Grants To Aid Refugees

by Judy DiScipio

"It is immensely rewarding to work with people who are eager to be independent as fast as possible," says Dr. Joseph L. Belanger, professor of language and literature at Marist, where refugees Marist is currently housing. Marist College has recently received a $63,556 grant from the U.S. Office of Refugee Resettlement in Albany and Washington. This grant is providing a seven-year English Language program for Indochinese and other refugees in the Hudson area.

This program, directed by Brother Richard Rapicciotti, is coordinated by Belanger, consists of one-on-one tutoring from eight to thirty hours per week including teaching materials designed for Indochinese speaking people. The program started on Monday, February 9, and will continue for 12 months, ending on January 31, 1983. It is expected that 250 refugees must be taught, but Belanger expects 200 to complete the program. All the students have been refugees, 'so they have few resources, but they are dedicated and intelligent,' comments Belanger. "It is a pleasure to work with them," Most of the tutoring takes place at Marist, but other locations are used. Tutors must be 18 years or older to enroll. They may enter the program at any time. Transportation costs are refundable.

Marist Student Mugged Near Champagnat

by Loretta Kennedy

An apparent mugging took place in the Champagnat parking lot on Monday night involving a Marist student. Dom Crisci, a sophomore, was approached by a 5'11" black man in a blue parka who said "give me your wallet." "I thought he was loaded and coming from Illinois, so I just ignored him," said Crisci. The man then displayed a crowbar. "He grabbed my wallet." "I never saw anyone run so fast," Crisci feels almost certain that the attacker was not a Marist student, and Crisci "never saw anyone run so fast," Crisci feels that the attacker was not a Marist student. Security was unavailable for comment.

Work Study Program Outlined

by Veronica Shea

Among the sources of financial aid at Marist is the College Work-Study Program. It is awarded on the basis of financial need, other financial aid resources available to the student, the student's scholastic ability to maintain a job, and the total work funds available to the College. The program is eighty percent federally allocated; with the remaining twenty percent provided by Marist.

According to Carolyn Koloski, Coordinator in the Job Placement and Development Program, "The total work-study payroll depends on federal allocation, and changes from year to year. It could change with the new administration." Pres. Reagan's planned cutbacks would affect many job locations on campus, since most of them are budgets for work-study. "Most jobs that come in are for work-study," notes Koloski, "so once they run out of work-study funds, that's it. By the end of the school year, nearly forty percent of the students who are eligible for work-study don't find jobs... it's a bad situation."

As it stands now, a student applies for financial aid by May 1 (incoming students by March 1) and finds out over the summer if he or she has received a work-study grant. Upon arrival on campus in September, the student must file a general application with the job placement center. Many new students don't realize that they are responsible for finding their own job once they get here," explains Karen Wells, Director of Financial Aid. "A lot depends on persistence and being at the right place at the right time. I would like to see that changed so that returning students can go back to the same jobs they had. Also, new students would know if they had a job before arriving. Right now, it's hit or miss."

A Burst Bubble

Marist College located in the suburbs of Poughkeepsie on the Hudson River in what seems to be a seedy and quiet part of town, the campus is well off and security patrol the grounds, there is no "bohemia" or the usual signs of student life and I always say that sensation of the major newspaper.

The tension created by the environment was alleviated when taking place in Champagnat parking lot in the early evening will hopefully instill a reminder for greater caution by the student. The "what it's all about" effect that is often the case in the lens of our imagination is disappointful, but what will you find? Howe is it to understand and how is it to be responsible for unpredictable circumstances in the life of someone that is available to escort anyone within the campus? Marist Community is not only depend on ourselves and each other.

Suitcase College

Dear Editor,

I am interested in attending a serious problem concerning our Marist College community. The student body has been greatly divided due to the lack of a solution to the problem. I am writing to you because I believe it is not fair for students to be subjected to this kind of behavior.

For the past two years due to a lack of attention and support from the administration, our campus community has been struggling. We are in need of a solution to this issue and I implore you, the administration, to give us the attention we need.

Sincerely,

Too Much Devotion

Dear Editor,

I am writing to you because I have been noticing a change in the way that our campus community is behaving. I believe that the administration is not doing enough to address this issue.

I would like to be able to address this issue with you and the administration so that we can work together to find a solution.

Sincerely,

Mosaic Returns After 2-Year Hiatus

by Rebecca Warren

This spring will mark the return of the Marist College Mosaic, a publication that has been a staple of student life for the past 25 years. The magazine has been on hiatus for the last two years due to a lack of funding and support from the administration.

The Mosaic is a student-run publication that focuses on art and photography throughout the college and community. It is produced by students from within the Marist College community and is a platform for talented individuals to showcase their work.

The magazine will be back in print starting in April and will feature a variety of art forms, including photography, poetry, and fiction. The publication will be available online and in print at the Marist College bookstore.

Rock Pile

"Elvis is King" formed the design of his new album last weekend in the Charivari announcements and the magazine that was on display at the event. The magazine was titled, "The English Mugs Tour."

The performance centered around these songs and the atmosphere that was created. Elvis said that he was a group effort to release this album. The music was raw, honest and real.

In the city and talent acts in the community, it is evident that such events have taken place in Champagnat parking lot in the early evening will hopefully instill a reminder for greater caution by the students. The "what it's all about" effect that is often the case in the lens of our imagination is disappointful, but what will you find? Howe is it to understand and how is it to be responsible for unpredictable circumstances in the life of someone that is available to escort anyone within the campus? Dad

I am only a freshman here at Marist College and I don't really understand the terminology used by the administration. Please explain to me what "GDMO" stands for and the meaning of those charts.

Heart STOPPERS

By Barry Lewis

Have you ever considered how important your heart is to you? It is the motor of your body and keeps everything moving around. It is like a pump that keeps blood circulating throughout your body, providing oxygen and nutrients to every cell.

The heart is a muscular organ that is about the size of your fist. It has four chambers: two atria and two ventricles. The atria receive blood, and the ventricles pump it out. The heart beats around 72 times per minute at rest, but can speed up to 160 beats per minute during exercise.

In this issue, we'll explore the importance of the heart and discuss some of the ways we can keep it healthy. We'll also look at some of the conditions that can affect the heart, such as heart disease and arrhythmias.

With only five players, the McGann Team led by the O’Donnell brothers led the Cats 9-0. Jimmy played a fine all around game and scored 29 points. The McGanns were led by a sheer in the first game, Miller-Whitney, who was the first player to score for the Cats. Dennis was a surprise entry for the McGanns on a late afternoon.

When Tommy Mutone stepped into the starting lineup for the Union College basketball team, he knew he had a lot to prove. He had been playing basketball for years and had a reputation as a hard worker and a team player. But now, he was facing his biggest challenge yet: the Big Apple Classic.

Tommy was a senior at Union College and had been a star player for the team since his freshman year. He had always been a good athlete, but he knew that he would have to step up his game if he wanted to be successful in the Big Apple Classic.

The Big Apple Classic was a prestigious basketball tournament that took place in New York City. It was a chance for the best college basketball teams in the country to showcase their skills and compete against each other.

Tommy and his teammates were excited about the opportunity to play in the Big Apple Classic. They had trained hard and were ready to take on the challenge of facing some of the biggest names in college basketball.

Hockey Club Victorious (Men win two 4-2, 8-4)

by Tim Breuer

The Marist College hockey club ended their four game losing streak by beating both Best College and P and M Lyons last week at the Mid-Hudson Civic Center.

Mike Walsh, Mike McNamara and Tony Cardone each scored two goals in the game.

Two nights later, Marist won again. This time they handed the loss to P and M Lyons, perhaps the league best team, by a score of 7-5. The game stayed close throughout the entire contest, but it was Marist who had to come from behind. At the end of the first period Marist trailed 4-2, but the second period was controlled totally by Marist. The period ended with the score tied at 5-5. In the third period it was John Kurtz’s crucial shutout work entering the starting lineup. Steve Smith hit for 25 points against Mercy, while Bill Dewinne netted 14 and again led all rebounders with 11.

At Siena, Hasler was again the big offensive story, scoring 30 points with jumpers from every corner. Tony Cardone was again making a strong contribution with 32 points. But Marist could not contain Hasler. In the first half, Siena and Hasler tallied 38 points each. Steve Smith was again making contributions with 10 points. In the second half, the Siena defense finally checked Hasler and he tallied only nine points in the second half. Siena was called out to help. Padilla was admirable in his defense, too. The big man was called out to help against Siena’s entire front line. Marist couldn’t find an offense that would click in the second half either, using both Rufus Cooper and Tony Cardone at the point guard slot during the half. The loss dropped Marist’s Division One record to 0-10 and 9-13 overall. The game was attended by 2,000 fans from Mercy, 6,000 from Marist, and 600 from Siena.

Marist will travel to Monmouth Wednesday.

Congratulations Patty

Patty Powers, Marist's 5'9" guard from Dumont, N.J., scored her 1000th career point recently in a 64-57 loss to St. Francis College. In doing so, she has become the first Marist Women's basketball player in history to reach the 1000 point plateau.

Powers accumulated a total of six points in the game to give her a 1002 career total to date.

Powers initiated her collegiate career as a freshman at Marist in 1977-78. During her 1-year time she scored 200 points and assisted Marist to a 14-6 record. 1979-80 Powers scored 268 points in a 14-6 season.

"Doc's" Deserved Recognition

"You think about those organizations you've been involved in, and that's the most important thing. Soccer has been my whole life and possibly the greatest enjoyment I have received from the sport is the popularity of the sport in the United States. There are basically two reasons for this surge of soccer in America, and the first has to do with the arrival of Pelé.

I also feel that we finally have a generation of youth soccer in this country. In the past, soccer would have grown anyway, but between Pelé and our youth's interest in the sport, I feel that even soon soccer will surpass football and baseball as the key player in America. The exciting thing is why it has taken this long.

Whereas, through long years of dedication to the youth of this country in the field of his chosen sport, he has shown seeds of sportmanship and good character.

Marinovich quote is part of the inscription hanging in the office of Howard "Doc" Goldman in the room, which is part of the McCann Center, stands numerous awards for 'teach-fines and conference titles, but only one award best exemplifies the time and dedication that "Doc" Goldman has put into the sport of soccer. The Lamar College Soccer Awards, given by the National Soccer Coaches Association of America, are total of 37 years, and his own Marist's own Doctor of Soccer received the honor at an awards dinner not too long ago.

"The award was given to three coaches in the United States for time and effort that they put into the game, and I happen to be one of those gentlemen," explained Doc, reflecting on that night. "One coach was from the U.S. National Team while the other is an old friend from William Patterson College in N.J. When I went to the dinner, I truly had no idea about the award, and when my name was called, I just sat there and said "George, that's nice. Oh, that's me."
