Health Department Inspects

SAGA Food Service

by Rich Burke

An inspection of the Marist College cafeteria in the Rathskeller by the Dutchess County Health Department resulted in a shutdown of both operations last Wednesday night. The inspection was conducted according to the standards of a new, more rigid health code to go into effect January 1. Several violations were cited concerning the cleanliness of the kitchen as well as the actual food care and preparation.

"What they found were a lot of little things," explained Saga manager Jim Ladda, "but a lot of them." County inspectors called for light covers to be installed in the kitchen to protect against the possibility of broken glass contaminating the food. The cabinet lid was noted as a potential spreader of bacteria due to the lack of rear guard and the serving table near the west wall of the cafeteria was susceptible to "sunlight" which would result in the spashing of food.

The inspectors also recommended that a smoother, easier to clean floor surface be installed in the kitchen. The evening's planned dinner of baked chicken had to be thrown out due to a fault in the cooking procedure which again might have led to a spread of bacteria. Saga employees worked most of Wednesday night and Thursday morning to correct the cleanliness violations. All structural changes must be completed by February 1.

Ladda felt that it was a very tough and strict inspection. "I was upset that we weren't given a chance to react to the inspection without being under the threat of shutting down. I think that better cooperation between county inspectors and Saga officials, was pleased with the outcome. We learned that the Department of Health can educate as well as enforce regulations. They offered to hold seminars and discussions with the kitchen staff so we can prevent this from happening again."

"It was the last and toughest inspection I've seen," Ladda said, "and it can only prove beneficial to both the staff and the consumers, in this case the students."

Council To Vote On Agreement

by Tim DeBaan

The Interhouse Council is drawing up a housing agreement for all resident students for Fall 1975. The purpose of the agreement is to give both the student and the college some legal recourse for policy dealing with on-campus housing. The council will vote Friday, December 13 on the following points to be in the agreement.

The first point states that freshmen and sophomores are required to sign a full year contract (two semesters) while juniors and seniors will be given the option to renew their contracts on a semester basis. Also included would be the possibility of a 12 month contract (including vacations) and a summer contract. Prices for the latter two are still under negotiation. The reason for the option of contracts for upperclassmen is the result of a compromise by the council. Since the majority of freshmen and sophomores live on campus, the council saw no need in giving them the semester option.

The second point states that all agreements through the office of campus life will make every effort to honor expressed preferences for room assignment. Room and dorm changes will be honored whenever possible and the student is guaranteed the room which he had "assigned" under the following conditions:

1. In the event that one of the occupants vacates a room before the last day of the first semester; the remaining occupants will have "first dibs" to the room for the remainder of the academic year.

2. The fifth point covers security. The use of pass keys is permitted by students in their personal rooms for periodic inspections of their rooms and to clean and/or make repairs. The residence staff has the right to use the pass key when a resident is not in his room.

Government Board Review

By Guy Lombardo

The Student Government Board thought it was important to give the students some information about the Student Government Board in terms of its role and responsibilities. The board is responsible for managing and organizing various student affairs, including campus events and activities. The board consists of nine members, each representing a different college or student organization, and it works closely with the administration to ensure the smooth operation of the university.

Directors Named to Program

By Tom Conroy

The new director, Joseph Molinaro, expressed his concern and spoke about his ambitions for the program. He wanted to get into it a little bit broader. As director of this program, I will be directly involved. I will want to arrange an appointment to see you again, Molinaro said, "we want to let them know our problems and what we intend to do about them. We intend to let them know of our plans and what we intend to do about them. We intend to let them know we have gained exposure on the campus, through our campus activities."

Suicide Seen As Threat To College Students

By Paul Force

The trend of suicide among college students has been a growing concern among educators and mental health professionals. It is estimated that one in four college students will attempt suicide at some point in their lives. Suicide rates among college students are significantly higher than the general population, with the highest rates occurring among those aged 18-24. College campuses are known to be hotspots for suicide attempts due to the unique challenges faced by college students, including academic pressure, social isolation, and mental health issues.

Food Service

Last Wednesday, inspectors from the Dutchess County Health Department made a routine inspection of the cafeteria, kitchen and restaurant. Because of the things they found, SAGA was allowed to serve the students the following day at noon. It is the first time in over a year that we have been able to serve the students.

We realize that SAGA has many things to think about. Plans and actions of the other students are a concern, but the health and safety of our students is of prime importance. This is why we are so pleased with the results of the inspection.

The inspection by the Health Department provides a reminder that the cafeteria is a public service that must be maintained at a high level of cleanliness and safety. It is not just a place for eating, but a place where students can feel secure.

The inspection also reinforces the importance of the health and safety regulations that are in place. These regulations are necessary to ensure that our cafeteria meets the highest standards of food safety and sanitation.

We are grateful to the Health Department for its inspection and for its continued efforts to ensure the health and safety of our students.

The inspection also serves as a reminder to all students to take care of their health and safety. It is important to us to have a clean and safe cafeteria, and we hope that all students will continue to support our efforts to maintain a healthy and safe environment for everyone.

SAGA is committed to providing a quality service and we thank the Health Department for its assistance in making sure that the cafeteria meets the highest standards of cleanliness and safety.

Counseling Experience

As pressure closes in on us, we are affected. But rather than let pressure override us and let the pressures move us, our task is to modify our perceptions of that pressure. Thus we can control our reactions to pressure.

People around us react to our perceptions of the reality of the situation, confirming for us the reality of our problem. It’s almost as though we take a first step away and our true reaction to the situation is experienced from this altered perspective. Things become realistic that wasn’t been true before. As our perceptions change, different things become real.

Confrontation with these new realities and being dealt with in a break away, immediatly helping lead to further action. Objectivity is needed in order to function within the new reality. A counselor can help.

Some will resist this new reality and the辅导员 can help lead us to being real with those realities. If we’re not able to handle it, or if we’re unable to handle it, the counselor can help us.

We have the power to change our perceptions, our reality. It’s not our reality that we need to change, but our perception of reality.

Pace Tackled By Marist; Vikings Rank Fourth

by Thomas McFerran

It might have been an undefeated season, an ECCFC title at the Schaefer Bowl, or even the national Club Football championship but, in the end, the Marist football team still went home for their Thanksgiving vacation with something to be thankful about.

Training 13 - 0 at halftime and taking a physical beating as well, the Vikings staged a dramatic "turf around with the help of three key Pace mistakes and the running of Nigel Davis and Nick Manzocci, both of who ran for 100 yards.

The way Hart was shooting in his first varsity game, Kings gave Marist little trouble in their home opener. The Foxes opened with a 27-21 lead in the first half to open up a 27-17 lead in the third annual Empire State Bowl at Leondoff Field last month. The team had shared the lead in the first minute when Dennis Carpenter pass on the field, also going over 100 yards.
