Burglars strike 2 townhouses

Resident of townhouses C-1 and B-3 awoke late Thursday morning to discover they had been burglarized during the night.

According to Poughkeepsie Town Police, goods valued at $775 were taken.

The list was broken down as follows: a Technic tape deck, $150; a stereo receiver, $275; an AKAI tape deck, $150; and a Schwinn Le Tour bicycle, $200.

According to Ed Koch, Jr., a resident of C-1, in addition to the stereo equipment and the bicycle, running jackets worth $80 were taken, but not discovered missing until late Friday and were not entered on the police report.

The burglary occurred sometime between 1:30 a.m. and 6 a.m. Thursday and the police were called at 9:34 a.m.

There were no suspects as of Tuesday and it is presumed that the culprits are persons from outside the Marist community, police said.

The apparent point of entry at both townhouses was an unlocked front door.

According to Koch, the residents in C-1 used to leaving the door unlocked.

"Some of the guys didn't have keys until a couple of days before the robbery," he said.

According to Paul Burke of Marist Security, the keys were given to Barry Jamison, North End residence director, but never picked up. The keys were then returned to Burke and picked up by some of the residents.

Jamison said that the keys were available, prior to the burglary and that the college could not be held responsible, noting that other residents of C-1 had known the keys were available and had picked them up.

"We try to stress to lock the townhouses," Jamison said, "and this is the hard way to learn."

Oct. 6 set for debut of delayed '83 Reynard

The 1982-83 edition of the Marist yearbook, Reynard, will be available for distribution in late October, two months later than the original distribution date, according to Rick O'Donnell, editor-in-chief of the 1983-84 Reynard committee.

O'Donnell said that the committee went through at least three editor changes and "it just didn't go."

According to a source on the Reynard staff, there were many deadlines missed in the spring that contributed to the delayed distribution.

The first editor, Rich Dougherty, resigned early in the year because he did not have time.

The second editor, Chris Cagliardti, "was not doing it," said O'Donnell. "It got passed on."

"She knew about layout, but she bit off a little more than she could chew," said Nicolete Filanino, this year's director of sales and advertising.

The responsibility was then passed on to Carol Burke, who was a senior, preparing for graduation, according to O'Donnell, and didn't have time to finish the task.

Burke later returned during the summer and the yearbook was completed.

O'Donnell said that the Student Activities Office has gotten phone calls about the yearbook.

Don Eustace, photographer for the 1983-84 Reynard, said "The students were upset. I was upset.

We had to work on a yearbook that should have been out in August. We're the '84 staff."

O'Donnell said that this year's Reynard will be better.

"This year," he said, "we were allocated a lot more money, we have the best people from last year, and good new people. It looks to be a much better yearbook."

Marist considers dorm name

Marian Hall is being considered as a name for the new freshman dormitory, according to Gerard A. Cox, dean of student affairs.

"Marian Hall would be a very good name because it is a symbol of the history of Marist College," said Cox.

When Marist was first founded in 1946 the college was known as Marian College. Most of the actual construction was done by the brothers, who at that time made up the faculty and administration.

The first building which was built by the brothers was the gym.

"Now with the new dorm being built right where the old gym was, and even using the actual brick walls of the old gym," said Cox, "it is very symbolic of the college's growth, living on our past to strive forward," he said.

Cox said that the final decision will not come until November when it is brought to the board of trustees, but Cox said that he is hopeful that the dorm will be named Marian Hall.

"It's very important to pay attention to the college's history," said Cox. "The Old Gym was an important part of the college, and something to recapture the Old Gym."

Keeping in mind Cox said that a plaque with the dorm's name will be put on a column of bricks which was part of the old gym. It is located in the front staircase which leads to the second floor. This is where the dedicating ceremony will take place.

Students seemed to be taking the possible new name in stride. Most of the upperclassmen thought it is acceptable, if not typical name for the dorm. Some even had their own ideas such as Bunko Stone, as opposed to Grey Stone, Wench Hall, and even Woody Hall. Though as one senior, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "You can call it whatever you like, but to me it will still be the Old Gym."

Lights on Linda

Junior Linda Zemba has the eye for the camera as she discusses her winning sketches and drawings on P.M. Magazine. She was voted out of Fashion awards.

P.M. Magazine visited Miss Zemba on Sept. 16 and filmed her at various locations on the Marist College campus.

(photos by Gina Franciscovich)

Inside The Circle

CSL hands out club funds

Marist student remembered

Murray authors new book

Football team wins opener
Survey predicts job rise

A strong upward trend in the post-recession hiring process is expected in the third quarter and beyond, according to a quarterly survey conducted by Manpower, Inc., the world's largest employment agency.

According to the quarterly poll conducted by Manpower, 34% of companies surveyed said they are planning to add staff in the third quarter, while only 7% expect a cutback. The figures are close enough to indicate a trend in hiring, said Robert S. Fromstein, president of Manpower, Inc.

"The hiring indications by employers for the third quarter are very close to the level of concern of economists that there is a trend in hiring," he said. "The new hiring figures are not used to submit our report, but they are used to put in the second quarter."
Some friends

Our first few weeks at Marist have been filled with welcome back parties, mixers and outings with friends. But that's not to say it has been easy. Amid all the celebrations, there have been instances where I have wanted to cry. Why? Two stilettos have been robbed of stereo equipment and I lost my own wallet, too. I was left with nothing. And it's not just me. Other student friends have reported similar experiences. It seems to be an impossible task to try and comprehend what all the excitement is about. I am not sure if this is a normal thing to occur, especially at Marist. Up until recently I haven’t been able to find something I can’t remember hearing about something

The name game

It’s bad enough the new dorms weren’t comedown on time, and that’s why they called the “New Residence Hall” while top administrators scratch their heads trying to figure out what it means. The dorms are nothing. By the time these things are, usually nights out with friends. But that’s not the case. It’s difficult to remember to put those “friends” who sneak in during the middle of the night. Perhaps a large portion of Marist’s dorm population can’t pronounce words. Our first few weeks at Marist have been interesting. During my two years here, I have heard about something nightmareish.

Audition problems

I am a freshman who is in in honor of our hardworking students. I am a part. It was quite obvious that this whole issue is an unpleasant cycle, one that I have experienced. This is what I thought were very unimportant. Despite this, I was called to the Office to see what was up. The Office is a place where everyone knows, and are. Usually it is not a friendly place. So much for dreams. The evidence shows that some people are only concerned with themselves, at the expense of others. This is what I expected. During my two years here, I have heard about something geht. Lion’s share of Marist’s dorm population is comprised of a string of names such as “Boddy,” “Melody” and “Boo.” It was quite obvious that this is all that matters.

Correction

Last week’s story on Linda Zolpa was in error about the date of her appearance on PM Magazine. The segment about her was on Oct. 8, according to the Marist Public Relations Office.

Rodey film for fans only

EASY MONEY. Rodney Dangerfield, Norman Lovitz and John Brucoli are three of the stars in “Easy Money,” a film about a little boy who can’t hold still or keep quiet. While the parents can’t sit in the box, the little boy can. This is the kind of film that would make a boy want to see again his fate. For Chrissakes, Rodney gets an Oscar blessing! It’s a great film that it is the right film at the right time at the right price. As a whole, “Easy Money” belongs in the category of “easy.”

Sound barrier

These LP’s are sure to please

BODIES & SOULS. MANHATTAN TRANSFER.

The latest release from The Manhattan Transfer is a definite winner. This conveys some of the excitement of being in New York. On this last studio album, "Slippery Like Soap," the group has adopted a new producer, Michael Rubini, replacing Jay Graydon.

The sides of the album are organized into ("BODIES") and ("SOULS"). "Bodies" is the first side, and includes the latest single, "Year of the Cat," as R&B infused featuring a harmonica solo by Bruce Woodard. Other candidates for cutters are, the ballad-like, "In the Middle of Our Love," and the upbeat cut, "It's Not Enough." "Soul" brings the Transfers back home with their own instrumentation and vocal arrangements intertwined with sharp instrumental solos, rich vocal harmonies and a soulful voice from Capp."The Transfers.

These LP’s are sure to please

Our first few weeks at Marist have been filled with welcome back parties, mixers and outings with friends. But that's not to say it has been easy. Amid all the celebrations, there have been instances where I have wanted to cry. Why? Two stilettos have been robbed of stereo equipment and I lost my own wallet, too. I was left with nothing. And it's not just me. Other student friends have reported similar experiences. It seems to be an impossible task to try and comprehend what all the excitement is about. I am not sure if this is a normal thing to occur, especially at Marist. Up until recently I haven’t been able to find something I can’t remember hearing about something.

The name game

It’s bad enough the new dorms weren’t comedown on time, and that’s why they called the “New Residence Hall” while top administrators scratch their heads trying to figure out what it means. The dorms are nothing. By the time these things are, usually nights out with friends. But that’s not the case. It’s difficult to remember to put those “friends” who sneak in during the middle of the night. Perhaps a large portion of Marist’s dorm population can’t pronounce words. Our first few weeks at Marist have been interesting. During my two years here, I have heard about something nightmareish.

Audition problems

I am a freshman who is in in honor of our hardworking students. I am a part. It was quite obvious that this whole issue is an unpleasant cycle, one that I have experienced. This is what I thought were very unimportant. Despite this, I was called to the Office to see what was up. The Office is a place where everyone knows, and are. Usually it is not a friendly place. So much for dreams. The evidence shows that some people are only concerned with themselves, at the expense of others. This is what I expected. During my two years here, I have heard about something geht. Lion’s share of Marist’s dorm population is comprised of a string of names such as “Boddy,” “Melody” and “Boo.” It was quite obvious that this is all that matters.

Correction

Last week’s story on Linda Zolpa was in error about the date of her appearance on PM Magazine. The segment about her was on Oct. 8, according to the Marist Public Relations Office.
The last remaining argument for fat pads has just been shot full of holes.

Introducing Funnel-Dot Protection

276 tiny dots tell you our New Freedom® Thin maxi pads are not just another thin. They’re a whole new kind of protection.

We call it Funnel-Dot. Protection never felt drier!

The Inner Core absorbs and distributes fluid evenly the entire length of the pad. Helps prevent leakage, side staining.

Funnel-Dot Protection means you never felt drier—even with a regular maxi.

---

CAPUTO'S PIZZA
473-2500

Hot & Cold Subs • Salads • Calzones • Italian Dinners

Eat In — Take Out

Delivery 5:00 to Closing

LARGE PIE $5.00 — Extra Items $1.00

$5.00 Min. Delivery Order
Marist worker led search effort
by Kerry Jeffre
and Lina Arroyo

Finding a neighbor's baby was the first thing Marist freshman Isabelle Sibert learned in her statistics class for people who want to help the intellectually disabled. But her efforts were rewarded when Sister Patricia O'Connell '54 discovered that Isabelle had found one of her neighbors, a three-year-old boy, lost in a Montrose Park classroom.

"I get off work at one, I would have been right there, I was so close to finding him," she said. "The boy's body was found out side down. He was found two blocks away.

In a show of support for Isabelle, O'Connell '54 and Marist College staff members stepped up to help her. Isabelle and her classmates were awarded an extra credit assignment for their good work.

Number of tutors on rise
by Claudia Brags

More students were needed this year at the Learning Center that in past years according to Barbara Carpero, coordinator of the Learning Center. The Learning Center staff is recommended for this semester.

Carpero said, she is always looking for prospective tutors.

"One thing that is done is that we have a first year seminar which the first time I have a special number of them," said Carpero, who prefers English or Communications majors for the program. She averages an average of 30 for writing assignments.

Tutors are required to prepare one hour a day for each student. Each week's tutor is given assignments to review, outline or write notes, and present to the student, but it is their own work where I can train to be a tutor in seminars in the future," Carpero said.

Carpero has the academic average that will maintain a 3.0 or better in their major or could make an "A" or "B" in it. In addition to having the recommendation of the instructor, said Carpero, students must meet periodically with the instructor in their subject and be at least 18 years old, and evaluated by Marist College's Testing Center.

Although she sees opportunities for future tutors in the future. Second-year students can work for "the Learning Center for the academic year," she noted. This way you can practice writing on your own and see how you can improve your writing skills.

Open 24 Hours
473-1576

PALACE Diner & Restaurant

Breakfast Lunch - Dinner

Fresh Seafood - Steaks - Chops
Cocktails - Baking on Premises

Show your colledge card and get a FREE Glass of Beer with your meal! 7% DISCOUNT

194 WASHINGTON STREET POUGHKEEPSIE, NEW YORK (Next to All Sport. A short walk from Marist)
Marist learns to live with new bottle law

By Leslie A. Heinrich

New York’s new nickel-a-bottle beverage container deposit law went into effect last month – much to the consternation of many Marist College students.

Under the law, the consumer pays a minimum $25 deposit when buying carbonated beverages sold in bottles, cans or plastic containers, at any store in the state. The consumer then returns the container, unsuccessfully emplossed in the store where they were purchased, or to a single drop-off container to receive the 5 cents back.

This measure was said by the public to be an unnecessary tax, that would not only save the environment, but that it would result in an unnecessary loss of funds for the school.

For those students who go off-campus to purchase their beverages, the situation becomes even more critical. For example, the student who purchases a $2 bottle of beer in the Pub, only to be told by the person at the cash register that it’s $2.00 Off funds, is now forced to take the 5-cent deposit for the container away from his or her dinner money. The same action by the student would result in another deposit, and the cycle of losses would continue.

For this reason, students who off-campus to purchase their beverages, the solution is to bring their own drinking container. This can be a glass or plastic bottle, or it can be a container that can be easily recovered and returned.

The deposit law went into effect by Leslie A. Heinrich, assistant food service director at Marist College.

In the Pub, draft beer

an impact on campus life at

Marist College, since 1975

For more Information Call 914-948-7801

card, the student would be forced to spend another 5 cents for another beverage, or return the container to the cash register. This results in an unnecessary loss of funds for the student, and an unnecessary loss of funds for the school.

As for the Pub, the only thing that has changed is the additional cost of the deposit. The Pub has not had to increase the price of the beer, or any other beverage, to cover this additional cost.

The deposit law does not affect the price of the beverage, or any other beverage, to cover this additional cost. However, it does affect the amount of money that the student has available to spend on other items.

The Pub has not had to increase the price of the beverage, or any other beverage, to cover this additional cost. However, it does affect the amount of money that the student has available to spend on other items.

As for the school, the deposit law has not had a significant impact. The school has not had to increase the price of the beverage, or any other beverage, to cover this additional cost. However, it does affect the amount of money that the school has available to spend on other items.

As for the student, the deposit law has not had a significant impact. The student has not had to increase the price of the beverage, or any other beverage, to cover this additional cost. However, it does affect the amount of money that the student has available to spend on other items.

For more information, please call 914-948-7801.
Sports

Football foxes win opener, defeating St. Peter's 19-13

Quarterback Jim Cleary passed for 126 yards in the game's first touchdown from six yards out. The Marist offense scored on the first play of the game, a 40-yard run by Tony Oliver, playing in his first quarter.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Peacocks had third and goal on the four-yard line when Marist was penalized for pass interference on a screen pass to the outside. The referee called the play dead on the one.

Quarterback Ken Flora scored a keeper on the next play, but the two-point conversation attempt failed, ending the score at 13-7. That's where things stood with Fordham leading 13-7, the one.

"We had run the play before on the drive," said Cleary of the following play. "I was looking for Warren on another pattern play, but I got an option to run in that situation."

Fordham put the game away once again the lack of a goal offense started to put things together. First-year coach Steve Lurie said the team's looking toward Notre Dame invitational Cross country shut out by Navy team;

The cross country team was coming in behind the last Navy runner. "I believe we can do it without scholarships," he said. "I believe we can do it without scholarships."