Consciousness Convention

By Kevin Laffin

On October 26, Marist student, Rosemary Emery will attend the Women's Convention and Worshipping the City.

The three day program is sponsored by the Urban Corporation for Equality and is open to all women for a fee of one hundred thirty five dollars. It will be held at the Hotel Americana. The program will include lectures and workshops which will enable the participants to involve herself better in her own community development.

Rosemary's fee was paid by private contributions on the part of the faculty and administrative officers, as well as grants from the Departments of Psychology, and American Studies.

Rosemary is a member of the Consciousness Raising program at Marist which is an extension of Marist's "Women" history class. She feels that women have many frustrations in today's world.

This program offers a chance for many to speak to other women concerning their anxieties and joys.

While the group is now composed of a limited number of members, Rosemary hopes that the site will be enlarged next semester. "If the convention proves worthwhile, the program will approach the Student Government, with a budget proposal for next year. We feel deserving of such financial support," Rosemary states. "This program will have worthwhile effects on all the college community. For example, the group along with several faculty members will be offered an opportunity to do a seminar on education on campus."

The first major program of the group will be to enlighten students to the use and availability of effective contraceptive control methods. "Abortion is not to be practiced in a society with social access to contraceptives. However, contraception is not an end in itself. It is a temporary step in reverting the mentality that produced such a tremendous upheaval in New York State alone. Yet, the ultimate goal of sex education is to foster love and trust; a community in which the fear inherent in today's sexual revolution is alien and unnecessary."

Rosemary also states, "While today's sexual revolution is said to be based in love, it is merely an extension of society's fear and insecurity when it advocates the negation of the procreative glory of mankind."

On calling on the faculty's response to the group, she said, "Core faculty members most cooperative."

Rosemary is a junior English educational major, who has attended a history teacher at Our Lady of Lourdes High School in Poughkeepsie.

Blood Bank

By Jack C. Simeone

Next Wednesday, October 25, Marist College will sponsor a blood bank in the Fransonde Lounge from 10:30 to 3:30. When a blood bank is held on campus, it is only for processing a service to the outside community and it also benefits each individual Marist student. By donating on campus any Marist student who might be in need of blood will be covered, and students who are not in need of blood are covered. Starting Thursday night, October 26, you will be going around to sign people up for time slots. Last year, points of blood were received, this year we hope to better the mark. Anyone present will be going from door to door, getting clean and clean up at 7:00 p.m. in Rooms C-725, or Rich Beaney in room C-622.

Attention Seniors

Due to a number of complaints concerning the method of selection for Who's Who this year and in the past, a proposal has been made that the names be submitted immediately and not only for submitting names has been extended one week by the National Who's Who's Advisory Board. The recommendations will be submitted by seniors, faculty, and administrative committee. A new system will consist of: Faculty advisor to Commuter Union (1); Commuter Union President (1); Residence Director (1); Campus Center Director (1); Faculty C-75; Dietsch 249; Eunice Shriver 366; Art Buchwald 407; Pete Seeger 427; Representative to Senior Class (1); Representatives from Senior Affair's Board Part II

College Union Board

The first meeting of the ticket board will meet Thursday, October 19, between 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. in Room 271 Champions, any student or faculty member with traffic tickets who wish to bring their tickets to the board must come to the meeting. The board, which consists of five members, will decide whether the ticket must be honored or not. The meeting will be held the first and third Thursday of each month. Students who have two meetings to appear before the board if they wish to question the ticket. If violation decisions do not come to the two meetings following the time they ring the buzzer for the ticket, the ticket immediately becomes valid and must be paid.

The picture at right shows the new security system installed in the lobby of Champions Hall. After 3:00 a.m. on weekdays and 4:00 p.m. on weekends, anyone wishing to enter the building must ring the buzzer for the attention of the student on duty.

A Day at Wassaic
Outside Looking In

By Mary Beth Pfister

This photo essay begins with a walk beside the Hudson River. It will last only a day or two, but the memories will last a lifetime.

Wassaic State School for the Blind serves as home to 127 residents with various visual and physical impairments. The campus is nestled among the hills of the Hudson River Valley near Poughkeepsie. The residents attend classrooms and engage in workshops with the aim of learning various skills that will assist them upon their release.

The residents are very much an integral part of the community. They work side by side with able-bodied volunteers, all with the common goal of fostering independence and self-sufficiency.

On a visit to the school, one is struck by the beauty of the campus and the dedication of the staff. The students are engaged in various activities, from gardening to pottery making, and are consistently working hard to improve their quality of life.

In addition to the residents, the campus houses a number of employees, including teachers, counselors, and support staff.

The campus is a testament to the dedication of those who work tirelessly to improve the lives of the residents. It is a place of learning, growth, and independence.
