sun on the crowded beach. All around people were running and laughing and talking. The two collie football players tossed the oblong ball at the shore’s edge. Young girls in two-piece bathing suits walked caudally up and down the beach, sometimes stopping the ball playing. The water was filled with frolicking bathers as the waves tossed them or forced them to dive into the surf. Ralph could see the two of them lying beside him on the blanket in her bathing suit. The sun had turned her olive skin a golden brown.

The cold winter day made him feel long.

He could not concentrate any longer.

The pain in his leg had become almost unbearable but he could not move. Only a few yards away he heard the Viet Cong patrol moving through the jungle. They moved slowly and cautiously checking the foliage for dead and wounded. Ralph prayed that they would not find him. If they did, they would surely kill him. If they didn’t wonder if he would ever make it back anyway. He could not stop the bleeding, the pain was making him nauseous. He closed his eyes and reached out to his side as if he were on the beach and Janet was beside him. He began to cry. He wanted to know why he had to die.