Walsh cops frowsh vote

by Veronica Shez

Marist's class of 1984 held its elections last week, choosing as class officers: Patti Walsh, president; Chris Mollosuo, as vice president, Ruth Elisee, secretary, and Kathy Shea, as treasurer. Staff competition was involved in most of the races, with decisions coming down to the final ballots. Walsh, from Central Islip, New York, said she ran because she wanted to be in- volved in student government. She was president of her high school in senior year, "taught a lot from the experience," Mollosuo had been president of a community service club and layout editor of his high school newspaper. He is from Faribough, N.Y. A Queens resident, Elisee was involved in a women's group and the Black Stu­ dent Union of her school. Shea had been treasurer of Student Council in North Adams, Massachusetts.

Their plans for the year can be summed up in one word: "unify." Walsh would like to see suggestion boxes in Leo and Sheehan and intends to distribute it again. "We want to do things that will bring the class together," states Mollosuo, "but also things that will get us involved with up- perclassmen, such as some type of athletic competition." Although the freshman class is split into two dorms, the class officers see no pro- blem in co-operating in the two for the ini- cluding dances and possibly a freshmen trip. Elisee suggests a program involving freshman classes from other colleges, as well. Commuters will not be forgotten, since their aim is to keep them informed of activities by placing notices in the Com- muter Lounge. They hope to make a seg- ment of the school's population a more in- tegral part of student life. There are also proposals to involve the handicapped members of the community in a larger capacity.

After midterms, the officers intend to send out to Waters. The horn system is now more definite plans. "We can only ac- complish things with everyone's help," says Shea.

President Walsh believes that the class has a great deal of enthusiasm, and as the largest class on campus, has "a lot of potential."
Once again, Marist has gone against the odds. In the age of computerized educational institutions, we are still experimenting.

As of today, Marist has become one of the most prestigious research and orientation centers in the state of New York. The Casey Alberthorn, located in Milford, this option will eventually be affiliated with programs here at Marist.

There are important things going on at the Beirne Media Center in trying to start a pro-

Deir Edie

What Next?

Dear Edie,

I am truly concerned about the OAGGER Phlegm Room. What is this all about? Is there no respect for those who work there? I am not sure what we are supposed to be, but I don’t want to be second best. I am just not sure if the dorm is really the right place for us.

I think it is important that if we are to continue to live, more alike - no one gets more, no one gets less; it can’t wait, can raise questions about difficult multiply at examination periods. What can we do to show the importance of the dorm to the students here.

In the future, I would like to see the dorms more like the dorms in college.

Sincerely,

Judy Hupe

Equal time

This is to reply to the letter written by Judy Davis that was printed two weeks ago in the Circle. Regarding the issue of Beirne Phlegm Hall.

We as a full apartment group were not enough of a majority of opinion shown in the letter that was revised have been frequented.

We would like to show respect at Lahey’s 10 year, too, and we

We feel the need for attention.

Sincerely,

Mike Carbone

Wrong Number

The residents of the first floorartment Champagnat Hall were left without any answer to a complaint with the Circle. The phone is a vital tool and a way of getting things done.

If the phone is not working, any of us on one time or another, our phone is how we contact our families of having our calls answered. It is how we get our messages to be relayed to our families.

Yet, the phone does not work here. The only alternative is to reach out to emergency, which is far more convenient. We have been given several attempts to notify the administration, and nothing has been done to change this.

Thank you for your kind attention.

John Carbone

Flood Area

Sunday morning, October 13th, the ground floor of Champagnat, the female R.A’s security was jeopardized by a flood. Glazed turn out to verify this situation, would think to secure the area.

But why does it take so long to get someone to the scene? Is it because of the flood, or would someone really want to investigate, and is it worth it to call our friends out of bed? The Monday students do this all the time. They can do nothing about the flood, but they can do something about the papers. We are all in agreement on this issue. The Monday students should be notified of the flood, and the papers should be processed on time.

Making the papers available is just as important as getting them to the dorm. The papers should be cleaned up, and the papers should be made available to the students.

We would like to see the papers made available at a later time, because it is not possible to clean them up before the papers are due.

Sincerely,

Jane Carbone

What next? To receive more information about the papers, of course, we need an answer to the papers. Of course, everyone general around the papers. We are all in agreement on this issue.

But why does it take so long to get someone to the scene? Is it because of the flood, or would someone really want to investigate, and is it worth it to call our friends out of bed? The Monday students do this all the time. They can do nothing about the flood, but they can do something about the papers. We are all in agreement on this issue. The Monday students should be notified of the flood, and the papers should be processed on time.

Making the papers available is just as important as getting them to the dorm. The papers should be cleaned up, and the papers should be made available to the students.

We would like to see the papers made available at a later time, because it is not possible to clean them up before the papers are due.

Sincerely,

Jane Carbone

Guest Speaker: Agnese Nolane

The arrival of the mid-term break is a happy occasion for students and instructors alike. What with the community living in a two-bedroom, all of the students have only our dorms and bars to call home. The only limit that they have is the one they set for themselves.

Some, who are given to problems, would like to have a few hours a week to relax and unwind, or even just to enjoy the company of others.

Agnese Nolane, of the Center for Psychological Development, has been invited to speak on the topic of stress management. She will discuss the importance of taking time to relax and unwind, and will provide some tips on how to do so.

Guest Speaker: Agnese Nolane

The arrival of the mid-term break is a happy occasion for students and instructors alike. What with the community living in a two-bedroom, all of the students have only our dorms and bars to call home. The only limit that they have is the one they set for themselves.

Some, who are given to problems, would like to have a few hours a week to relax and unwind, or even just to enjoy the company of others.

Agnese Nolane, of the Center for Psychological Development, has been invited to speak on the topic of stress management. She will discuss the importance of taking time to relax and unwind, and will provide some tips on how to do so.

Guest Speaker: Agnese Nolane

The arrival of the mid-term break is a happy occasion for students and instructors alike. What with the community living in a two-bedroom, all of the students have only our dorms and bars to call home. The only limit that they have is the one they set for themselves.

Some, who are given to problems, would like to have a few hours a week to relax and unwind, or even just to enjoy the company of others.

Agnese Nolane, of the Center for Psychological Development, has been invited to speak on the topic of stress management. She will discuss the importance of taking time to relax and unwind, and will provide some tips on how to do so.

Guest Speaker: Agnese Nolane

The arrival of the mid-term break is a happy occasion for students and instructors alike. What with the community living in a two-bedroom, all of the students have only our dorms and bars to call home. The only limit that they have is the one they set for themselves.

Some, who are given to problems, would like to have a few hours a week to relax and unwind, or even just to enjoy the company of others.

Agnese Nolane, of the Center for Psychological Development, has been invited to speak on the topic of stress management. She will discuss the importance of taking time to relax and unwind, and will provide some tips on how to do so.
THE CIRCLE

Marist to link with Arboretum...

by Christopher Hogan
Staff writer

Marist is expected to replace its IBM 370-138 computer system sometime early next year with an IBM 4341 system. The new system is expected to handle 3 1/2 times the capacity of the present system, says Marist vice-president Edward Waters.

Waters says the affiliation, which does not deal with any cash flow, will provide Marist with better computer courses that may lead to an undergraduate program in that curriculum, include seminar programs, and result in the grading of affiliated faculty.

The Carey Arboretum, in Millbrook which is scheduled to affiliate itself with Marist today is not just a collection of exotic plants and trees. It is an educational facility that is both fascinating and unique with many different objectives.

The Arboretum is a division of the New York Botanical Garden today that is expected to enhance and advance the education of students in plant science. The Arboretum is open for public tours on Wednesdays and Sundays. More information can be obtained by contacting the Office of the President, states that both institutions will work "in harmony" to "develop educational and research programs of the highest quality."