The CIRCLE has learned from reliable sources of a burglary in the Rathskeller last weekend.

Fire alarm broken, walls wrecked

By Larry Striegel

The campus fire alarm system was out of commission for eight hours early Sunday morning when a fire bell was ripped from the wall. Men's wing of the 7th floor of Champagnat Hall, climaxed a series of destructive events which occurred at Marist College during the past weekend.

Also on the 7th floor in a possibly related incident, two large holes were found in a hallway wall with the plastic wallpaper torn away.

Peter Amato, director of residence, said an investigation by the housing staff has found that three students may be involved in the incident, two of whom are not campus residents. Another, who is not a campus resident, is the suspect.

According to sources close to the investigation, the halls have identified those allegedly involved in the incidents, both of which took place between 4 and 5 a.m. Sunday morning.

Waters new security chief

By Regina Clarkin

An ex-New York State Trooper was hired by Marist College as director of Security, Joseph J. Waters, a 30-year veteran of the State Troopers, was named to the post on Jan. 12.

As director of Security, Waters has implemented procedures that provide for the personal safety of all the students, the students' personal belongings and college funds.

Waters also has made personal visits to the students, the students' personal belongings and college funds.

The CIRCLE has learned from reliable sources of a burglary in the Rathskeller last weekend, which apparently netted $448 in cash.

Another program implemented Sunday was a straight-eight shift for the four full-time guards. The second guard will work the 4 p.m. to 12 a.m. shift at his steady tour of duty. The second guard will work the 12 a.m. to 8 a.m. shift on a steady tour of duty and the third guard will work the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift at his steady tour of duty. The fourth guard works the swing shift which fills the off days of the other guards.

In the campus center Waters is instituting a straight, four-hour shift for student guards. The guards will be required to wear identification armbands and same tags with pictures.

A station will be centrally located where the student guards can go for assistance. The guards will be required to wear identification armbands and same tags with pictures.

By next week Waters will have interviewed every guard. He is very impressed with the student guards he has met so far.

‘Skip’ Aldrich Dies at 60

By Jeff Benedict and Regina Clarkin

Russell "Skip" Aldrich, a Marist College security supervisor died this past Monday while on his way to investigate a parking problem in the Champagnat lot. He was 60.

The cause of death was termed accidental pending investigation by town of Poughkeepsie Police and Marist Security, according toDetective Jim Burke of the town of Poughkeepsie Police.

Security Director Joe Waters last saw Aldrich at 8:30 a.m. when he told the deceased to check parking in the Champagnat lot.

"I asked him to check the parking lot for violators who were parking near the loading platforms and blocking deliveries," said Waters.

At approximately 9 a.m., a driver for Friddy's Bakery, who was making a delivery, witnessed Aldrich falling down the steps leading down into the parking lot. He alerted school personnel of the accident.

When the ambulance was called, Waters had Father LaMorte, of the campus ministry, summoned to the scene of the accident. Russell Aldrich was administered the Last Rites at 9:11 a.m.

Aldrich was a security officer at Marist for six months and worked for Interstate Security in Poughkeepsie before that. Russell Aldrich lived with his wife, Majorie on Parksville Road, Pleasant Valley. He served in the Navy during World War II and the Korean War, and was a member of the Irish-American Club, in Poughkeepsie.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters; Mrs. Kathryn P. Kinsenod, Clinton; and Mrs. Jorie VanWagenen, Pleasant Valley; a son Russell Jr. Aldrich, Jolie VanWagenen, Pleasant Valley; and seven grandchildren.

Another hole in the wall of seventh floor Champagnat. This was one of many acts of destruction committed in the dorms during the weekend.

A lobby bulletin board was ripped from the wall. A security guard was interviewed.

If we can't find who is doing these things, then everyone will suffer, and they're being done by our students. We're not going to tolerate this," he said. "If the destruction keeps up we will have to move the cafeteria services and a shabbiy institution," said Perez.

"We're tired of it." - Anthony Perez, dean of students expressed similar sentiments. "This is the 4th investigation I've been involved with, this is the worst damage and I've seen," said Perez. "Eventually all it does is raise the cost of tuition for everyone," Perez.

Marist receives $4500 for school improvements

By Rosalynn Haber

The core curriculum was revised at Marist College and the Committee (CAC) at a meeting held between faculty members and the committee on Tuesday, December 21. After careful consideration the decision was made to add a major in the mathematics department.

This decision means that the programs offered at Marist will be required to choose one three-direction of a more well-rounded revision shows a movement in the sciences, business, computer science and mathematics, history, fine arts (music, art, and drama), communications arts, including theatre and film, philosophy and religion.

Students receiving financial aid for foreign language courses will still be able to take classes at the university. However, the decision to change the course requirements for foreign language courses has already been made effective.

At present, 40 students are enrolled at Marist as of Tuesday, December 21. The Academic Affairs Committee has decided that the changes will be brought to the attention of the students and that any questions they may have will be answered.

The overall cost of the new curriculum is estimated at $25,000. The changes will be implemented by the spring of 1978.

Heat Promised

By Raymond Tully

Marist is adding a new heat source to its campus. The new installation will provide more efficient heating for the campus. The Institution will be able to use the new heat source for its headquarters and staff housing.

A grant of $540,000 has been contributed to Marist College's Capital Campaign by the Bankers Trust Company. Of the $540,000, $300,000 will be used for the purchase of new heat sources and $240,000 will be used for the replacement of old heating systems.

This is the fourth year that Marist students have given grants to support the college's projects. The college is also investigating the possibility of a new heat source for the college.

Fellowships granted

A Friend

By Jim Birdas

for the CIRCLE can remember "Skip" for all the times he left the gate open after 1 p.m. on Tuesday nights and escorted us to the dorms. Jim Birdas is a sophomore, Maureen Crowe, Wanda Glen, Ken Healy, Alison Hickey, Patricia Magalhaes, Clark Playfair, Woody Stack, Maureen Tully.

Remembering A Friend

This past Monday, Marist once again experienced the death of a member of its community. The death of Russell "Skip" Aldrich was a shock. We, the entire Marist community extend our condolences to the family of Russell "Skip" Aldrich, his wife and three children.

BAD PEANUTS

To the Editor, Jim Birdas, effectually addresses the problem of the students who make the life of the Marist College dormitory a very difficult one. In fact, Skip Aldrich left behind in our midst a lot of good friends who were always the life of the party. To all, the death of Russell "Skip" Aldrich was a shock. We, the entire Marist community extend our condolences to the family of Russell "Skip" Aldrich, his wife and three children.

PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS

In addition to his wife and three children, Russell Aldrich left behind Ina Life Insurance remainder, of the spring, 77 and a cost of $150 each and $1,200 in labor. This is only one of the many projects he's been involved with during this year. Other things such as the outside Champagnat. It is a relief for the students in every way possible. In order to get students on the side of security, he was very open and honest. The list of American professors is abandoned, but that is necessary for a number of reasons. Let's get drunk and go out and break something. That's not what Marist is all about.

STOP IT

Let's get drunk and go out and break something. That's not what Marist is all about.

Let's grow up. Let's be adults. Let's be civilized. Let's be human.

Let's stay the way we are.

Record request...

They're different, lend an ear

By Chris Popeke

"I love their music. It's a very high level of quality," said Miguel Colon, a sophomore at Marist College. "I can't believe the stuff we're listening to now is recorded on a home system." Colon was referring to the 10th anniversary of "The White Album" by the Beatles, which was released on November 22, 1968.

The album, which features 29 songs, has been described as one of the most influential and groundbreaking records in rock history. It is known for its innovative sound and experimentation, and for introducing many of the musical elements that would become hallmarks of the Beatles' later work.

Colon, who is a music major, said he bought the album as a gift for himself and his friends, and has been playing it non-stop since then. "I listen to it every day," he said. "It's just so good."

Political experts may have described Jimmy Carter's transition to the Presidency as smooth, but the same cannot be said for Marist's transition into a big-time basketball team upon completion of the McCann Recreation Center.

Marist broke its four-game losing streak (all to CACC opponents) with a 67-60 decision over Ramapo in Madison Square Garden Saturday.

But with a 9-9 record before last night, the Red Foxes are still in need of Sacred Heart. The Red Foxes will have to struggle to avert coach Ron Petro's worst seventh season in eleven years at Marist.

Last week, Marist suffered setbacks at Nyack (84-76), Kings (74-71) and Dowling (74-69).

If that's beginning to sound like a routine, think again. The Red Foxes' big-time troubles were exhibited in a big-time shooting performance against the Huskies.

Despite the score in Oakland Saturday, the loss to Dowling was probably one of Marist's better evenings of the season. Last week hit for 14 points as the Red Foxes suffered their defensive "ACC" champions throughout the last four games, as the Red Foxes contributed a second-half score to tie the Golden Lions to score six straight points and head into halftime with a 33-35 halftime lead.

But, Ron and Lajeunesse led a comeback featuring a 12-3 run midway through the second half, and 11 points in the second half, to spread the big lead with a 33-35 halftime lead.

The Red Foxes could not keep up the shooting and their lack of frontcourt depth against the Golden Lions. Bob Costine's home run enabled the Red Foxes' last 20 points, while Marist's scorers added 11 apiece. The Red Foxes fell to 4-10, and their transition to the Presidency as a disturbing parade.
