Marist readies for visit by state education team

by Wayne O'Brien

During the first week of March, a team of specialists from the New York State Education Department will come to Marist to examine every nook and cranny of the college's policies and practices, according to Dr. Linda Cool, assistant to the academic vice president. The review will result in a final grade in which Marist needs improvement and a pre-suggestion of what needs to be fixed, Cool said. "They might say that we should have more minorities on the faculty, for example."

If a college fails to meet the state education department's registration standards, it could lose the right to grant degrees, according to Dr. Linda Cool, assistant to the academic vice president. "If that happens, it could lose the right to continue being a recognized institution," Cool said. "They might say that we need to do more to attract students, for example."

According to contest rules, the recipes were sent to a team of specialists from the New York State Department of Education, which then awarded teaching certification to approximately 130 graduates. All New York state colleges must register the programs in which they intend to grant degrees with the state education department. Even before 1969, "a college has been granted registration, the school must re-register its degree programs every five years to keep its accreditation.

As part of the review process, Marist must provide the review team with all faculty resumes and all courses taught by the faculty. The agency's findings have been assembled into a 279-page report. Copies of the self-study must then be submitted to each member of the review team.

"We're not worried," Cool said. "We've done our best in the areas they're concerned about. We're very proud of our program, and we think it's a very strong program." She added that the team with all faculty resumes and all courses taught by the faculty. The agency's findings have been assembled into a 279-page report. Copies of the self-study must then be submitted to each member of the review team.

"We're not worried," Cool said. "We've done our best in the areas they're concerned about. We're very proud of our program, and we think it's a very strong program." She added that the team will remain on campus for three days and two nights may sit in on some classes.

Preparation of the education majors will be of special interest to the examiners, said Nolan. "The team will be examining Marist through the prism of teacher education," Nolan said, a representative of the state education department. "The goal is for schools to be self-assessing and self-evaluating, and to be accountable to the public."}

Contraceptive aid given quietly

Contraceptive aid given quietly

by Nancy Bloom

While many students are unaware of it, Marist College Health Services has quietly been providing students with advice and information on contraceptive use. "We're here to help students who are responsible for their own destiny," Bollmann said. "The girls are old enough and responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves." Bollmann said she prescribes birth control to students who are in a committed relationship. "They usually have a boy friend, and they have been responsible to themselves," Bollmann said.

"The school didn't want students to think this was some kind of Planned Parenthood thing," Bollmann said. "So we just wanted to make sure that students were aware that they could get birth control if they wanted it."

"We don't want to publicize it," Bollmann said. "We don't want to publicize it, but we want to make sure that students are aware of the options that are available to them."

"The girls are old enough and responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves," Bollmann said. "The girls are old enough and responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves, and they're responsible to themselves." Bollmann said she prescribes birth control to students who are in a committed relationship. "They usually have a boy friend, and they have been responsible to themselves," Bollmann said.
Brawley case has Hudson Valley in spotlight

By Mark Miller

The Town of Poughkeepsie Police are looking for the man who defaced their headquarters with graffiti.

Police are searching for a man who defaced the front of the Poughkeepsie Police Station with graffiti.

"The incident occurred late Friday night, and the graffiti was reported to the police on Saturday morning," said Chief Richard J. Bowers.

Bowers said the wall was not damaged, but the words "Poughkeepsie Police," "Police," and "Stop Police Looting" were spray-painted in white letters on the wall.

The graffiti was discovered when the police arrived for work on Saturday morning.

Bowers said the investigation is ongoing, and anyone with information is encouraged to contact the police department.

The police are asking for the public's help in identifying the person responsible for the graffiti.

The incident is being investigated by the Hudson Valley Anti-Graffiti Task Force, and anyone with information is encouraged to contact them.

The task force can be reached at 845-768-1000, or by email at info@hvag.org.

The Hudson Valley Anti-Graffiti Task Force is a non-profit organization dedicated to fighting graffiti in the Hudson Valley.

The task force works with local law enforcement agencies, community groups, and citizens to reduce graffiti in the region.

The organization provides resources, training, and support to help communities develop effective anti-graffiti strategies.

For more information, visit the Hudson Valley Anti-Graffiti Task Force's website at www.hvag.org.

The task force is funded by grants and donations from local businesses, organizations, and individuals.

The task force is a member of the National Anti-Graffiti Network, a national organization dedicated to reducing graffiti in communities across the country.

---

The writing on the wall: What's behind graffiti?

By Pamela Steck

What is it about spray paint, spray paint cans, and spray paint companies that makes people want to deface public property with graffiti?

Many people see graffiti as a form of expression, a way to make a statement, or a way to show support for a particular cause.

However, some people see graffiti as a form of vandalism, a way to破坏 property, and a way to show disrespect for others.

The trend of people defacing public property with graffiti is not new, and it has been a problem for communities for years.

"People have been spray painting on walls for as long as people have been spray painting," said Ken Johnson, a professor of sociology at Marist College.

Johnson said that people often spray paint to show off their skills, or to challenge others to do the same.

"Sometimes, people do it to show off their skills, or to prove they can do it better than others," said Johnson.

Other people see graffiti as a way to show support for a particular cause, or to protest against something they don't agree with.

"People have used graffiti to show support for a particular cause, or to protest against something they don't agree with," said Johnson.

However, Johnson said that graffiti can also be a way to show disrespect for others, and can lead to property damage.

"Graffiti can lead to property damage, and it can also be a way to show disrespect for others," said Johnson.

Johnson said that communities can take steps to reduce the problem of graffiti, such as placing "no spray paint" signs on walls, and implementing laws that punish spray painters.

However, Johnson said that people who spray paint need to be held accountable for their actions, and that communities need to work together to reduce the problem of graffiti.
Poverty work opens eyes — and minds

by Chris Landry

In 1988, Denver Player entered Marist thinking he was much better off than many students because he had never been poor.

Later that year, through Marist’s Campus Ministry, she went on her first volunteer experience helping the poor and homeless.

Player says, "I will always remember how much this experience changed me.

"You should experience the different ways of life outside the Marist bubble." Player, a sophomore from Westminster, Md., said she couldn’t believe how many students in the country were living in extreme poverty.

"I was surprised to see (Rep. Richard) Gephardt and (Sen. Paul) Simon campaign in places like Holyoke, Mass.," Student McEneny added. "I was interested in them," McEneny said. "I was interested in them and someone to be interested in them." McCauley added.

Patient has a duty to help people who are less fortunate.

"I’m going to vote for Bush." Sophomore Mary Jones said, "I think it’s a good idea." Sophomore Mike Walsh said: "We figure we won it last year," he added. "It’s a shame.

"I didn’t win last year," said Ryan. "I did win the lip-sync contest sponsored by the college."

"It’s a (lip) moving experience when air bands hit the stage."
Poverty work opens eyes — and minds

by Chris Laude

In 1986, Director Peter moved Marist College students to Boyne City, Mich., to help the homeless. The students were the first Marist students to work in a rural area in Michigan. This year’s volunteer experience was to help the homeless in Holyoke, Mass., through the Catholic Charities of the Holyoke Region. The Catholic Charities is a non-profit organization that helps the homeless in Holyoke. The students will help the homeless in Holyoke in a variety of ways, from food distribution to social work.

Last weekend, the Catholic Charities helped out at Kate’s Kitchen in Holyoke. Above, student volunteer prepared food for the homeless.

“This is the first time I’ve had the chance to help the homeless in a rural area,” said Peter. “I think it’s important for us to see the different ways of life outside the urban setting.”

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Tina Lavalla

The Republican front runner was Ronald Reagan with a caption reading: "In 1960, the opposition claimed that this candidate wasn’t fit to be president. Why? Because of his religion." On the opposite page, Robert Bork with a caption reading: "This is the same thing about this man."

The Democratic leader was Walter Mondale, as he led the field in Iowa with 30 percent of the vote. Mondale, who is the sitting vice president, is leading the pack by a comfortable margin. The other candidates in the race are Michael Dukakis, who is trailing by a few points, and Jack Kemp, who is in third place.

Nicole Brown and Roman Polanski were found dead in their home last week. The couple was found dead in their home in Los Angeles. The death has been ruled a murder-suicide.

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Chris Laude

In 1986, Director Peter moved Marist College students to Boyne City, Mich., to help the homeless. The students were the first Marist students to work in a rural area in Michigan. This year’s volunteer experience was to help the homeless in Holyoke, Mass., through the Catholic Charities of the Holyoke Region. The Catholic Charities is a non-profit organization that helps the homeless in Holyoke. The students will help the homeless in Holyoke in a variety of ways, from food distribution to social work.

Last weekend, the Catholic Charities helped out at Kate’s Kitchen in Holyoke. Above, student volunteer prepared food for the homeless.

“This is the first time I’ve had the chance to help the homeless in a rural area,” said Peter. “I think it’s important for us to see the different ways of life outside the urban setting.”

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Tina Lavalla

The Republican front runner was Ronald Reagan with a caption reading: "In 1960, the opposition claimed that this candidate wasn’t fit to be president. Why? Because of his religion." On the opposite page, Robert Bork with a caption reading: "This is the same thing about this man."

The Democratic leader was Walter Mondale, as he led the field in Iowa with 30 percent of the vote. Mondale, who is the sitting vice president, is leading the pack by a comfortable margin. The other candidates in the race are Michael Dukakis, who is trailing by a few points, and Jack Kemp, who is in third place.

Nicole Brown and Roman Polanski were found dead in their home last week. The couple was found dead in their home in Los Angeles. The death has been ruled a murder-suicide.

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Chris Laude

In 1986, Director Peter moved Marist College students to Boyne City, Mich., to help the homeless. The students were the first Marist students to work in a rural area in Michigan. This year’s volunteer experience was to help the homeless in Holyoke, Mass., through the Catholic Charities of the Holyoke Region. The Catholic Charities is a non-profit organization that helps the homeless in Holyoke. The students will help the homeless in Holyoke in a variety of ways, from food distribution to social work.

Last weekend, the Catholic Charities helped out at Kate’s Kitchen in Holyoke. Above, student volunteer prepared food for the homeless.

“This is the first time I’ve had the chance to help the homeless in a rural area,” said Peter. “I think it’s important for us to see the different ways of life outside the urban setting.”

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Tina Lavalla

The Republican front runner was Ronald Reagan with a caption reading: "In 1960, the opposition claimed that this candidate wasn’t fit to be president. Why? Because of his religion." On the opposite page, Robert Bork with a caption reading: "This is the same thing about this man."

The Democratic leader was Walter Mondale, as he led the field in Iowa with 30 percent of the vote. Mondale, who is the sitting vice president, is leading the pack by a comfortable margin. The other candidates in the race are Michael Dukakis, who is trailing by a few points, and Jack Kemp, who is in third place.

Nicole Brown and Roman Polanski were found dead in their home last week. The couple was found dead in their home in Los Angeles. The death has been ruled a murder-suicide.

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Chris Laude

In 1986, Director Peter moved Marist College students to Boyne City, Mich., to help the homeless. The students were the first Marist students to work in a rural area in Michigan. This year’s volunteer experience was to help the homeless in Holyoke, Mass., through the Catholic Charities of the Holyoke Region. The Catholic Charities is a non-profit organization that helps the homeless in Holyoke. The students will help the homeless in Holyoke in a variety of ways, from food distribution to social work.

Last weekend, the Catholic Charities helped out at Kate’s Kitchen in Holyoke. Above, student volunteer prepared food for the homeless.

“This is the first time I’ve had the chance to help the homeless in a rural area,” said Peter. “I think it’s important for us to see the different ways of life outside the urban setting.”

Poverty work opens eyes — and minds by Tina Lavalla

The Republican front runner was Ronald Reagan with a caption reading: "In 1960, the opposition claimed that this candidate wasn’t fit to be president. Why? Because of his religion." On the opposite page, Robert Bork with a caption reading: "This is the same thing about this man."

The Democratic leader was Walter Mondale, as he led the field in Iowa with 30 percent of the vote. Mondale, who is the sitting vice president, is leading the pack by a comfortable margin. The other candidates in the race are Michael Dukakis, who is trailing by a few points, and Jack Kemp, who is in third place.

Nicole Brown and Roman Polanski were found dead in their home last week. The couple was found dead in their home in Los Angeles. The death has been ruled a murder-suicide.
Some things never change. Quite often, in fact, they remain the same. Marist is looking to#if not good, then at least consistent. And naturally, pessimists abound. This time last year, Marist students were upset that the administration finally decided to build a new gym. Currently, 22 dormitories are to be added to the residence halls for the 1988-89 academic year. Dormitories have been under construction for the past two years, and the Marist population isn't getting any smaller. To be sure, the addition of dormitories will give the college a chance not only to construct a building, but to keep promises—and raze some hard feelings.

The hottest ticket in town

by Carol Pinchelli

There's a sell out, a sell out. Where. To the Editor:

www marist edu

All students to a social today from

This is our fall of 1988. The Marist administration has promised improvements in the campus, including more dormitories. As we approach the fall term, the Marist community will have a change to see what has been promised to them and to those who have supported the university. I am a student at Marist College, and I will be the first to say that the campus is not the best. But I do think that the administration has done a good job this year, and I am looking forward to seeing what they have planned for the future.

To the Editor:

All of the problems mentioned by Ms. Pinchelli are not unique to Marist College. Many other institutions face similar challenges. However, the atmosphere at Marist seems to be more positive, and I believe this is due to the efforts of the administration.

The hottest ticket in town

by Carol Pinchelli

There is a sell out, a sell out. Where. To the Editor:

www marist edu

All students to a social today from

This is our fall of 1988. The Marist administration has promised improvements in the campus, including more dormitories. As we approach the fall term, the Marist community will have a change to see what has been promised to them and to those who have supported the university. I am a student at Marist College, and I will be the first to say that the campus is not the best. But I do think that the administration has done a good job this year, and I am looking forward to seeing what they have planned for the future.

To the Editor:

All of the problems mentioned by Ms. Pinchelli are not unique to Marist College. Many other institutions face similar challenges. However, the atmosphere at Marist seems to be more positive, and I believe this is due to the efforts of the administration.
From Vietnam to Wall Street

Kris Hooten

Censored Afternoon Report, Poughkeepsie

It’s time to check out Bob Williams of Poughkeepsie. No, we’re not talking about the Wall Street banker. A comedy act in New York City has given him the nickname “Bob Williams” because he looks like the TV personality.

Williams is a member of the Caregivers of the World organization, which brings in celebrity guests to raise money for the organization. He was there to promote a new film called “M*A*S*H.”

“I’m here to support the troops,” he said. “It’s a great opportunity to help these brave men and women who have served our country.”

The film is a comedy set in Vietnam during the war. It tells the story of a group of doctors and nurses who work in a makeshift hospital in the middle of the battlefield.

Williams is one of the main characters, a doctor who uses his wit and humor to keep the other soldiers in good spirits.

“We are trying to make people laugh and forget about the stresses of war,” he said.

The film has received mixed reviews, with some critics praising the performances and others criticizing the violence.

Williams attributes the film’s success to the humor and heartwarming moments.

“I think it’s a message of hope and resilience,” he said.

The film was released on October 10, 1970, and has become a cult classic, with many sequels and spin-offs.

“I think it’s important to remember the sacrifices made by our troops and to always support them,” Williams said.

Williams is currently on tour with the Caregivers of the World organization, where he performs stand-up comedy and jokes about his time in Vietnam.

“I love performing for the troops and seeing their reaction,” he said.

Williams said he has also done some charity work for the organization, including visiting hospitals and hospitals in rural areas.

“I think it’s important to give back to the community that supported us,” he said.

Williams is also working on a new film project, which he says will be announced soon.

“I’m excited to share more about this project with everyone,” he said.

Williams said he hopes his work will help bring awareness to the sacrifices made by the soldiers and the importance of supporting them.

“I think we all have a duty to support our troops and to remember the sacrifices they make for our country,” he said.

Williams is a member of the United States Army Reserve and has served in various capacities throughout his career.

“I’m proud to serve my country and to be able to use my love for comedy to bring people together,” he said.

Williams is one of the most beloved comedians of all time, with a long list of movies, TV shows, and stand-up specials to his name.

“I think my biggest accomplishment is being able to make people laugh,” he said.

Williams is known for his quick wit, his ability to connect with his audience, and his ability to make the most out of any situation.

“I think I’ve been able to adapt to any situation and make the best out of it,” he said.

Williams is one of the most successful comedians of all time, with a net worth of over $50 million.

“I think my success is due to my hard work and dedication,” he said.

Williams is married to actress and comedian Robin Williams, and they have three children together.

“I’m very happy with my family,” he said.

Williams is currently working on a new project, which he hopes will be announced soon.

“I’m excited to share more about this project with everyone,” he said.

Williams said he hopes his work will bring joy to people and make a difference in their lives.

“I think we all have a duty to use our talents to make the world a better place,” he said.

Williams is a member of the United States Army Reserve and has served in various capacities throughout his career.

“I’m proud to serve my country and to be able to use my love for comedy to bring people together,” he said.

Williams is one of the most beloved comedians of all time, with a long list of movies, TV shows, and stand-up specials to his name.

“I think my biggest accomplishment is being able to make people laugh,” he said.

Williams is known for his quick wit, his ability to connect with his audience, and his ability to make the most out of any situation.

“I think I’ve been able to adapt to any situation and make the best out of it,” he said.

Williams is married to actress and comedian Robin Williams, and they have three children together.

“I’m very happy with my family,” he said.

Williams is currently working on a new project, which he hopes will be announced soon.

“I’m excited to share more about this project with everyone,” he said.

Williams said he hopes his work will bring joy to people and make a difference in their lives.

“I think we all have a duty to use our talents to make the world a better place,” he said.

Williams is a member of the United States Army Reserve and has served in various capacities throughout his career.

“I’m proud to serve my country and to be able to use my love for comedy to bring people together,” he said.

Williams is one of the most beloved comedians of all time, with a long list of movies, TV shows, and stand-up specials to his name.

“I think my biggest accomplishment is being able to make people laugh,” he said.

Williams is known for his quick wit, his ability to connect with his audience, and his ability to make the most out of any situation.

“I think I’ve been able to adapt to any situation and make the best out of it,” he said.

Williams is married to actress and comedian Robin Williams, and they have three children together.

“I’m very happy with my family,” he said.

Williams is currently working on a new project, which he hopes will be announced soon.

“I’m excited to share more about this project with everyone,” he said.

Williams said he hopes his work will bring joy to people and make a difference in their lives.

“I think we all have a duty to use our talents to make the world a better place,” he said.

Williams is a member of the United States Army Reserve and has served in various capacities throughout his career.

“I’m proud to serve my country and to be able to use my love for comedy to bring people together,” he said.
MEATLOAF trying to yell loud enough to go for dinner. Otherwise, drinks love-gods.

St.) — Still the only place to go I hit Berties Late for Metal, Hardcore, New MeisterBrau, a box of Pop-
Sports

Lady swimmers dominate championship meet

by Kristine Manning

The Marist College women's swimming and diving team took home its second consecutive NCAA Division I title last weekend.

They also took home a first-place finish in the Metropolitan Conference championship, a Most Valuable Swimmer award, a Most Valuable Diver award, and a handful of individual first-place finishes, dozens of personal-best swims and the Coach of the-year award.

Freshman Linda Predmore was recognized twice for her performance finishes in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly. She was also named Most Valuable Swimmer as the women swimmers tallied 876 points and gained a first-place finish in the East division. Marist placed second overall, behind winner Trenton State.

Freshman Lisa Burgdower dove her way into a first-place finish in the 1- and 3-meter diving and walked off with the most valuable diver award. She scored 117.6 and 44.64 in 1-meter and 3-meter diving while setting new school and meet records.

Junior Karen Zielziger placed first overall in the 200-yard backstroke and the 50-yard school record of 2:09.1. Zielziger took a conference-first in the 100-back with a school-record of 1:09.41.

Freshman Chris Thum took two conference-firsts in the 100- and 200-yard freestyle against Cagers. Cleary won the 50- and finished second behind Thum in the 100-free.

was an interesting sight to witness—winner in the conference with first-place finisher and new school record in the 200- and 400-yard Individual Medley and the 100- and 200-yard freestyle.

Personal-best times were owned by Jackie Hackett in the 100- and 200-back; Sara Perkins, Debra Noves and Julie Maezeno in the 500-free; Dana Davis, Jackie O'Brien and Mary Dolan in the 100-back and the women's backstroke; and Kelly O'Gole in the 100-fly and 50-free.

"We set out 19 of 22 school records," said Doug Stallings, head coach of the lady swimmers. "It was the best performance I've ever seen in a period of ten years of swimming involvement. Not only did people swim lifetime bests in one event—but in almost every event they swam," he said.

Swimmers honor Barrett, extend win streak to five

by Kevin St. Onge

A banner hung in the pool area at the James J. McCann Recreation Center. It read: "THIS ONE IS FOR YOU DAVID BARRETT, (7-3) OR BUST!"

The ones who were "busted" were the Cadet swimmers, a Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point. The loss to the Marist swimming and diving team, 115-99, was the end of a season.

Entering the meet, Marist was determined not to be denied a victory as a final tribute to its graduating captain, Dave Barrett. Thesoftmax was a 102-64 victory over SUNY Maritime in early in the week, extending the swimming Red Foxes' win streak to five and enabling them to close out the regular season just as the banner read — 7-3.

Cagers seek playoff berth [Cygnet]

"DAVE BARRETT, (7-3) OR BUST."

by Kristine Manning

by Kristine Manning

The Lady Red Foxes are playing well, dishing out 13 assists.