Marist makes adjustments for its largest class

by Christopher Serafini

The freshman pondered his class on the lawn of the McCaney Center, before rushing off to Fontaine Hall to run over to the Bio Lab in the basement of Leo Hall.

"I don't think I'll ever get over this," said Miss Zemba, "I couldn't believe I was standing there talking to these top designers. I feel sorry for anyone who has to take a class there (downtown Leo Hall)." When we were in there, it was so hot and stuffy we couldn't study. So we moved outside and had class on the lawn. Leo is a residence hall and not a suitable classroom," she said.

The small classroom in Leo is not the only location that has been questioned. Every Tuesday at 10 a.m., 20 students meet in the biology lab of Donnelly for a class in TV production.

"It's hard to get anything accomplished there," said塔 Hartmans, junior. "There is not enough space, not enough seats, and a big la is not the place to have a class of this nature." The sentiments are not the only members of the Marist community who have something to say about the present space situation.

"We built new dorms," one faculty member said, "so why not enough classrooms? We've been told that the renovations building will have classroom space, but what are we going to do until then?"

"I just don't understand it," said President Dennis Murray and his President Andrew Molloy.

Questions raised about dorm delay

by Ellena Hayes

Although Marist housing officials have told parents and students that a laborers’ strike delayed completion of the new freshman dorm, the contractor on the project says Marist was told in May that the building would not be finished until the second week of September.

A completion date of Sept. 7 to Sept. 10 was quoted in a letter to student parents. The letter was signed by Fred Eberhard Sr., project manager for Eberhard Construction's work on the dorm.

The laborers struck in July for one and one half weeks, Eberhard said. "We had a small problem, but we managed to work around it."

Eberhard said the strike happened during the DS section when crews were completing the demolition of the old structure and pouring concrete for the first floor. "When the strike came, we did other work that did not involve laborers. We could hold off on that," he said.

Construction laborers assist carpenters, help pour concrete and do general excavation work. Eberhard said the tradesmen—manac, carpenters, plumbers and electricians — were still able to do their jobs until the strike was over.

Eberhard said the strike was irritating, but the problem of the construction was trying to complete a job that normally takes nine months in only three months.

Eberhard now estimates the second floor of the new dormitory will be inhabitable about Sept. 20.

"I thought the builders had indicated it would be open by Sept. 7," he said in an interview last week.

Student reactions — page 6

One completion date of mid-September. "This is the first I know the builder had indicated it would not be completed on time," he said.

"I was so nice to me," said Miss Zemba. "I couldn't believe I was standing there talking to these top designers. Perry Ellis actually complimented me on my designs and here he is the maker of $16,000 dresses!"

"I'd never have thought I'd be to hit the water like a dive," said Jim Murphy. "At the end of the day, I'd just keep thinking it was a dream, but I felt the wind on my face and realized it wasn't."

Murphy had dreamed about falling before, and specifically dreamed about falling from section 58, the section he was to work. He had planned to keep his arm outstretched and his hand off the helmet. He broke the arm, but for one Marist student, the fact that he is alive to tell his story is the only thing that matters.

"I thought I'm too young! This can't be happening to me!" Murphy said.

When Murphy was falling Murphy knew the best thing to do would be to hit the water like a dive, head first with his arms and head tucked to his chest. "I kept my arm outstretched, but I had realized Murphy was told the day before he would work on that section."

"I was so excited going down," he said. "Then when I hit the water, I looked up and saw the bridge, and I realized I was still alive."

"I want to be a designer but I don't know how if I want it in two years or in ten years," said Miss Zemba.

"I'm not the only one feeling designs and sketches. The show is set to air the following week."

"I've never had anything this kind of experience before. I need the kind of experience college can't give," she said.

When asked how she became interested in fashion design, Miss Zemba said, "I've always loved clothes and I've been interested in creating student designs for a long time."

"I've never had anything this kind of experience before. I need the kind of experience college can't give me. When I feel ready, then I'll go on my own," she said.
You are cordially invited to...

The Circle
Organizational Meeting
7 p.m. Sunday

All students are invited to the office and studios for an open house from 1:30

Remember WMCR Weekend is This Weekend

All new and old staff members should attend

CAPUTO'S PIZZA
473-2500
Hot & Cold Subs • Salads • Calzones • Italian Dinners
Eat In — Take Out

Delivery 5:00 to Closing

LARGE PIE $5.00 — Extra Items $1.00

"You are cordially invited to...

The Circle
Organizational Meeting
7 p.m. Sunday

All students are invited to the office and studios for an open house from 1:30

Remember WMCR Weekend is This Weekend

All new and old staff members should attend

CAPUTO'S PIZZA
473-2500
Hot & Cold Subs • Salads • Calzones • Italian Dinners
Eat In — Take Out

Delivery 5:00 to Closing

LARGE PIE $5.00 — Extra Items $1.00

Musician singer to tour Middle East

during the month of September.

Nativity, the Measure and the Chapel of St. Jerome in Rome.

The circle will then be divided into three groups. Each group will have six members of the group will be performing concerts under the direction of Msgr. James Del Vecchio. The circle will also be composed of four members of the group will perform in the Egyptian Museum in Cairo and a festival in Croatia, which will include the choir's participation in the performance of a local music festival. The circle will also be performing in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Rome.

Lecture at WMCR

HC Post Office Box 570

To: All Students

Subject: Open House

We would like to invite you to our open house on Sunday, September 15.

The open house will be held from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the conference room located on the first floor of the library.

We will be serving refreshments and snacks, and there will be a drawing for a chance to win a prize.

Please come and join us for this special event.

Sincerely,

The Staff of WMCR
Readers Write

Dear Editor:

I am an incoming student of Marist College. I feel that the application materials for Marist are quite ineffective in my case to understand my abilities in my final year of high school. Please send me the application materials of the college.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

Frosh Reacts

enjoy seeing the same people each and every day. It makes the

Mary Bennet

triple up in rooms or live in the gameroom of

Dear Christine,

I am a new student at Marist and I am wondering why there is such a large emphasis on new students to get involved in different clubs and activities on campus. For example, there is a club for every interest like music, writing, and even a club for video gaming. I understand the importance of getting involved in different activities, but I am also looking for a place to socialize and make new friends. Is there something like a social club for new students to get to know each other?

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my concern about the noise level in the dorms at Marist College. It can be quite disruptive, especially after hours. I have noticed that some students leave their doors open while they are sleeping, which can be quite loud. Is there anything that can be done to address this issue?

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]
Eleven profs join Marist full-time faculty

by Robert L. Lafray

More freshmen interviewed
by Robert B. Lafray

Newsmen speak about housing issue

by Jane M. Scarchilli

Freshmen speak out about housing issue, according to Tana Griffin said.

West Haverstraw, N.Y., said that Dougherty, there were very few happy about the new dorm, "had an odor when he moved in."

Naumann is one of the 66 new professors.

Although he lives in a modified residence hall, he shares his room in the Sheahan basement with several other people living there.

"It's really nice. We have a big bedroom easily fits three people," Rock said.

Mary's in Newburgh.

"There was no phone, no television, no sink of our sneakers in the living room," she said.

"He hasn't complained about the noise," she said.

"There are no phones, no vending machines, no storage, no cars, no view, no television, no traffic to the dorm," said Chris "Matty" W. from Iowa.

"I'm not getting," she said. "All I'm doing is paying for a dorm that I'm not using." She obtained her M.A. at the University of Massachusetts, where she taught as a graduate student.

"It's really nice. We have a big bedroom, easily fits three people," Rock said.

"No one would sign," she said.

"We can't be in the same room," he said.

"There are no phones, no television, no sink of our sneakers in the living room," she said.

"There are no phones, no television, no sink of our sneakers in the living room," she said.

"There are no phones, no television, no sink of our sneakers in the living room," she said.

"He hasn't complained about the noise," she said.
Sue Dee

Playing without standout players Wayne Craig and Mark Adams, the Marist soccer team lost its first two games of the season last week.

Marist failed to score a goal in either game, losing 4-0 last Tuesday at Union College and 5-0 to Syracuse University last Friday night at the Carrier Dome in Syracuse, N.Y.

The St. Francis game included 11 saves by freshman goalkeeper John Montanaro and good performances from sophomores Jim Bridg and Mike Terwilliger.

At Syracuse, Marist faced a team ranked 12th in the nation in the Associated Press pre-season poll, and held them off for the first 35 minutes before allowing five goals in the final 35 minutes. Montanaro had 13 saves and sophomore goalkeeper Bill Tholen had six.

Adams, who would have been a sophomore this year, left school to pursue a career in the Major Indoor Soccer League.

Cargill, also a sophomore and the only player with an athletic scholarship, is ineligible to play this year and will spend the season on the sidelines. In one year with Marist, he set the season scoring record with 26 goals and 12 assists.

The loss of these players should complicate things for Dr. Howard Goldman's team, which went 12-6-1 last year and was ranked seventh in New York State, because this year's schedule is one of the toughest ever. Marist plays six of New York's top teams.

"I'm not optimistic about doing as well as we have in the past," said Goldman. "Besides Cargill and Adams, we lost Lyle Savetti and Tito Diaz. We've lost our top three goalkeepers, but they just can't replace the experience of the ones we've lost.

Marist had to travel to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., yesterday, for their third contest. The game was played for this Saturday at 1:00 p.m. at Leondoff Field, against Fordham. It is the first home game and the first Tri State Conference game on the team's 19-game schedule.

Goldman's team will play another home game next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. against Southern Connecticut State.

Soccer team scoreless in first two losses

After the honeymoon

by Kathleen Driscoll

Sue Deer, four-year woman's basketball coach, has resigned and will not be returning for this year's basketball season. Job-related pressures were the cause of the departure. Deer said in a letter to team member Joyce Faccoli, the only senior on the team.

In the letter, Deer explained that she would be moving on to another coaching position at a junior college where the workload would be less demanding.

Team members were shocked and saddened when Deer informed them of her resignation, each with a personal letter concerning her decision and bidding her farewells.

Another teammate, Una Geoghegan, commented that Deer was disappointed with her present job responsibility.

When questioned about the new job, she explained, "I am the new head coach at the University of Connecticut this year, as the assistant coach and will be traveling with the team to all of the games."

Deer had left the team to accept the position of assistant coach at New Haven College, which is a junior college in Connecticut.

Sue Dee resigned from her position as the head coach of the Marist women's basketball team last week, leaving the team without a coach for the upcoming season.

Thursday Morning Quarterback

John Bakke

"I'm not optimistic about doing as well as we have in the past," said Goldman. "Besides Cargill and Adams, we lost Lyle Savetti and Tito Diaz. We've lost our top three goalkeepers, but they just can't replace the experience of the ones we've lost.

Marist had to travel to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., yesterday, for their third contest. The game was played for this Saturday at 1:00 p.m. at Leondoff Field, against Fordham. It is the first home game and the first Tri State Conference game on the team's 19-game schedule.

Goldman's team will play another home game next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. against Southern Connecticut State.

Soccer team scoreless in first two losses

After the honeymoon

by Kathleen Driscoll

Sue Deer, four-year woman's basketball coach, has resigned and will not be returning for this year's basketball season. Job-related pressures were the cause of the departure. Deer said in a letter to team member Joyce Faccoli, the only senior on the team.

In the letter, Deer explained that she would be moving on to another coaching position at a junior college where the workload would be less demanding.

Team members were shocked and saddened when Deer informed them of her resignation, each with a personal letter concerning her decision and bidding her farewells.

Another teammate, Una Geoghegan, commented that Deer was disappointed with her present job responsibility.

When questioned about the new job, she explained, "I am the new head coach at the University of Connecticut this year, as the assistant coach and will be traveling with the team to all of the games."

Deer had left the team to accept the position of assistant coach at New Haven College, which is a junior college in Connecticut.

Sue Dee resigned from her position as the head coach of the Marist women's basketball team last week, leaving the team without a coach for the upcoming season.

Thursday Morning Quarterback

John Bakke

"I'm not optimistic about doing as well as we have in the past," said Goldman. "Besides Cargill and Adams, we lost Lyle Savetti and Tito Diaz. We've lost our top three goalkeepers, but they just can't replace the experience of the ones we've lost.

Marist had to travel to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., yesterday, for their third contest. The game was played for this Saturday at 1:00 p.m. at Leondoff Field, against Fordham. It is the first home game and the first Tri State Conference game on the team's 19-game schedule.

Goldman's team will play another home game next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. against Southern Connecticut State.

Soccer team scoreless in first two losses

After the honeymoon

by Kathleen Driscoll

Sue Deer, four-year woman's basketball coach, has resigned and will not be returning for this year's basketball season. Job-related pressures were the cause of the departure. Deer said in a letter to team member Joyce Faccoli, the only senior on the team.

In the letter, Deer explained that she would be moving on to another coaching position at a junior college where the workload would be less demanding.

Team members were shocked and saddened when Deer informed them of her resignation, each with a personal letter concerning her decision and bidding her farewells.

Another teammate, Una Geoghegan, commented that Deer was disappointed with her present job responsibility.

When questioned about the new job, she explained, "I am the new head coach at the University of Connecticut this year, as the assistant coach and will be traveling with the team to all of the games."

Deer had left the team to accept the position of assistant coach at New Haven College, which is a junior college in Connecticut.

Sue Dee resigned from her position as the head coach of the Marist women's basketball team last week, leaving the team without a coach for the upcoming season.

Thursday Morning Quarterback

John Bakke

"I'm not optimistic about doing as well as we have in the past," said Goldman. "Besides Cargill and Adams, we lost Lyle Savetti and Tito Diaz. We've lost our top three goalkeepers, but they just can't replace the experience of the ones we've lost.

Marist had to travel to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., yesterday, for their third contest. The game was played for this Saturday at 1:00 p.m. at Leondoff Field, against Fordham. It is the first home game and the first Tri State Conference game on the team's 19-game schedule.

Goldman's team will play another home game next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. against Southern Connecticut State.