Cronkite is selected for Thomas award

by Cindy Benenbaum

Retired Columbia Broadcasting System news anchor Walter Cronkite has been named as the recipient of the 1984 Lowell Thomas Award.

The award will be presented to Cronkite at a luncheon at the Helmsley Palace in New York City on April 26. Marist sponsors this award, which is in conjunction with the Lowell Thomas Communications Center.

Cronkite, anchor of the CBS Evening News since 1962, was named one of the Newsweek’s Outstanding Americans in 1972. He was called the “nation’s reporter” by President Ronald Reagan.

In addition to his work in radio and television, Cronkite is recognized as an authority on journalism. He has lectured widely and has written a number of books on journalism.

The luncheon is a $35-a-plate event and is attended by Marist alumni, members of the New York City and Hudson Valley media and faculty from the communications arts area.

Jim Barnes, another member of Dirt Pit Manor, said that nothing is definite yet.

“Everything has to be coordinated with the Physical Plant,” he said. “We don’t have funding for this, but we are working out the details.”

The CSL also approached Marist College President Dennis J. Murray who, according to Barnes, is going to be used to fund a campus beautification program this spring.

Marist poll shows split
by Carl MacGowan
A new poll conducted by the Marist College Institute for Public Opinion indicates that Donald J. Trump, the frontrunner among the candidates for the Republican nomination, may not be enough against the ex-president. The poll, conducted by phone interviews with 1,000 likely voters last month, found that 39 percent of the poll's respondents picked him. However, 17 percent of the respondents did not select any of the candidates.

Most of the respondents also said they were not planning to vote for President Trump. The poll, which included 25 percent of those who Nabors and unemployment problems as the most important areas of the campaign, the economy was re-

No exit

1984. The year many people were waiting to see whether they would get Oscars. Others were waiting for the chance to vote for a new president. Almost all of us were waiting to see "Big Brother." But so far we've been denied both. Democrats threaten a primary challenge to the presidetial race, and it looks like part of the voters.

Politics is numbers. When a candidate throws out a projected winner, he has to prove it. But that's not politics. It's just statistics. New research on "politics," as defined by the American Psychiatric Association, is staving off the rise of the "politics." The New York Times has been called a "politics" magazine in the past, but its coverage of the presidential race has been a "politics." The Times has been a "politics" magazine in the past, but its coverage of the presidential race has been a "politics."

The pressures of college can become overwhelming. The stress of preparing for midterms can be overwhelming. The stress of preparing for midterms can be overwhelming. The stress of preparing for midterms can be overwhelming.

No good

What are students, anyway? It seems as if every faculty member and every student knows how to do it. The faculty members are often concerned — who are these professors? They're not much good at their jobs, so they don't really count, and the students themselves aren't much good at their jobs. The students themselves aren't much good at their jobs.

Are insurance rates fair for males?

Some students point to the fact that women's rates are based on the average cost of insuring a male. However, this is not true. Women have the same rates as men. The rates are based on the average cost of insuring a male. The rates are based on the average cost of insuring a male. The rates are based on the average cost of insuring a male.

It’s not like I don’t like to act, and actually I’m all proud of it. And it certainly helped me get away from the bad luck and bad dog’s night out during French living.

“All right,” said, trying to keep the massive smile off his face. “You’ve obviously been screwing it up, though. This one’s worse than slow dancing.”

Although I’m not sure it’s the 100% truth of all the different positions I’ve incubated that draws my appreciation. I believe the capabilities of the small screen, and above all, I can afford to be picky about who I act with.”

“When the hell are you looking for?” answered Mary Jane. “We’ll be there in a few minutes.”

I swallowed hard, twice, trying to counteract the sensation I was feeling in my mouth. After a moment, I spoke. “I hope we will see you tonight.” I immediately formed the thought of seeing you later.
In the Council of Student Chiefs.

But that slowly fell over on me, as it always did in this situation. I was insecure, and another person would have been enough to get me out of there. I suppose the insecurity limiting the other night might have given them some time, and that the group finally began to move out. And that I didn’t have to stop and say anything.

Don’t be fooled; “If Only For a Moment” and “Destination Unknown” are simple ballad-like melodies that may be early examples of “Right Now.” The refrain “Right Now” opens up side
one. Through each track one can hear the growth in their musical style while they began to flesh out their sound. “As Goes Fourth Floor So Goes The World” is the title of this album. They achieve an almost carefully balanced sound. “As Goes Fourth Floor So Goes The World” is their most recent album.

NY TEL is getting ripped off by college phone frauds

by Michael Lewis

While the New York Telephone Company is nothing if not proactive in fighting the problems of phone fraud, many Marist students are unknowingly helping the perpetrators of phone fraud by using their Marist ID numbers, thereby giving them a better chance of succeeding in their fraudulent activities.

Students regularly purchase gifts for friends in campus shops, or from other colleges. Many students do not realize that their friend's ID number is as good as cash for many of the shops around campus. "It's really kind of sad," said one student. "They give it to me because they know I can use it, but they don't realize that they're helping out the fraudsters." A student in the business school was quoted as saying, "It's not like I'm going to duplicate the ID number, but if it's not going to be used, why not give it to someone who wants it?"

According to Edney, the only way to stop the use of ID numbers in phone fraud is to make it too difficult for the fraudsters to use them. "We're working on ways to make it more difficult to use ID numbers for phone fraud," Edney said. "For example, we're looking into ways to add more security to the ID numbers themselves, such as adding a second factor of authentication."

Edney also said that the company is working on other initiatives to combat phone fraud, such as educating students and parents about the risks of using ID numbers for phone transactions. "We're trying to raise awareness about the dangers of using ID numbers for phone transactions," Edney said. "We want people to understand that using ID numbers for phone transactions is not only illegal, but it's also putting their money at risk."
Local socialist presses on for his cause

by Barry Maszy

Nathan Pressman wants a revolution. He says he is tire of the economic instability, racism, poverty and exploitation that plagues society in the United States. "It's a misery," he said.

"The world is not a comfortable place to live. We have to fight for what we want."

Pressman believes in the power of the working class. He is anxious to talk about his views. "You can see how many people are out there in the streets today," he said. "They're fighting for their rights."

Pressman is planning to run for office in the upcoming election. He says he is tired of the corruption in the political system. "There is no true democracy in this country," he said. "The government is controlled by the rich and powerful."

Maybe you should just pack your bags.

Why are you here? Sometimes, as members of the Marist Community, we lose sight of the reason why we are here. After all, it’s easy to get wrapped up in A’s and B’s. Is it just a paper chase, or is it more like an opportunity to become thought provoking individuals? As a supplement to our individual disciplines, wouldn’t it be intriguing to have a perspective on worldwide issues?

Dean’s Convocation Day is just that. It is the opportunity to step out of our everyday cycle and take part in a discussion of international consequence.

There are few individuals capable of this inspiration in the world today.

Richard J. Barnet is one.

During the Kennedy Administration, he was an official of the State Department and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and consultant to the Department of Defense.

Obviously a man of international stature.

This generation of college students will be the next generation of world leaders.

Unpack your bags. Marist College can make the difference.

Martial arts are a kick, say Tae Kwon Do students; McCann exhibition coming March 30, 1984

by Steve Carnell

Tae Kwon Do students here will be making a list. The discipline of Tae Kwon Do, which has been developed by the Korean art form of martial arts, will be taught at Marist College during the spring term. Tae Kwon Do is the only one of the martial arts that is fully committed to the principles of non-violence and self-discipline. It is a form of self-defense that emphasizes mental and physical discipline. The principles of Tae Kwon Do are based on Confucian values, which stress respect for authority, discipline, and respect for oneself and others. The students participating in the Tae Kwon Do program will be taught the basic techniques of the art, including kicks, punches, and defenses. They will also be taught the principles of Tae Kwon Do, which include respect, discipline, and non-violence. The Tae Kwon Do program at Marist College will be led by a master instructor, who will be responsible for teaching the students the techniques and principles of the art. The program will be offered on a voluntary basis, and there will be no cost to participate. The Tae Kwon Do program will be open to all students, and there will be no discrimination based on gender, race, or religion. The students participating in the Tae Kwon Do program will be required to wear traditional Tae Kwon Do uniforms, which are black with white belts. The program will be held in the Marist College gymnasium, and will be taught by the master instructor and his assistants. The students will be divided into classes based on their skill level, and will be taught in small groups. The program will be offered during the spring term, and will last for six weeks. The classes will be held twice a week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings. The program will be open to all students, and there will be no cost to participate. Athletic fields coming to campus north end after land purchase

by Thom Croester

The college has acquired approximately seven acres of land on the north of campus to be used for an undetermined amount of athletic fields.

Athletic Director Ron Petro said the college is still in the early planning stages for the fields but added, "We definitely are getting them."

Petro said that he has only one drawing of the area as of yet and that it is rectangular in shape. Petro said that he was unsure of the type and number of fields that are going in. The current physical condition of the acreage was also unknown because Petro had not seen the space due to the recent weather conditions.

The addition of these fields, whatever kind they are, should be completed by the beginning of the Fall semester.

The area outside of the James J. McCann Recreation Center, which is now used for intramural football, soccer and softball, has been called over-used by many. With the possible organization of a field hockey team, the already rocky field promises only to get worse.

Racqueteers lose opener on road to Bridgeport

by Michael Lowen

The Marist College men's tennis team opened its 1984 season this past week with a 7-2 loss to the University of Bridgeport in Bridgeport, Conn.

The Red Foxes were without their number one player, Bob Scherr, pushing all of the players up a position into levels of tougher competition. Scherr missed the trip because of an academic conflict.

Coach Gerry Breen said that the loss of Scherr hurt the rest of the team. "The kids had to play in positions they were not ready for, against players who are more experienced," he said.

Marist winners were sophomore Ron Young, 6-1, 6-4 in fourth singles, and junior Greg McGinley with a 6-4, 6-2 sixth singles victory.

Breen was especially impressed with the play of freshman Bill Brown, who was playing in his first college match. "Brown never let down. He was beaten in the first set 6-0 and fought back to win the second set in a tie-breaker. Even though he lost he fought until the end," said Breen.

Breen said three close matches cost Marist the defeat: Brown's 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 in doubles; third-seed freshman Jim Rolando's 6-7 (8-6), 4-6 defeat, and fifth-seed freshman John Macom's 6-7 (7-9), 4-6 loss.

"It's tough on the kids, especially the freshmen, to stay in the match after losing a tie-breaker. You get down on yourself and before you know it you are in the hole again," said Breen. Marist's squad is starting off the season without a shot at the Knickerbocker Conference championship.

"We missed too many opportunities," said Coach Mike Malet. "We missed some breakpoints and some wide open shots. We also didn't challenge their goalie enough in the second half." Marist's attack seemed almost non-existent compared to the 17-goals Marist scored against CCNY these three accounted for three starting attackmen. Against CCNY these three accounted for nine of Marist's 17 goals. Against Kean they could only manage two goals.

In no way, however, are the Red Foxes down. "All the defenders — Hill, sophomore Pol Rezza and seniors John Petracci and Dan Spuller — have all played very well," said Malet. "We've got to work on the offense. We've got the horses. I think we have the most trained riders in the country."

"We are working on our man-to-man defense work on our man-to-man defense..." said Malet.

Most of this burden will rest on the shoulders of Nears, McNiell and sophomore Tom Daly, the "trio" that are starting out near the top of CCNY's list. Marist's lead was cut to one at 1-0 by Thorn Crosier

Lacrosse wins, loses in first two games

by Tim Graham

The Marist College lacrosse team opened its 1984 season this past week with defeating the University of Bridgeport, 7-2, and losing to the Brown University Bears, 6-7, 7-6 (11-9), 5-7 loss along with fifth-seed freshman John Macom's 6-7 (8-6), 4-6 defeat, and fifth-seed freshman John Macon's 6-7 (7-9), 4-6 loss.

"They are excellent attackmen, and the defense has been excellent so far," Orzech said. "We definitely are working on our man-to-man defense..."

Marist was not helped by the fact that the goalie they were up against in the first game was one of the country's best. "The goalie was very good," said Orzech. "He was making saves that were routine."

The Red Foxes are "going to need big opportunities," said Coach Mike Malet. "It's always tough to look for bright spots after a loss, but even in defeat the Marist defense played extremely well. "The defense has been excellent so far," Orzech said, "which has been somewhat surprising. Kevin Hill, a freshman from West Babylon, L.I., has been the steal of the defenses."

Malet is also pleased with the play of the defensive unit. "All the defenders — Hill, sophomore Pol Rezza and seniors John Petracci and Dan Spuller — have all played very well," said Malet. "We've got to work on the offense. We've got the horses. I think we have the most trained riders in the country."

Equestrian team at FDU for start of first season ever

by Catherine DeNuzzo

The newly formed riding team will participate in its first horse show Sunday at Fairleigh Dickinson University.

The eight members of the team will try to accumulate as many points as possible to try and place the team in first place.

"We'll be striving for individual and team goals," said Joyce Knox, president of the club.

"The most important part is the spirit of the team. The horses are picked randomly so the testing is fair," said Knox.

Within the framework of the horse shows competition is categorized by divisions. Each division represents a special type of competition. The novice division is for beginner and advanced walk-trot riders; and the self-explanatory jumpers division.

Each rider is judged on hands, seat, management and control of the horse. A trophy and six ribbons will be awarded in each category of each division. At least one or two Marist riders will compete in each division. "Every beginner rider is showing, everyone participates," said Knox.

Since there are no horse-riding facilities on campus, the equestrians will rent the Marist riders are showing, so everyone participates," said Knox.
