Trustees Approve 8% Price Hike

The Board of Trustees has approved a $310 increase in tuition for full-time students and a $90 increase in room and board for resident students, both effective in September.

The additional cost, which amounts to approximately 8% for tuition and 7% for room and board, was recommended to the Trustees by the President Edward Waters, who made the announcement. The trustees did not see the increased tuition as closing the projected budget gap for 1976-77. However, the Trustees feel that in light of the necessary increases in the operating budget, the increases mandated by inflation and other unavoidable priorities, the effective increase is reasonable, the Trustees feel, for the students.

The budget gap to which Vice President Waters refers is the present margin for expenditures which exceed projected income for 1975-76. The margin will be filled by tuition and room and board costs at comparable institutions, says Vice President Waters. "Figures were also available on projected increases at these schools. The final recommendation to the Trustees is comparable to those being implemented at other major universities."

"Given the Trustees’ mandate; the College Board cannot continue to pare the gap which presently exists. With the gap caused by salaries and including new revenue from student income, the balance of $48,000 has been eliminated through numerous meetings of the budget committee and the Executive Committee.

"In determining the need and extent of an increase in student costs, the College Council examined tuition and room and board costs at comparable institutions," says President Waters. "We do not want to start the year wondering if we know that our students and their families are spending only 40% of that basic economic fact of life. In view of this, the Trustees have approved an increase of $49,000 in the financial aid budget next year. The increase is necessary to those students with serious financial problems.

Senior Week Events Planned

By Gigi Birdas

A dinner dance at the Camelot Inn, Marist night at the Last Chance Saloon, clam bake, cocktail party, and a hayride and bonfire are some of the events for the 1976 senior week to be held from May 11 to May 15.

The senior week committee has tried to schedule at least one event each afternoon and evening.

Senior week will begin on May 11 with a small game followed by an evening at the Camelot Inn. The opening dance will begin at 7:30 with a cocktail hour followed by dinner and an open dance from 9:30 to 1:30 a.m.

Tickets for the dinner dance will be $15 a person. For those who wish, Royal tuxedal will be on campus to rent tuxedos.

A champagne breakfast will be held in the lower field on May 14. A cocktail party in honor of the seniors and their parents is scheduled for the evening.

Senior week will end on May 15 with a champagne breakfast and farewell exercises. The cost of the champagne breakfast will be $15 per person. The cost will be donated by the Marist Alumni Association.

To participate in all events will cost approximately $35 a person, said Dianne Day. She also added that all seniors will receive reservation cards next week in the mail.

Burglaries High

In Crime Rate

By Ernest Arico, Jr.

Figures released by the office of safety and security show that 55 crimes have been reported to date at Marist College.

Burglary is the number one crime committed on campus, followed by larceny with 13, larceny; 5; 4, trespassing; 3, last year; 2, robbery; 2 and 1 and malicious mischief, 1.

Jack Bodo, a 14 year veteran of the town of Poughkeepsie police, believes that the problem at Marist is present because of the too liberal attitude of some administrators.

"The problem with Marist College is that some of the administrators create their own problems by being too liberal minded," says Bodo.

He also believes that there is a "lack of disciplinary action" and not enough emphasis is placed on security. "It’s not fair to other students who have to put up with the actions of a minority number of students who cause all the damage," he said.

In addition, Bodo cited that many students are not aware of what has been committed. They were not aware of the information forwarded to them about a particular crime or they did not investigate properly. He also points out that Marist has developed a "personality" which is not easily identifiable.

The incident apparently went unreported because of the "social stigmata". Because when Berkery called police to check on any developments, police were unaware of the theft.

"I think security handled the situation very unprofessionally," said Berkery. "Bodo has written a letter to the CIRCLE in which he charges security with "inefficient, investigative procedures." Berkery further stated in the letter, "I have not seen any commitment for..."

Radio Stolen

By Mary Beth Pfieffer

Approximately 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning, Gene Berker, a Marist senior discovered the theft of his $100 radio and $75 radio receiver parked in Champlain parking lot.

According to Berker, the window was forced open and the radio was taken. He reported the attempted exposure. Security, Mike Delia, the chief of Police, was not notified of the theft. Berker said Delia of the information and told him he’d call the town police.

Green Plans Protest

By Candi Davis

Andre Green, president of student government is organizing a campaign to protest the tuition increase.

Green plans to speak to the faculty and students and band together to form "collective bargaining" with the administration.

The rally is being held to see what kind of support Green can get to do something about the tuition increase.

Green has started a letter writing campaign by asking students to protest the increase. He is also writing letters to the administration asking them to protest the increase.

Green was questioned about the Student Fund Drive, Green said, "the administration is asking the students to donate money when they are already paying a lot in tuition and room and board?"

Green hopes many students will participate in the rally. It will be at 5 p.m. in the theater.
Handicapped Students Dive in

by Malinda Cooper
Marist College Public Relations Director

When it comes to swimming, there's no difference between you and me, " said Ms. Boyd, who divided her time between functions and the swimming pool. "There are no handicapped students component of the special physical education program at Marist and everyone is welcome to join the fun."

Suggested by Marist senior Chris Dennen, who volunteers at the "F" and is interested in the recreational benefits that the program can offer, the new program began as a swimming class for handicapped students in a non-competitive setting. "I want to offer kids a chance to swim, to have fun, to socialize," she said.

Ms. Boyd said that although the program was new, it had been a success so far. "The kids are eager to learn, and they are not deterred by their disabilities," she said.

Funding for the program comes from grants and donations from the community, along with the support of the Marist athletic department. "We want to make sure that everyone has an opportunity to participate," said Ms. Boyd.

The program has been well-received so far, with parents and students alike expressing their satisfaction with the results. "It's been a great experience," said one parent. "I've seen my child's confidence grow."

Golfers Split Opener
By Tom McTernan

Two weeks ago an article in these pages stated that only five men came out for the Marist golf team. Since that time, however, nine more signed on.
In their first match of the spring last Friday night they took third behind New Haven and N.Y. Maritime at the Vassar Hospital course.

Led by Bill McLaughlin's 76, the Red Foxes edged Maritime by a stroke. But New Haven, which had all seven men, outscored the Red Foxes in their first match of the spring against New Haven and N.Y. Maritime at the Vassar Hospital course.

Lacrosse Needs A Win
By Tom McTernan

The trip to New York that begins today at C.C.N.Y. was once looked upon as a chance for a couple of easy wins while enjoying a nice Easter weekend in the city. But that was before the 8

Penalties and not getting the ground balls controls the action and eventually the scoring as well.
Wednesday's game was in point. In the first period, Marist had no penalties and pushed after and countered most of the loose ground balls. The result: A 2-0 Red Fox lead on goals by Don Augustine and Dave Reiger.
After that, however, a complete reversal took place. The Red Foxes were whiffled for fifteen penalties and the visitors controlled the ball and found the net in each of the last three periods. Five of the nine Kean goals came with a Marist player in the penalty box.
"We've got to stop the penalties" said coach But Nye. "We didn't shoot well and our putting game was off."" She added that McLaughlin "has beenconsulated, even in practice rounds."
Freshman Mike Curley was next for Marist with an 84, with the five scorers rounded out by Brendan Boyle (80), Tom Murray (85) and Tom Bolano (85). The other members of the team are Brian Ruste, Kevin Sommar, P.J. 146, "The Floor" and Al games.

"We need to get the guys together so they can recognize their mistakes and work on the basics," said Nye. "No way can you improve unless you can get the feel of doing it right." The team's big problems according to the coach have been a lack of practice and of organization. Practice time is limited due to costs and the fact that their usual practice site (Hudson State Hospital) hasn't opened yet for the spring.

"We need to get the guys together so they can recognize their mistakes and work on the basics," said Nye. "No way can you improve unless you can get the feel of doing it right." The team was in Bridgeport to face Sacred Heart and Fairfield. They return home (and hopefully to Beekman CC, their regular home course) to host Queen's next Tuesday.

Oarsmen Top U Mass
By Tom McTernan and Larry Streigel

In what Marist crew coach Bill Austin called his "greatest win in eight years here", the varsity heavyweights defeated Massachusetts Saturday for the first time ever. UMass was runnerup in last year's Dad Vail Regatta, considered the national championship for small schools.
And what's more, the race was held on the Connecticut River in Amherst, Mass., where UMass seldom gets beat.
They're a Division I school with a male population of over 20,000," Austin pointed out. In contrast, Marist has less than 10,000, and is in Division III.
"All the determination and hard work finally paid off," Austin continued. "If just proved that they (the team) believed in themselves and the program. It took a little extra effort in the last 500 meters but we were able to give it."
UMass jumped the start and took an early lead but Marist fought back and led by a half-length after 1000 meters. Entering the stretch UMass almost pulled even but a final sprint of 46 strokes - minute gave Marist a second victory.
The Red Foxes made one change for the race. John Carberry replaced Charles Joseph and was in seat 2 while Dave Koper was switched from two to three.
This Saturday the heavyweights will battle and Temple on the Hudson. Austin is concerned that the team may be looking ahead to its May 1 race with Trinity but points out, "Temple beat us last year before Dad Vail and if we look past them there's a good chance that we will get beat again. I just want to take them one at a time."

The freshmen were defeated by UMass by one length in an earlier race. Also on Saturday, both the varsity and freshman lightweight crews lost in Ithaca, N.Y. 3.
In a close race, the varsity eight rowing against Ithaca and Drexel, was defeated by the host school with Drexel coming in third. Marist held even with Ithaca for the first half of the race when they then began to fall behind. Ithaca increased its lead to a half-length over Marist and a full length past Drexel at the 1000-meter mark.
The home crew cruised the finish line 18 strokes behind the Red Foxes with Drexel finishing last.
In the freshman race the Marist crew, going against Ithaca's A.V. lightweight, got off to a poor start and trailed by a length for most of the race. Both lightweight crews will be going against Temple on Friday, and Labelle on Saturday.
