Leo Deli Controversy Continues

By Regina Clarkin and Daniel Drum

Approximately 100 students gathered in the opening of the Leo Dell by student owners, on Monday night, to protest the closing of the Leo Dell by the college. "The college has the right to charge said charge," said John Blue, one of the owners. According to Blue and Valerie Bellarosa, owners of the Dell, after a long controversy, they decided to close the deli because their permission had not been granted by the administration. According to Blue and Bellarosa, "If we did not get the oral consent to run the deli under the student run service to the Marist Community, we would have to leave the Health Department for a permit to operate the deli." Blue and Bellarosa want the dell to remain under their ownership so they can provide a service to the Marist College student. They would not get the place ready in time to open the deli for the fall semester because they were going to extend the hours of the deli to remain under their ownership.

Students Challenge Key Deposits

By Kevin Stack

Two students have challenged the college's right to collect the 5 dollar deposit on their room keys. The students say that the deposit is in violation of the Federal Housing Act. The two students, Melvin Cox and Stuart, arrived on campus before the deposit was due, said they refused to pay the deposit when they first heard about it, because they thought it was illegal. They went to Fred Lambert, Assistant Dean of Students, and protested the ruling. They were asked if they planned to stay on campus long, and if so they were told that they would have to pay the deposit.

The last week they received a signed statement that said, "Pay the money, change the policy, or leave the dorm by Friday the 17th." The statement came from Beth Sager. The students said they went to an attorney who told them that he could find no grounds for eviction or collection of said charge. Dean Perez who initiated this policy said, "I don't believe that what he has done is against the law I'll have to suffer the consequences." Speaking on the same subject he said that "I may be wrong but I'm going to explain the reason for his ruling by saying that the student owners want the deli open," said Bellarosa. Blue and Bellarosa asked the crowd to dispense quickly into the information, "Through our phone call, from Fred Lambert, Gregg Kilgarrif, Shesha Housenasser acted as an administrative representative by asking the student owners once more to close down the dell. Kilgarrif said the reason he was there was "to make sure things don't go out of hand and nobody gets hurt." Blue and Bellarosa Bellarosa refused to close the dell and decided to meet with Fred Lambert himself to "change the rent," continued Lambert "they never paid me a cent of rent." If the student owners did not close the mob dell door they would have to face the consequences on the direct violations of College Policy as stated in the College Handbook.

On Tuesday, Bellarosa was charged with having been fired from her job as a student assistant in the Marist College Food Service as a disciplinary action, according to Fred Lambert. Lambert wants to close the dell because "we can't jeopardize our food service license for the Leo Dell." He said, "If Bellarosa and Blue want to be owners they should run service to the Marist Community- and donate part of the money to the Leo House Council. The owners would also be expected to employ students not on work study. If the dell were run by the students, the students would not get the place ready in time to open the deli for the fall semester because the gross would go back to Leo and they would have to face the consequences on the direct violations of College Policy as stated in the College Handbook.

"I've been talking about this for four years and I've seen the反响 from the students." said, John Blue. "I've been talking about this for four weeks and I'm sick." On Tuesday morning maintenance was ordered by Lambert to change the lock on the Leo dell door. "Outside vendors have to form a janitorial arrangement with the college, for which the money is "to change the rent," continued Lambert "they never paid me a cent of rent." If the student owners did not close the mob dell door they would have to face the consequences on the direct violations of College Policy as stated in the College Handbook.

"We're not closing the dell because of Fred Lambert. He cancelled our 4 p.m. appointment on Monday. We opened to show that the students resisted the dell," said Lambert. Bellarosa said "we were forced to open the dell because of Fred Lambert. He cancelled our 4 p.m. appointment on Monday. We opened to show that the students resisted the dell."
Entrance Underway

By Edward P. DeLee

Brother Nina Demontz, president of Marist College and Marist College and Marist College can be proud to announce the new, 800-seat entrance to the future.

The problem of the old entrance was realized when students, especially students at Marist College, complained about the lack of a new entrance.

According to Brother Demontz, the entrance is an important part of the college's development. "The entrance was designed to accommodate the needs of the students and faculty," he said. "It's a place where people can come together and socialize."
To the Marist Community,

Once again our yearbook staff challenges you to support the LEO DELI. You may think of this deli as just another small business on the Marist campus that provides services to the student bodies. But it is much more than that. The deli is a student-operated and student-run organization that is important to the Marist community.

The deli provides a wide variety of food and beverage options to the student body, including breakfast, lunch, and dinner options. It is open from 7:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. daily, and provides a comfortable and welcoming atmosphere for students to gather and socialize. The deli is also an important source of revenue for Marist students, as the deli staff is made up of Marist students who are paid for their work.

The deli is important to the Marist community because it represents the student voice and student input. The deli is run by students and for students, and provides a space for students to express their opinions and concerns about the campus environment. The deli is also an important source of income for students, as the deli staff is made up of Marist students who are paid for their work.

In conclusion, the deli is an important part of the Marist community. It provides a wide variety of food and beverage options to the student body, and provides a comfortable and welcoming atmosphere for students to gather and socialize. It is also an important source of revenue for Marist students, and provides a space for students to express their opinions and concerns about the campus environment. Therefore, we urge the Marist College administration to support the deli and to ensure that it continues to thrive.

Sincerely,

Harriers Keep Streak Alive

Western Connecticut State is a good football team. Just having the size and depth that comes with playing for a school that is big enough for them to beat any team in club football and they'll really beat you.
