Tuition increases again

By Vic Small

Tuition will be increased in the Fall semester of 1978, according to both Business Manager Anthony V. Campilli, and Vice-President Edward P. Waters. According to Waters, the amount has not been determined yet. He said, "We can't say now, we're in the process of doing the projections for next year's budget. It takes a lot of time to have the final decision by the end of the school year." Waters said that anything could be done to offset costs would be done.

Reasons cited by Campilli and Waters for the tuition increase were the escalating costs of heat, food, supplies, salaries, and maintenance.

Marist's budget will be over $9 million by the end of this year, said Campilli. Three percent, about $300,000, will be mandated by state and federal governments. Marist receives $100,000 from gifts, and another $100,000 from miscellaneous income. Waters said Marist was "very much" afraid of pricing itself out of the market. He said Marist compared itself to ten other colleges. "We're in the process of doing the offset costs would be done."

The idea of CSL came from a presupposition submitted to Bodick in 1974 by student members of the Committee for Constitutional Revision, the proposal was vetoed by a student vote.

The major proposal will be the formation of Council of Student Vice Presidents (CSV), which will consist of leaders from Campus Union Board, Computer Union, Inter-House Council and Student Academic Committee, according to Bodick. The CSL, would be the overall governing body, resulting in one voice. "I certainly intend to do anything I can to help with the revision," he said, "but it's too difficult a problem to let stand." Breen explained CSL as "centralizing, so the four areas we're all one small village interacting together."

Constitution still Breen's priority

By Maggie Schubert

Sue Breen, president of student government (SG), said the revision of the Constitution is her major priority. Former vice president Breen became president following Jeff Blanchard's resignation in December. The constitutional revision was one of the campaign promises of the Blanchard ticket.

"I know about Blanchard's resignation a week and a half before it happened and I began work on the revision a few days after school began," Breen said. "Since I've been back I've just been reading through the constitution and proposals, and I've met with Fred Lambert, acting dean of students, and Daily Boholder, coordinator of college activities," she said.

Breen hopes to have the revised Constitution completed by mid-March "but it depends on various technicalities you run into," she said. "I'm not doing this alone, and there are always unexpected things that come up." The CSL is divided into four areas:pNet, social affairs, budget, and academic affairs.

The major proposal will be the formation of Council of Student Vice Presidents (CSV), which will consist of leaders from Campus Union Board, Computer Union, Inter-House Council and Student Academic Committee, according to Bodick. "If this proposal is passed, SG would be abolished," continued on pg 6.

Grade inflation hitting Marist?

By Kathy Norton

The number of Marist students graduating with honors increased 12 percent between 1968 and 1977, which, according to Academic Dean Louis Zuccarello, follows a national trend of "grade inflation." "Grade inflation" is a tendency for grades to increase over a period of time while the criteria for grading and students' ability remains the same.

A student must maintain a 3.8 cumulative index to graduate summa cum laude, a 3.5 index to graduate magna cum laude, and a 3.0 index to graduate cum laude.

According to Zuccarello the national trend started in the late 1960's, became worse in the early 1970's, and is now being curbed. In 1971 the percent of Marist students graduating with honors began to rise and reached a peak in 1975 with 45 percent of the senior class graduating with honors. He said reasons for this trend were a wider variety of students, major changes in academic structures, allowing students a freer choice in courses, and new evaluative devices like the written exam, which allow students to show competence in other ways besides a written exam.

Zuccarello said the trend is being curbed by more academic structures. The core curriculum is an example, according to Zuccarello.

A sub-committee has surveyed the grading practices of Marist's faculty to determine whether they are consistent with standards recommended by the Marist catalogue. Chairman Gerard Cox says the survey is only a tool in analyzing "grade inflation," and that results will not be disclosed until an survey sample can be made.

When Dean Boholder was questioned earlier he said, the sub-committee had not met to discuss the results of the survey. However, Dr. Edward Danahoe, a member of the sub-committee, told a class in the beginning of the fall semester that seven areas of study had been singled out for giving continued on pg 2.

Boyle chosen SG vice-pres.

By Lark Landon

Jack Boyle was chosen for Student Government (SG) vice-president by the executive board. He is to fill the position left vacant by Sue Breen who became SG president when former president Jeff Blanchard resigned last semester. Boyle must be ratified officially on Feb. 15 by the policy board.

Boyle, a senior biology major, was on the Student Academic Committee last year, and was a member of the policy board for one semester. According to Boyle, Marist was chosen because of his involvement in campus activities. "Jack is very conscientious. We wanted someone who had worked within the student systems. He was the most qualified of the people we discussed."

If appointed, his duty as vice president is to oversee the relations between various student organizations and investigate their spending. He also serves as a member of the financial board and the policy board, and assumes the role of president in Breen's absence.

From his previous activities, Boyle said he was "well acquainted with the workings of the student government." His first goal is "to open up more channels of communication" between the student government and the administration by "personally approaching the administration to inform them on SG activities."

"That was the major complaint of Jeff Blanchard last semester. I'd like to change that."

Marist students go to Eluthera

By Susan Steeper

Four Marist College students will undertake a mission to the Bahamas over the Spring break, to work as volunteers at a Christian day camp called “The Caribbean Community School.”

“The purpose of the trip,” said Susan LaMorte, “is to help the people on the island who showed interest, three of whom were women. The women had a connection with another community of people.”

“Several students are interested in helping with the children, but most of the volunteers are women who showed interest, three of whom were women. The women had a connection with another community of people.”

Marist College radio (WMCR) wants "to put up the gun," said Bruce TV-FM coordinator Richard E. Colfer, referring to Alan Hunter, WMCR's chief technician, who was shot dead during the March 18 attack on the air studio.

WCMM and Bruce TV-FM together would "provide a viable cable service," Colfer said, adding that other stations in the area are "still trying to get off the ground." WMCR's strength lies in its size, he said.

"We're going to split the difference," Colfer added. "We feel that if we can come up with a reasonable number that will satisfy both sides, then we can move forward." WMCR would sponsor the drive, said, "I'm absolutely sold on the idea."

Mr. Richard E. Colfer, formerly of the Marist College Radio (WMCR) station, said he is still involved with the station.

Patty Powers has been selected as athlete of the week for the week ending Feb. 13. The freshman from Dumont, N.J., has scored 83 points for the past four games.

Powers, who plays guard and forward for the Red Foxes, said playing basketball in high school was in the fifth grade.

"I really liked it, you could teach little kids a lot more, because they were just beginning and they usually listened to what you said."

The relative of Jack Powers, the men's basketball coach at Manhattan, Powers wants to work in the area of child psychology upon graduation.

Red Foxes trounced by Siena 67-85

By Ralph Capone

Siena now in four years.

They had not beaten Dowling in four years also, and Dowling carrying a 16-2 record and a 39 game winning streak at home looked very tough. But a second half surge by the Red Foxes, breaking a 42-42 tie at halftime, and poor shooting by Dowling enabled Marist to beat them 67-45, despite being out rebounded by Dowling 43-28 Saturday. While Marist didn't exactly have the hot hand, converting 31 of 68 shots, Dowling was as frozen as an icicle.

The Professional Promise

by Regina Clarkin

Ron Clarke

Ron Clarke, a senior at Marist is being contacted by several professional football teams including the NFL's champion Dallas Cowboys.

The recent developments concerning future professional prospects of Marist athletes has shown that while some Marist teams have losing records we don't necessarily have bad athletes.

A 1977 alumnus of Marist, Jay Metzger, who played on Doc Goldman's soccer team for four years and who said he had been contacted for a tryout by the Portland (Oregon) Timbers of the North American Soccer League. The Timbers called Metzger at his home in Buffalo after hearing about his abilities from Doc Goldman, who attended a College Bowl night. "Doc must've put in a few good words about me."

A few days later, Metzger received a plane ticket to Oregon from the Timbers. He will try out for the backup goalies, behind the number one goalie, the following week. The tryout period will be for ten days to two weeks.

"The Timbers don't believe in one or two days of practice," said the former resident visitor who has a degree in math and business.

Metzger, who played on an undefeated soccer team over his four years at Marist, has had 389 career tackles for the Vikings. He's received letters to professional clubs at the end of the season. So far, just the fact that both players have been contacted shows that the caliber of athletes Marist has is the same as any other major college."

"I never really thought about it (going into professional football) while some Marist teams have losing records we don't necessarily have bad athletes."

About a month ago I was invited down to Giants director of football Steve Van Buren and Clarke wrote letters to professional clubs at the end of the season. So far, just the fact that both players have been contacted shows that the caliber of athletes Marist has is the same as any other major college."

"I really liked it, you could teach little kids a lot more, because they were just beginning and they usually listened to what you said."

Jay Metzger, a 1977 graduate of Marist, will graduate in May, and the Portland Timbers of the North American Soccer League.
