Circle: What direction would you like to see the student government take next year?

Cerulli: A more involved one, a much more powerful direction. By that I mean the greatest student government seems to be geared for certain issues and doesn't know where to turn. I have certain areas of direction in mind. For example, I hope to investigate the prospect of profit sharing, which will help create a better community. Everyone speaks of cooperation, but now it is an ideal floating in the air. Community participation is good; faculty, students, and administrators should join together as equals. But we cannot just jump into the present time. The Marist student government must take the time to recognize itself and take full use of its potential. For example, under the present structure, the position of Attorney General has not been effectively utilized within the past two and a half years. There shouldn't change just for the sake of change. We can use things we have to a fuller extent.

Cerulli: What needs the student government do to grasp for certain ideas without losing the young people?

Walsh: There should be an amendment to the constitution realizing that no student government meeting is valid without the presence of at least 25% of student media present. By this I mean WCMR and the Circle, which is the most effective method of communication we now have. Flyers, bulletin boards, etc. are mandatory means of communication. The community has been neglected and, therefore, more convenient methods of communication (e.g. ground floor andDonnelly, dorms) must be arranged.

Cerulli: What would you give up your position as C.U.B. president to run for student government?

Walsh: If I made no campaign promises in my platform. Most of the promises already have been found desirable to both students and administration on the government committee of which I am now a part. Community governance can be a reality. The student government exists for the people of this community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Cerulli: There are no administrative committees?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Walsh: I made no campaign promises in my platform. Most of the promises already have been found desirable to both students and administration on the government committee of which I am now a part. Community governance can be a reality. The student government exists for the people of this community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you recommend as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Cerulli: There are no administrative committees?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.

Circle: How would you ensure that student government voices the Community?

Walsh: I'm presenting a unique theme of decentralization, the redistribution of power and involvement of the entire community. The problem of tuition increase is most important. An $800 (200 per year) increase will change even the type of student attending Marist College to four years from now. Effective changes are necessary within the present student government structure.

Cerulli: What would you do as a revised power structure?

Walsh: Not possible, it's inevitable. We are prepared for the future, and I believe that student government as it is now, is basically useless.
Future

The River

By JOE BURDIN

The River. Does it ever die? It often appears as if it did. When the wheel collapses around me sometimes, I wonder that the River might not, after all, be as eternal as the land and the people. Last spring I decided to go upriver to Poughkeepsie, and I found it was true. The Pequannock River, I discovered, was a river whose flow was forever towards its natural end. It is as if the Pequannock River were a symbol of the human spirit.

It was blue. That's what I remember most, the quivering, seemingly endless blue rippling as it flowed by me. The Pequannock River was a river whose flow was forever towards its natural end. It is as if the Pequannock River were a symbol of the human spirit.

Last week I went to visit my friend Judy Beaulieu, whose served as the reader of the Pequannock River. Judy was a college student at a local college, where she devoted much of her time to photography and the environment. Judy told me that she had visited the Pequannock River in the past, and she knew that it was a beautiful place.

Easter in Ireland

By ED FOGARTY

Final plans are being made for the annual visit of the Easter in Ireland tour. The group will consist of approximately 50 people, bringing the total to over 100. The group will depart from New York City on a chartered flight, arriving in Dublin on Tuesday, March 21st.

The group will spend the first day in Dublin, visiting landmarks such as the Guinness Storehouse and the National Museum of Ireland. On the second day, they will travel to the west coast, where they will visit Galway and the Cliffs of Moher. The third day will be spent exploring the ancient sites of County Clare, including the Rock of Cashel and the Blarney Stone.

The final day will be spent in the east, where the group will visit the Rock of Cashel and the Blarney Stone. The tour ends on Saturday, March 25th, with a farewell dinner at the GPO in Dublin.

Dr. Kahn Discusses Interpersonal Relations

By DONN ALTMAN

Francis Galton, an English biologist, made a famous statement that relates to our topic today. Dr. Kahn is a psychologist who has studied interpersonal relations for over 20 years. In his research, he has found that understanding and communicating with others is crucial for personal and professional success.

The effectiveness of interpersonal communication is not just a matter of speaking clearly, but also of listening effectively. Dr. Kahn emphasizes the importance of empathy and understanding in building strong relationships. He has developed a model of interpersonal communication that includes the following stages:

1. Attention: The speaker's message is noticed by the listener.
2. Comprehension: The listener understands the message and its implications.
3. Evaluation: The listener evaluates the message and decides whether to accept it.
4. Response: The listener responds to the message, either by accepting it, rejecting it, or needing additional information.

In conclusion, Dr. Kahn's research on interpersonal relations highlights the importance of effective communication in building strong and lasting relationships. He encourages all of us to practice these skills in our personal and professional lives.

Disabled In Action

By HERB WARD

I am not a student and I am not a teacher, but I am a member of the disabled community. This spring, I was asked to lead a group of disabled students on an expedition to a natural park. The purpose of the trip was to explore the natural beauty of the area, and to interact with other disabled individuals.

On the first day of the trip, we encountered a group of students who were not disabled. They were interested in learning about our experiences and what it means to live with a disability.

On the second day, we hiked to a viewpoint overlooking the park. We were able to see the natural beauty of the area and to appreciate the strengths of our bodies.

On the third day, we had a panel discussion about the challenges of living with a disability. We shared our experiences and our hopes for the future.

The trip was a success, and I believe that we all benefited from the experience. I hope that we can continue to learn from each other and to support each other in our efforts to live full and rewarding lives.
APARTHEID IN SOUTH AFRICA

The white student said, "The students have a lot of money, but they don't want to help us. They just want to buy their own things."

The black student replied, "We need education, not toys. We need to learn how to live in this society."

The white student muttered, "They are just a bunch of lazy bums."
I was feeling tired and I didn't stand all the way home. During the long train ride to the Island to make recipes for supper and I bought a slice of cheese for 40 cents. "All right," I said to myself, "cheese for supper and I bought a slice of cheese."

"The one who has been here before," she spoke, "Miss Devlin.

"But Bernadette will need better answers. By now, it's used to the "How" and "Why" of West Africa."

"The phrase, "woman's work," has made himself responsible, "Canards have come into the kitchen. To prepare a meal is no small task. It was interesting.

"The decline of humor is: no laughing matter, no jokes, and no punch lines."

The Chaplins, Marx Brothers and great clowns and comics today - "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."