Chief unhappy with fire violations

By Kathy Norton

Fairview Fire Chief William Sukka said he is "not happy with the rate at which fire hazards and non-compliances are being corrected" at Marist College.

Sukka said, "The college is responsible for every student's safety. They are not living up to that responsibility."

As of March 9 many of the fire hazards cited in a fire inspection last May still exist, Sukka said. He reported "no one has corrected violations; they are moving along slowly."

Except for emergenecies, the amount of time allowed for corrections is decided by Sukka and Marist. He said 10 months is a "reasonable" amount of time for most corrections. Sukka said the only solution is "correcting the hazards," and added, this is up to college officials.

Sukka said Marist's budget priorities and an understaffed maintenance department could be responsible for the slowness in correcting the hazards. He added there are other problems involved but said he would not discuss them.

Sukka said correcting many violations and non-compliances have to do with cost. However, Sukka said, many are "poor housekeeping practices," and should have been corrected right away. Any violations in "a lot," said Sukka, but each one must be evaluated individually.

According to Sukka, a fire inspection is required every year. He added that an inspection "would definitely be done in the near future." He also said that "major" violations found in the last inspection were corrected. Sukka said student cooperation is "poor" at Marist. He said some students would ignore an inspection because they would "not in any way decrease their lives."
Manzini escapes

By Mary Stankich

No insurance company in the world will insure him, his mother will get arrested when she tries to sell the house, and he won't see Florio Mangini again. That's how Stankich views Manzini. He even predicts his end, according to the way he talks about Manzini. "If it's true that the Robert Lawrence in the bathtub when he practices holding his breath, he could practice holding his breath for the rest of his life."

"The more you practice, the better you get," said Manzini's mother. "I've seen him practice his breath-holding for hours at a time."

When Manzini was 16, he was charged with attempted murder. The case was dismissed due to lack of evidence.

"I've never seen anyone practice their breath-holding like he does," said his father. "It's always been his way of coping with stress."

Manzini is currently under house arrest and is not allowed to leave his home without a chaperone.

"He's doing okay," said the_shared_out. "He's been doing therapy, and his parents have been trying to help him."

River Day planned

By Beth Weaver

A band, free beer, and hamburgers and hotdogs for eight hours will highlight the annual River Day celebration Saturday, April 30, according to Maria Travers, College Union (CUC) president-elect. It will be a traditional River Day celebration, according to Travers, and the weather is expected to be perfect for the event. The day will feature live music, food, and a variety of activities.

"The River Day celebration is a great way to welcome back the spring weather and enjoy the outdoors," said Travers. "It's a great opportunity to come together as a community and have some fun."

Tickets for the River Day celebration can be purchased for $5 in advance or $7 at the door.

Announcing

New leaders outline priorities

Student Government

By Latek Landon

Frank Blum is too weak to fill the post of student body, will assume leadership of the Student Government. Blum was appointed by President Rehwoldt to the position. Blum's first priority will be to increase student participation in games and activities. Blum's second priority will be to improve the student government's budgeting process.

"I will work hard to ensure that the student government's budgeting process is transparent and fair," said Blum. "I will also work to increase student involvement in games and activities."

Blum's third priority will be to improve the student government's communication with the administration.

"I will work with the administration to ensure that the student government's budgeting process is being handled in a fair and transparent manner," said Blum.

Student Council

By Latek Landon

Nineteen students were elected to the Student Council for the 1978-79 academic year. The new council will be led by President Nicky Higgins, who will be responsible for making decisions and overseeing the council's activities.

"I am excited to be leading the Student Council," said Higgins. "I plan to work with the members of the council to ensure that the Student Council is able to make decisions that are in the best interests of the students."

Interhouse Council

The Gospel according to Camus

The author of the novel "The Plague" was enabled to pursue his education and obtain a degree in philosophy at the University of Algiers. In his autobiography, "The Myth of Sisyphus," Camus reflects on the meaning of life and the search for meaning in a world that seems to lack purpose. He asks, "What is the meaning of man's life?" and "Is life worth living?"

Camus believes that life is absurd, meaning that there is no inherent meaning to life, and that we must create our own meaning through our actions. He argues that "man is condemned to be free" and that we are responsible for creating our own happiness and meaning in life. Camus's views on life and death are also explored in his essay "The Myth of Sisyphus," where he discusses the idea of the "eternal return" and the concept of "the will to power."
Students to dance for charity

By J. Perez

Future shock students

Susan Stepper

College students are the saddest people in the world, because of the "future shock" they are going through, according to Norton. According to Norton, people are not used to change. They are used to being do the same thing for a long time. "No one expects," said Norton, "to have to hold out the."

Norton believes that the world is changing so fast, that no one has time to adjust to it. Norton said, "One of the concepts of Alvin Toffler, author of Future Shock, is that people are not used to change. They are used to doing the same thing for a long time."
