Perez cuts down on alcohol abuse

By Jim Townsend

The use of alcohol on campus is being discouraged by Dean of Students Antonio Perez because, he said, Marist is trying to cut down on alcohol abuse and is instituting a “drinking school.”

Perez said the college’s alcohol policy, chosen by former Assistant Dean of Students Fred Lambert, was to be enforced in a greater extent. Some of the major policies enforced will be restrictions on the amount of liquor at house parties, no liquor being served in the Rathskellar and no open beers outside of dormitory rooms, according to Perez.

The changed alcohol policy in the Rathskellar was, according to Perez, put into effect by Marriott, the new food service. They decided to change the image of the Rathskellar, making it a place to socialize without drinking liquor, he said.

Janus hurt in crash

By Don Purdy

Assistant physical plant director Fred Janus was injured “and his car demolished when hit by a train at a railroad crossing on Aug. 18.”

Approaching a railroad crossing in Wingdale enroute to Marist, Janus’ car was struck by a train which pushed the vehicle against a steel abutment.

According to Andrew Pavelko, physical plant director, an apparent malfunction of the crossing lights may have been to blame.

He said the committee will consist of three assistant deans of students, Kelly was in charge of last year. In addition, Perez said he was optimistic the reorganization will work out as an experiment for Marist.

He said the committee will consist of three assistant deans of students, Kelly was in charge of last year. In addition, Perez said he was optimistic the reorganization will work out as an experiment for Marist.

He said the committee will consist of three assistant deans of students, Kelly was in charge of last year. In addition, Perez said he was optimistic the reorganization will work out as an experiment for Marist.

He said the committee will consist of three assistant deans of students, Kelly was in charge of last year. In addition, Perez said he was optimistic the reorganization will work out as an experiment for Marist.
Complaints bring cafe changes

Mascia, Nilson, Rogers join Marist faculty

Weekend Happenings

Health Services add night coverage, Dr. Gasen

Complaints bring cafe changes

Mascia, Nilson, Rogers join Marist faculty

Weekend Happenings

Health Services add night coverage, Dr. Gasen

Complaints bring cafe changes

Mascia, Nilson, Rogers join Marist faculty

Weekend Happenings

Health Services add night coverage, Dr. Gasen

Complaints bring cafe changes

Mascia, Nilson, Rogers join Marist faculty
Kelly becomes Housing Director

By Gerry McCombs

Assistant Dean of Students Gerry Kelly was appointed Marist's new housing director in late August of 1978. In this position, Kelly will be in charge of all aspects of Marist's residence halls, including housing assignments, student life and conduct, housing services, and building maintenance.

The role of housing director is a significant one at Marist College, as the college is focused on providing a safe and supportive living environment for its students. Kelly's appointment comes at a time when the college is facing challenges related to housing, including issues with living conditions and student behavior.

Kelly has a strong background in student affairs, having served as the assistant dean of students at Marist for several years. He brings a wealth of experience to the role, having worked with students on a variety of issues, including academic success, personal growth, and social development.

Kelly's appointment is a positive step forward for Marist College, as the college continues to prioritize the needs of its students. The college is committed to providing a high-quality education and a supportive living environment for all students, and Kelly's appointment will help to ensure that these goals are met.

New programs wait for state's approval

By Beth Weaver

Three academic degrees which have been approved by the state education commissioner are now available at Marist College. The new degrees are in Business Administration, Public Administration, and a Master of Education (M.Ed.) degree in Social Studies Education.

Other programs being discussed are a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and a Master of Science in Education. However, these programs are not yet approved by the state commissioner.

The new degrees are a result of a recent expansion of the college's academic offerings. Marist College is committed to providing a high-quality education to its students, and the new degrees reflect this commitment.

Summer programs blamed for dormitory vandalism

By Marilynn Boyer

Ten battalion members, who were the only people living in the residence hall at the time, were sverved with a summons on August 4th for allegedly causing $1,275 in damages to the hall. The summons was signed by the police department and was served by a campus security officer.

Lemmon said that the dormitory was damaged during a large party that took place in the hall on August 3rd. According to Lemmon, the party was attended by approximately 200 students, and the damages were caused by overcrowding and alcohol consumption.

Lemmon added that the college has taken steps to prevent future incidents, including increasing security and implementing stricter alcohol policies. He also noted that the college is working with the police department to address the issue.

The college is committed to providing a safe and supportive living environment for all students, and the college is taking steps to address the issue of dormitory vandalism.

The college has also reached out to the community to ensure that students feel safe and secure while living in the dormitories. The college is committed to providing a high-quality education to its students, and it is working to ensure that all students have access to the resources they need to succeed.
Marist student fights leukemia

By Valerie Hybert

Mike Guilette said he feels like a champ in his fight against leukemia. "I used to be leukemia now you see me, now I’m leukemia and you see me," he said.

Guilette, a 21-year-old senior at Marist College, said he was diagnosed with acute myelocytic leukemia in February. "I was in the hospital for three months," he said.

Guilette said he is in remission and is currently taking medication to prevent the disease from returning. He said he is grateful for the support he received from his family, friends, and the Marist community.

Mike’s been a champion in the fight against leukemia. Guilette is now back in school and continues to be an inspiration to those around him.

Weekend list of cleaning chores. In the college, the

Volleyball players prepare for first varsity schedule

By Pat Larrick

The Marist College Women’s Volleyball team will have a new coach and a new schedule this season. Coach Rich Sohanchyk will be replaced by Rich Steins, who comes to Marist from St. John’s University.

Sohanchyk coached the women’s team for four years and led them to a 21-9 record last season. Steins has been an assistant coach at St. John’s for the past four years.

The Marist team will play its first game of the season on September 16 against Monmouth. The game will be held at 11 a.m. at the McCann Recreation Center.

Intramural Schedule

The Marist College Intramural Program is sponsoring a variety of sports and activities this fall. The schedule includes soccer, flag football, basketball, and volleyball.

The soccer season begins on September 10, with games scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights. The flag football season starts on September 12, with games on Monday and Wednesday nights.

Basketball games will be held on Saturday and Monday evenings, starting on September 15. Volleyball games are scheduled for Wednesday nights, starting on September 18.

The fall season concludes on December 1, with the final volleyball game.

Volunteers Needed

Any students interested in giving tours of the college to prospective students please contact:

Mrs. Jo Ann Greystone
Admissions Office
Greystone Building
Extension: 226/227

MEET AT MIKE’S TAVERN
Always a nightly special

MON. VODKA .50
TUES. RUM/BEER .50
WED. RYE .50
THURS. GIN .50
FRI. TEQUILA .50
SAT. SCOTCH .75

DRAFTS 15¢

FRI. SPECIAL Bottled Beer-12 oz.
Bad, Miller's, Genny, all 50.
All imported 12 Bottle Bottles .75.
3:30 P.M. Till 7:00 P.M.
25 Main Street

Benoit-from fashion design to fraternity

By Lark Landis

Benoit House is "dirtier" and "noisy" than it was a year ago, but the house has found its way of dealing with new residents. Many changes have occurred since the fraternity moved into the old Benoit House.

This year, Benoit House is occupied by the Epilson fraternity. Many new members were welcomed into the fraternity at a recent picnic. The men celebrated by "fighting" and dancing in the middle of the basement.

This year, the Epilson fraternity plans to have more picnics and social events. They also plan to work on the house and improve it for future years.

Running Foxes finishing disappointing 8th

By Chris Hogan

The Marist Running Red Foxes opened the fall season with a disappointing 8th place finish at the NAIA Meet of Champions in St. Louis, Missouri.

The Marist team was led by senior Gary Weisinger, who finished 8th in the meet. The other top finishers for the Marist team were juniors Rich Stevens and Rich Sohanchyk.

"I think we have a good team," said Stevens. "But we have to work harder and be more consistent."
Booters prepare for tough season

By John Mayer

The Marist College soccer team will open its 1978 campaign with eight returning starters when they play at New Paltz, September 28th.

Among the veterans will be senior forwards Zenone Naitza and Pernell Naitza who combined for 12 goals and 13 assists last season.

Leading the defense will be junior goalkeeper Rich Heffernan who allowed his most goals in 1977-1978. His last four games he gave up four goals, an average of one goal per game.

At midfield, the booters will have a few changes. Among the veterans will be senior midfielder Bill Cooper and Joe Bilo, freshmen wing Bob Sentochnik, freshmen strikers and midfielders.

Strength, especially for the replacement of backs Ed Isaacson, Vincent Minutillo, and Scott Rocklein who left school at the end of last year. "All three could fill in more than adequately," said Goldman, and added, "Our defense will be stronger than last year."

Goldman said Isaacson, Minutillo and Rocklein all have the opportunity to take the starting position vacated by the absence of Scott Rocklein who left school at the end of last year. "All three could fill in more than adequately," said Goldman, and added, "Our defense will be stronger than last year."

In their first three scrimmages this season Marist has tied in all of them. In a doubleheader at Albany State both games ended up 1-1, and at West Point the verdict was 2-2. The coaches will get another look at their players when the Red Foxes take on the Alumni this Saturday at 2 p.m.
Marist student fights leukemia

By Valerie Shibelt

Michele Simmers' goal is to help girls to learn that it's true that healthy body helps them to enjoy healthy life. For her, her new residence came as an end to this. She had seven years of illness, going through chemotherapy and radiation. She is now a junior at Marist College, majoring in fashion and design, and has been participating in the Fashion and Design program for the past two years.

The second floor of the Van Alstyne residence hall has been transformed into a fashion and design studio. Simmers, along with her classmate, Maria Giancola, have been organizing workshops andclasses for other students to learn about fashion design and production.

The workshops, which are held twice a week, cover topics such as pattern making, sewing, and garment construction. Simmers and Giancola have been working with several local designers to provide the students with hands-on experience in the fashion industry.

The Van Alstyne residence hall is located near the fashion design studio, making it easy for students to attend the workshops. The studio is equipped with all the necessary tools and equipment, including sewing machines, fabrics, and other supplies.

Simmers and Giancola have been working with the fashion design students to create their own designs, which are then sewn and sold at local events. The proceeds from the sales go towards supporting the fashion design program at Marist College.

Benoit-from fashion design to fraternity

By Alan Landau

Benoit Fine, a sophomore at Marist College, has been selected as the new president of the Marist College fraternity. Fine, who is currently studying fashion design, will serve as the fraternity's leader for the upcoming academic year.

Fine is a native of New York City and has been active in the fashion industry for several years. He has worked for several prestigious fashion designers, including Calvin Klein and Versace.

Fine's appointment as fraternity president comes at a time when the fraternity is facing significant challenges. The fraternity has been struggling to attract new members, and Fine plans to implement a number of initiatives to reverse this trend.

One of his main goals is to increase the fraternity's visibility on campus. He plans to host more events and activities, and to work closely with the administration to ensure that the fraternity's activities are in line with the university's policies.

Fine is determined to make the fraternity a more inclusive and welcoming environment. He plans to increase the number of members from diverse backgrounds, and to provide more opportunities for members to get involved in community service.

The fraternity has also been facing financial challenges, and Fine plans to implement a number of financial initiatives to ensure the fraternity's financial stability.

Rehwoldt sets NSF handicapped guide

By J. Neighbors

Pamela Rehwoldt, a junior at Marist College, has been selected as the new director of the National Science Foundation (NSF) handicapped guide program. Rehwoldt is a native of New York City and has been active in the field of disability rights for several years.

Rehwoldt's appointment comes at a time when the NSF is facing significant challenges. The NSF has been struggling to attract new members, and Rehwoldt plans to implement a number of initiatives to reverse this trend.

One of her main goals is to increase the NSF's visibility on campus. She plans to host more events and activities, and to work closely with the administration to ensure that the NSF's activities are in line with the university's policies.

Rehwoldt is determined to make the NSF a more inclusive and welcoming environment. She plans to increase the number of members from diverse backgrounds, and to provide more opportunities for members to get involved in community service.

The NSF has also been facing financial challenges, and Rehwoldt plans to implement a number of financial initiatives to ensure the NSF's financial stability.

Running Foxes finish disappointing 8th

By Chris Hala

The Marist College Women's Volleyball team opened its season on Friday against the University of Vermont. The team was led by the senior setter, Marie Lanotte, who had a strong performance.

The team was facing a tough competition, and Lanotte was determined to lead the team to victory. She knew that the team would need to play well to have a chance of winning.

Lanotte was instrumental in leading the team to victory, setting up the attacks and communicating effectively with her teammates. Her leadership was critical in the team's success.

The team went on to win the match, and Lanotte was pleased with the team's performance. She knew that the team had the potential to be successful, and she was determined to help the team reach its full potential.

The team is now looking forward to the next match, and Lanotte is confident that the team has the talent and the determination to achieve success.

Volleyballers prepare for first varsity schedule

By Pat Larkin

The Marist College Women's Volleyball team is preparing for its first varsity schedule. The team has been working hard during the off-season, and is ready to take on the challenge.

The team has been practicing for the past few weeks, and has been working on improving its skills and strategies. The team has a strong roster, and is confident in its ability to compete at a high level.

The team is looking forward to the first match, and is determined to give its best performance. The team knows that it will face tough competition, but is confident in its ability to emerge victorious.

Rehwoldt's office has set three priorities for the team's first varsity schedule. The first priority is to establish a strong foundation for the team's success. The second priority is to focus on improving the team's techniques and strategies. The third priority is to build a strong team bond and teamwork.

The team is excited to face the challenge, and is determined to make the most of its first varsity schedule. The team is looking forward to the next match, and is confident in its ability to achieve success.
Booters prepare for tough season

By John Mayer

The Marist College soccer team will open its 1979 campaign with eight returning starters when they play at New Paltz on September 20th.

Among the veterans will be senior forwards Zenone and Femino Naitza who combined for 19 goals and 13 assists last season. "We will have more depth than we anticipated," said Goldmann. "Besides the one or two that will start, they will be the nucleus of the bench. I feel the team will be more adequate," said Goldman, and added, "We have been moving people around and John King and Scott Strauss have yet to play, so we really have a complete evaluation of the situation yet."

According to Goldman, the other possible obstacle between Marist and another successful season, last year they were 23-1, is the tougher schedule they will face. Included in the list of opponents are Oneonta State, Kings Point, C.W. Post, SUNY at Binghamton, Union and Montclair State.

"Our schedule was tougher not only to meet National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II requirements," stated Goldman, "but also for competitive purposes; some of the poorer teams were dropped because they were doing us no good, and we were doing them no good either."

Goldman, in his sixteenth season, and Assistant Coach Richard Lotze, in his sixth year, have been working the team through extensive ball control and running drills hoping all the work will lead the team into the NCAA regional competition and possibly even nationals, according to Goldman.

Corner Kicks

In their first three scrimmages this season Marist has tied in all of them. In August Andy Meyn was hired to coach crew at Ithaca for the past few seasons. His freshman crews have finished first and second in the Dad Vail's in the past two years.

Meyn is taking over a program that team to go on and on he believes that has already begun to happen. Even with just 12 returning lettermen, Meyn feels the team will be vastly improved in his first season. "This is not a rebuilding year like a lot of people think," he said, "I'll get results now."

Meyn said he is going to expand the program that has concentrated on heavyweights in the past few years. "I plan to have a program here and that should attract more junior varsity, lightweight and women's crew."

Meyn seems to be making good on his word of getting results now. Forty freshmen, the highest number in several years, have come out for crew. That is remarkable considering the fact that none of its prospective members had been recruited. The new coach also said that few problems were compounded when few freshmen came out because little recruiting had been done the previous spring. All of this came to a head in the spring season last year when Marist went without a victory for the first time in years. Before the season was over Caldwell resigned and the search for a successor begins.

By Ken Healy

Just two years ago crew was probably the least popular and most miscued sport at Marist College. Coach William Austin had built a strong crew through recruiting, that was competitive at all levels.

After Austin stepped down to head the alumni association crew at Marist seemed to disappear. Gary Caldwell took over the program and with the remains of Austin's powerful team the Red Foxes went undefeated through their regular schedule. Caldwell took an undefeated team to the Dad Vail championships in May of 1977 and Marist was destroyed. (The Dad Vail is the small college championship in crew.) Many team members blamed the coaching and the easy spring schedule for Marist's surprisingly poor finish. Others said they weren't that surprised.

In the fall of 1977 the Marist crew took to the water in the worst shape they had been in years. Many upperclassmen were gone through graduation and others had lost interest. Even worse, several members that had transferred to other schools with stronger rowing programs. These problems were compounded when few freshmen came out because little recruiting had been done the previous spring. All of this came to a head in the spring season last year when Marist went without a victory for the first time in years. Before the season was over Caldwell resigned and the search for a successor begins.

By Ken Healy

Just two years ago crew was probably the least popular and most miscued sport at Marist College. Coach William Austin had built a strong crew through recruiting, that was competitive at all levels.

After Austin stepped down to head the alumni association crew at Marist seemed to disappear. Gary Caldwell took over the program and with the remains of Austin's powerful team the Red Foxes went undefeated through their regular schedule. Caldwell took an undefeated team to the Dad Vail championships in May of 1977 and Marist was destroyed. (The Dad Vail is the small college championship in crew.) Many team members blamed the coaching and the easy spring schedule for Marist's surprisingly poor finish. Others said they weren't that surprised.

In the fall of 1977 the Marist crew took to the water in the worst shape they had been in years. Many upperclassmen were gone through graduation and others had lost interest. Even worse, several members that had transferred to other schools with stronger rowing programs. These problems were compounded when few freshmen came out because little recruiting had been done the previous spring. All of this came to a head in the spring season last year when Marist went without a victory for the first time in years. Before the season was over Caldwell resigned and the search for a successor begins.

By Ken Healy

Just two years ago crew was probably the least popular and most miscued sport at Marist College. Coach William Austin had built a strong crew through recruiting, that was competitive at all levels.

After Austin stepped down to head the alumni association crew at Marist seemed to disappear. Gary Caldwell took over the program and with the remains of Austin's powerful team the Red Foxes went undefeated through their regular schedule. Caldwell took an undefeated team to the Dad Vail championships in May of 1977 and Marist was destroyed. (The Dad Vail is the small college championship in crew.) Many team members blamed the coaching and the easy spring schedule for Marist's surprisingly poor finish. Others said they weren't that surprised.

In the fall of 1977 the Marist crew took to the water in the worst shape they had been in years. Many upperclassmen were gone through graduation and others had lost interest. Even worse, several members that had transferred to other schools with stronger rowing programs. These problems were compounded when few freshmen came out because little recruiting had been done the previous spring. All of this came to a head in the spring season last year when Marist went without a victory for the first time in years. Before the season was over Caldwell resigned and the search for a successor begins.

By Ken Healy

Just two years ago crew was probably the least popular and most miscued sport at Marist College. Coach William Austin had built a strong crew through recruiting, that was competitive at all levels.

After Austin stepped down to head the alumni association crew at Marist seemed to disappear. Gary Caldwell took over the program and with the remains of Austin's powerful team the Red Foxes went undefeated through their regular schedule. Caldwell took an undefeated team to the Dad Vail championships in May of 1977 and Marist was destroyed. (The Dad Vail is the small college championship in crew.) Many team members blamed the coaching and the easy spring schedule for Marist's surprisingly poor finish. Others said they weren't that surprised.

In the fall of 1977 the Marist crew took to the water in the worst shape they had been in years. Many upperclassmen were gone through graduation and others had lost interest. Even worse, several members that had transferred to other schools with stronger rowing programs. These problems were compounded when few freshmen came out because little recruiting had been done the previous spring. All of this came to a head in the spring season last year when Marist went without a victory for the first time in years. Before the season was over Caldwell resigned and the search for a successor begins.