Marist’s money: How a college pays the bills

Editor’s note: The Circle recently obtained Marist College’s 1983-84 990 tax form from the Revenue Service through the Freedom of Information Act. All organizations exempt from income tax must file a 990. This form and the Official Statement Relating to Volume 32, Number 3 are the forms mentioned in this article, both are the most recent available and are public documents.

Marist College is many things to many people — similar to other institutions. It is a community, and a non-profit organization. But Marist is also a business with a budget in the millions! The circle published the 1983-84 990 tax form from the college’s 1983-84 tax form and the bond statement to the bondholders. The downtown was approximately $9,000,000 Dormitory Authority of the State of New York, Marist College Insured Revenue Bonds, Series 1983-84 (referred to in the bond statement) are the forms mentioned in this article, both are the most recent available and are public documents.

Salaries at Marist

by Douglas Dutton

Salaries for administrators and full-time faculty at Marist College show a little above the national average for people in similar positions, according to a comparison of national salary surveys and Marist tax records.

President Dennis Murray’s annual salary was listed on the college’s 1983-1984 990 tax form as $77,000. In addition, Murray lives in a residence owned by the college.

According to averages taken from the Chronicle of Higher Education in 1983, the average salary for presidents at four-year colleges is $48,032 and at private institutions $59,625.

The 990 form, acquired by The Circle through the Freedom of Information Act, lists the salary of the eight highest-paid employees of the college, as well as what Marist received in government investments. The July 1983-June 1984 form was the most recent available.

In an interview this week, Murray said he was comparing his salary to the national averages in the surveys was misleading. “It’s like comparing apples and oranges,” Murray said. “Median average shows a little above the national average for people in similar positions, according to a comparison of national salary surveys and Marist tax records.”

Murray provided The Circle with data showing that the median salary for presidents at 127 four-year colleges with budgets of at least $10 million was $59,625. Marist’s budget that year was approximately $24 million.

The data also included figures for average salaries, in statistics, the median is the number occurring halfway through the range of the salaries reported.

Other top officials’ salaries were also higher than the national average. The average number of people in similar positions.

How apartheid became an issue

by Carl McCowan

As usual, Marist showed up late. While about 100 other schools across the nation had experienced the most radical student protests since the 60’s last spring, Marist didn’t get its own apartheid protest until last fall.

But the student-organized Progressive Coalition is trying to make up for lost time, cautiously feeling its way into the renewed student activist movement.

In an interview last week, three of the organization’s leaders discussed their plans and the struggles of beginning a new club at Marist.

Vassar students stage sit-in Approximately 25 Vassar College students “took over” the office of the president this past February, the students’ sit-in is the first to respond to the alarm when the campus-side room atop an 85-foot aerial ladder. Town of Poughkeepsie police and firefighters from Fairview Fire District and back up units from the City of Poughkeepsie and the Roosevelt Fire Department in Hyde Park stopped the fire in time.

Firefighters quickly removed the six students living in the room when the fire started. One student claimed the fire was started by an explosive.

The fire was fully extinguished and the university has since worked to compensate the students. The six students living in the room when the fire started, returned to their rooms by 11 p.m.

Room fire damages dormitory

by Shelly Miller

The cause of a fire that occurred early this week in a sixth-floor Common residence has not been determined, according to Joe Waters, director of safety and security.

It is believed, however, that the fire originated in the resident’s mattress, Waters said.

The fire started in the room of students Dave Robertson and Steve Capozzoli, who were out of the room when the fire started.

Waters said Fairview fire department, inspected the wiring of the room and concluded that the cause of the fire was electrical.

Waters reported heavy smoke damage to room 606 and in the nearby room (Resident Assistant Joe Esposito). A stereo and a television set were damaged in the fire and there was smoke damage to clothing of most sixth-floor residents, according to Steve San­noli, director of housing.

About six hundred Champagne residents evacuated the building at 9:10 p.m. as three local fire units responded to the first of two alarms that went off approximately 20 minutes apart.

The fire was extinguished and there were no injuries. The six students living in the room when the fire started, returned to their rooms by 11 p.m.

By 2 p.m. Monday, the remaining sixth-floor students had also gone back to their rooms.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. According to the bond statement, room charges, broken down by residences, were (numbers rounded to nearest thousand): Shahan Hall, $220,000; Leo Hall, $551,000; Champagne Hall, $774,000; Benefit House, $49,000; Gregory House, $30,000; Townhouses, $378,000; Marian Hall, $230,000; and off-campus, $130,000.

A Cut To The Heart

The figures were little different, but the underlying concept was the same when President Reagan presented his $294 billion proposed federal budget last week. In an effort to cut the "deficit" of the "Republican" America, he proposed a 12 percent decrease in education spending. But where possible, we did not identify the names and positions of those executives because we respect their right to privacy. Where possible, we did not identify the sources and the relevant companies provided, without focusing on the person. This has been our intent all along.

Apartheid: What it is

By Cindy Lennek

Lately, it seems that everyone's been talking about has been apartheid in South Africa. The term has become synonymous with the name "South Africa," but for many, the implications of apartheid are unknown. But in reality, apartheid is far worse than just a system of racial segregation. It is a system of social and economic oppression that has been in place for over half a century. Since 1948, the Nationalist Party of South Africa has been enforcing apartheid, a system of separation and segregation based on race. The government of South Africa has systematically oppressed black people, who make up the majority of the population, by denying them basic rights and opportunities. The apartheid system has been in place since 1948, when the Nationalist Party came to power, and it has been maintained through a combination of political repression and economic exploitation.

With all social movements some intended and unintended consequences. The politics of South Africa are inextricably linked to the country's economy. The government of South Africa has invested heavily in the country's infrastructure, industry, and agriculture, while neglecting the needs of the black majority. The government of South Africa has also been able to suppress dissent and opposition by controlling the media and suppressing free speech. The government of South Africa has also been able to control the flow of information to the outside world, making it difficult for the outside world to understand the true extent of apartheid.

The government of South Africa has been able to maintain its power through a combination of violence, intimidation, and propaganda. Music notes by Anthony D’Alessandro

In the past year, many rock artists have released new albums, leading to a surge in sales of their previous works. This has increased the popularity of music from the 1960s and 1970s.

One reason is an increasing interest in nostalgia and retro music. The popularity of streaming services has also contributed to this trend.

Legislators are now looking to strike a balance in music sales.

The Marist men’s basketball Icemen’s comebacks are now regular items with two senior guards. Top returning scorer is eighth-year coach Ron Kornegy who averaged 12.9 points per game last year leads the duo in addition to Jaret King with 9.4 ppg last year. Another top returner is sophomore William McBrinn (9.4 ppg and 2.8 rebounds per game last year).

There are the team’s top rebounder Karl Brown (12.3 rpg) and top scoring Freshman (21.3 ppg). The team’s poor overall record may be attributed to a tough non-conference schedule that included the likes of Fordham, Rutgers, St. John’s and North Carolina State. In addition, they will play Villanova twice.

In order to win, the Hawks must stop Marist center Rik Smits. Smits scored 24 points, 14 on slams dunks, and grabbed 10 rebounds. He showed his best game of the season with six assists, and 14 rebounds to victory.

Marist guard Drafftion Davis has made his best game of the season the last two games. He scored 24 points, 14 on slams dunks, and grabbed 10 rebounds. He showed his best game of the season with six assists, and 14 rebounds to victory.

The team’s record now stands at 8-2 in the Metropolitan Conference. Against Montclair State, the Red Foxes decided to win the game the hard way. Marist scored 4 early in the second period and second to be headed for its worst game of the season. Marist’s poor performance in the second period ended with the Smits taking center stage in the second half. The score 72-31. We had to go inside against, "We didn’t take long for the Red Foxes to take control of the final period of play. Only eight seconds into the third period, Graham scored his fourth of the game, then in his fifth goal of the night less than one minute later to put Marist ahead 6-4. Lucey scored with less than eleven minutes remaining, and Drolet scored an empty-net goal late in the game to close out the scoring.

Besides Graham’s five-goal per- formance, other strong outings were turned in by Drolet (1 goal, 3 assists) and Lucey (1 goal, 2 assists). Marist goalie Greg Whitehead did not have a very impressive outing on paper (3 goals allowed, 26 saves) but he did make some fine saves throughout the game, especially in the third period with Marist clinging to a 1-5 lead while two Foxes were in the penalty box.

The slow start by Marist and the frustrating to bring in an athlete, give him a full scholarship and watch him not play," he explains. "Only the rich institutions can take advantage of that policy.
