Two CSL officers step down from their posts
by Steven A. Berger

Two members of the Council of Student Leaders last week resigned their positions due to personal reasons.

Keith Griffin, a senior from East Harlem, said, "As vice president of the CSL, Griffin had been devoting too much time to the job, a student government organization." He also said that he had no authority to do anything, and that he was only doing what Keith Galanti (CSL President) had told him to do.

Galanti said Griffin has not performed any duties as vice president this year. "I have not had a chance to talk to him," he said. Griffin said that he was resigning because of the "charge of bringing you against you." Keith Newbury, a senior from the Mid-Hudson Civic Center, has also resigned from his position as president of the Non-Traditional Student Organization. "I didn't have enough time," said Newbury. "I am an accounting major this year and I have a heavy load," he added.

Newbury said it was not yet known who would take his place. Galanti has appointed Greg Lunt, a junior from LaGrange, to be the new CSL vice president. Lunt serves as president of the Commuter Union last year.

Luna said his experience will help with the running of this year's government. "I'll be able to give advice on what will and won't work and what to do about it," he said.

Griffin, according to Luna, was not available. "I am not going to do the job," he said. "I have some other things happening right now." Luna said he was involved with Circle of Phi Epsilon. "I am the president of this organization," he said.

Galanti's ideas, on student government, are his. "I only desire to get involved," he said. "I don't see it (the government) as an individual's government. It is a representative of different parts of the student body. Keith (Galanti) has good ideas. His personal conduct is not up to par, but his government is a whole," he said.

Galanti said he was not available. "I am not going to do the job," he said. According to Galanti, Griffin was "not available" on campus enough to do the job. "He (Griffin) had the same experience as I did," he said.

Sightless gains new outlook at Marist

by Paul Rotts

Eight years ago, Paul Migliorelli was not too sure what the future held in store for him. He had been born to a blind family in New York City prior to 1977. Migliorelli, a 22 year old from Half Moon, NY, can now tell you that his life has been transformed.

"When I started looking into the distance, the world was like a blurred image," Migliorelli said. "I didn't know anything about what was out there."

"But now," Migliorelli said, "I can see the world as it really is. I can see the colors, I can see the shapes, I can see the people."

"I can see the world as it really is," Migliorelli said, "and I can see the people."

You know what kind of kids have the charm they were? The ones who know how to blossom without the pressure to be perfect, to look good, to be popular. The ones who know how to love themselves, to be kind, to be curious, to be open to new experiences. The ones who know how to fail, to make mistakes, to learn from them. The ones who know how to cherish the moments they have, to appreciate the people in their lives, to hold on to memories, to let go of regrets. The ones who know how to make the most of every day, to savor the little things, to find joy in the ordinary. The ones who know how to be present, to be mindful, to be grateful. The ones who know how to be themselves, to be authentic, to be true to themselves. The ones who know how to be happy, to be content, to be at peace.

From burlesque to Bardavon

The chance to see a classic film is not to be missed. So, if you feel that you are missing a bit of the action, jump into the film. It's a film that's still relevant today, with its themes of love, loss, and redemption.

The film’s plot follows a young couple who are struggling to make ends meet in the big city. They meet a charismatic older man who offers to take them under his wing, and together they face the challenges of love and loyalty. The film is a poignant reminder of the power of love and the importance of following your heart.

Yankee francs
Excursions in eating
by Paul Walsh & Luchelle Buffa

When in Paris, a loaf of bread, a cafe overlooking the Seine, a film screening at the cinema — life is good. But... it's also expensive. So, when we encountered only two problems:

-40 francs for a baguette
-37 francs for a bottle of wine

maybe only one problem) and the stress was blinding.

Planning to travel to Paris for the holidays? Here's a tip: get stuck in the American Airlines lounge in JFK airport. It's a great way to see the world without the hassle of actually leaving our country.

An American airline ticket to Paris can set you back $1,000 or more. But with a little planning, you can save hundreds and still have a great trip.

Here are some tips for flying American to Paris:

1. Book your flight as far in advance as possible.
2. Keep an eye out for special deals and discounts.
3. Consider booking a connecting flight to save you money.
4. Avoid holidays and peak travel times.

So, pack your bags and get ready to enjoy your trip to Paris! And don't forget to bring some cash, as the French franc is not as widely accepted as the dollar.

Poughkeepsie Marine wounded

by Jason Stewart

For Katie Moody of Poughkeepsie, a picture popped up from a thousand words. It posed her a dilemma.

Moody was shown a news photo of her son,
Markus Drury, a United States Marine in Beirut, Liberia. Drury was wounded in Beirut, when flak from an aircraft passed over him.

Moody was unable to reach her son when she heard about the bombing. She believed she saw him being carried on a stretcher to a relaxed aircraft. She was not with him when he died.

Markus, 21, was killed in Beirut on Oct. 23. He was round to be at the Marine's Command Post in Beirut on Sunday, surrounded by rubble. He was absent from maneuvers before the explosion.

A picture of Markus was taken after the explosion, and handed down to Katie Moody.

Katie said she heard the news at 10 p.m. on Tuesday. She was informed by her husband who was with the Marine in Beirut.

Katie went to the hospital in search of her son. Two days later, she received a call from the Marines.

"They were more confident, very confident,"
Katie said, "The Marine said he was not dead."

Katie said that she knew immediately that the picture was her son. Markus Drury was a Marine in Beirut. He was stationed in Lebanon after graduating from Poughkeepsie High School.

On Thursday, Markus Drury was brought to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie. He had been wounded because his face was swollen in the picture, "I was just happy that he wasn't dead."

Moody spoke to her son for the first time after the attack on the following Wednesday. She said that her son told her that he had been surprised.

Katie said that her son enjoys being in the Marines. She added that she is not opposed to the Marines being stationed in Lebanon as long as they are given the opportunity to defend themselves.

Journalist lambs Kissinger

by Mark Hart

- Describing Henry Kissinger as a "Vindictive, callous, petulant, putrid, dishonest, power-hungry, accuser," the author, Mark Hart, writes about his new book "The Price of Power." Hart has worked as a reporter for the New York Times and was a Pulitzer prize winner in 1969 for his book "Vietnam: The Paradox." He also covered the Camp David Accords in 1974, a speech which is described as the turning point for the American foreign policy and international affair.

- Richard Nixon knew he was in trouble when he decided to break into the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate Hotel, according to Hart. He said Kissinger was enraged when he found out about the break-in, and Hart said Nixon had been "outraged" by the break-in.

- According to Hart, Kissinger was a "malignant" figure who "tormented" people with his "scurrilous" attacks. He said Kissinger's "vindictive" nature was a "hallmark" of his political career.

Hart noted that there were five peace offers in Vietnam in August and September of 1972, and he wrote that Kissinger and North Vietnamese Prime Minister Le Duc Tho rejected all of them.

- "The Price of Power" is being directed by actor Paul Gassar, of Huntington, N.Y., as Mr. Marisi, a character that is described as "a colorful" figure in history.

- Kissinger was also involved in the Watergate scandal, according to Hersh. He said Kissinger's involvement in the Watergate scandal was "a major factor" in the popularity of the book.

Hart also noted that Kissinger's relationship with Richard Nixon was "complex" and "fraught." He said Kissinger's relationship with Nixon was "a constant source of tension" and "a source of frustration."
Marist loses 2 before Pace

Marist was the Coast Guard's quarterback, and the Foxes won 3-0. However, Marist could not hold off a strong pacing attack. Coast Guard gained 294 yards in the air.

Pace scored on a 13-yard pass to tie the score, then kicked the extra point holding a 13-7 lead late in the fourth quarter, but was forced to punt on the last play of the game. It was quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

For More than a generation, Franklin D. Roosevelt called upon the American people to "Register. It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law." It was a simple but powerful message. It spoke to the nation's confidence in its democratic institutions and its commitment to freedom.

Marist's Women's Basketball team is in the midst of a season filled with excitement and promise. Under the guidance of Head Coach Dr. Howard Hoffman, the team is off to a solid start, building momentum with each game.

We recently had the opportunity to speak with Coach Hoffman about his team's progress and what the future holds.

Coach Hoffman: "We're playing better now. The team is growing confidence in their abilities, and we're starting to see results on the court. We've been working hard on our defense and we're starting to see some improvements there. Our offense is also starting to click, and we're playing with a lot of energy and intensity."
Weller's 3 touchdowns lift Foxes to third win

by John Bakke

The long-awaited third victory finally came for the football Foxes as they defeated the Pace Setters 27-10 at home last Saturday.

Warren Weller put on a show for the 1,016 fans at Leonidoff Field by clicking two touchdown passes and returning an onside kickoff for another, as well as running 22 yards out of his own end zone on a key fourth-down play in the fourth quarter.

Weller's efforts broke his own Marist record for receiving yardage in a game and tied both the single-game scoring and season touchdown reception records.

The senior wide receiver caught eight passes for 160 yards, including 66- and 25-yard touchdowns in a game and tied both the single-game scoring and season touchdown reception records.

The senior wide receiver caught eight passes for 160 yards, including 66- and 25-yard touchdowns by Cindy Cleary. That yardage total eclipsed his own mark of 134, set last year against RPI.

The two touchdown catches raised his season total to four, tying Mike Spawn's 1980 record. In scoring 18 points, Weller also tied the single-game total that Preston Felton scored against Ramapo in 1980.

"He just had a great day," said Weller about the play that continued on page 14.

Tony Oliver carries the ball in the first quarter of last Saturday's game. Oliver finished the day with 33 yards.

Season ends for women's tennis; coach pleased with team effort

Marist's defense had an outstanding day in holding Pace to 10 points. "The whole defensive line had a great game and Franklin Davis, our safety, did a good job on the coverage," said Weller, the winning defensive back.

Players gave a variety of reasons for the winning effort. "Before, it was like 'we've got to win,'" said Weller. "Today, nobody went into the game worrying about winning and losing. We just went out and played. Winning took care of itself.

Duffy said the team was determined to get the win. "We know they wanted to come in and beat us," he said. "We were out to hurt them, plain and simple.

Coach Mike Malat said the crowd was an asset. "The fans were super. We could bear them yelling all game long," he said. "It was the most satisfying win I've ever had, besides being number one, we've never beaten Pace.

The game got off to a slow start. Just on the third play from scrimmage, Tony Oliver fumbled and the ball went out of the Marist 40. Although Pace failed to score, the Fox offense continued toounder until well into the second quarter. Marist took a slim 7-0 lead into halftime, and still held that lead in the third quarter, when it faced a second-and-ten play at its own 1-yard line.

"The corner back was up in my face," said Weller about the play.
