Donnelly project to go into 1989

by Bill Johnston

The planned expansion and renovation of Donnelly Hall this summer will continue through the next school year, disrupting some classes, according to Edward Waters, vice president for administration and finance.

Waters said he doesn’t think the college will have to operate in alternate parts of the building. The target date for completion of the project is the summer of 1989, according to Waters.

Construction will be scheduled to allow classes and offices to operate in alternate parts of the building. The renovation project is scheduled to take place in three phases, according to Waters.

The main modification needed is the addition of a fire wall that will hold back flames for up to three hours. Dormeyer said the wall will separate Marist’s classrooms and the space occupied by Roe Movers, the first tenant of the building after Western Publishing left.

Dormeyer said the owners of the building, the Mid-Hudson Business Corp., have been cooperative and he anticipates that the project will be completed on time.

The system is not adequate for the heavy occupancy, said Dormeyer. A grant for $500,000 from the state Department of Commerce and Industry will be spent on interior renovation and furnishing.

The renovation project is scheduled to take place in three phases, according to Waters. The target date for completion of the project is the summer of 1989, according to Waters.

Construction will have to be scheduled to allow classes and offices to operate in alternate parts of the building. The target date for completion of the project is the summer of 1989, according to Waters.

The main modification needed is the addition of a fire wall that will hold back flames for up to three hours. Dormeyer said the wall will separate Marist’s classrooms and the space occupied by Roe Movers, the first tenant of the building after Western Publishing left.

Dormeyer said the owners of the building, the Mid-Hudson Business Corp., have been cooperative and he anticipates that the project will be completed on time.

Marist has leased space in the building for the past four years. State fire regulations prohibit a building to be occupied by both educational and industrial storage facilities, which is how Roe Movers uses the space. However, last December a state court said the building can continue to have dual occupancy, if it has a fire wall, according to the attorney.

Joseph Waters, director of safety and security at Marist, said the school has received no official word on any fire violations, but he expects an official report by the end of the week.

Fire violation cited at East

by Joseph O’Brien

The owners of Marist East must meet state fire codes by Sept. 1 if the building is to continue housing Marist classrooms, according to Richard Dormeyer, the deputy chief of the Fairview Fire Department.

The main modification needed is the addition of a fire wall that will hold back flames for up to three hours. Dormeyer said the wall will separate Marist’s classrooms and the space occupied by Roe Movers, the first tenant of the building after Western Publishing left.

Dormeyer said the owners of the building, the Mid-Hudson Business Corp., have been cooperative and he anticipates that the project will be completed on time.

Marist has leased space in the building for the past four years. State fire regulations prohibit a building to be occupied by both educational and industrial storage facilities, which is how Roe Movers uses the space. However, last December a state court said the building can continue to have dual occupancy, if it has a fire wall, according to the attorney.

Joseph Waters, director of safety and security at Marist, said the school has received no official word on any fire violations, but he expects an official report by the end of the week.
Lectures
Artistic Architecture
Prof. John Paulkoff will be lecturing on the architectural artistry of Marcel Breuer on March 10, at 8 p.m. at St. John's Grotto. 35th St.

The Bachelor Spring Band is sponsoring the "Spring Pipe Concerts" to be held at the Theater. The first will be held on 4/13 at 3 p.m. and the second on 4/24 at 3 p.m. in the Theater, Administration Building.

Scott Johnson, President of the Student Senate, Theological Union Band will be playing the Bock Concert. The Society Band will be performing the "Spring Pipe Concerts" to be held at the Theater. The first will be held on 4/13 at 3 p.m. and the second on 4/24 at 3 p.m. in the Theater, Administration Building.

PHYSICAL GRAFFITI
A physical graffiti will be held on the lawn of the Physical Science Building on Friday, April 8th at 5:30 p.m. The event is open to the public.

New Windsor, N.Y., thinks Marge will take place in the Fireside Lounge. "I like her, she's nice," said Marge. "I always let her in without her ID." She's a great lady," said Marge. "I always let her in without her ID." She's a great lady," said Marge. "I always let her in without her ID."

Donations—Members of the Student Senate, Theological Union Band will be playing the Bock Concert. The Society Band will be performing the "Spring Pipe Concerts" to be held at the Theater. The first will be held on 4/13 at 3 p.m. and the second on 4/24 at 3 p.m. in the Theater, Administration Building.

"The bridge was almost entirely separated from the dance floor into the bar," Huber said. "We never get anyplace, no matter where you go. Go out of the student union, they are going to be separated from the dance floor into the bar."

The building on the corner of Diamond and canoe street is going to move next week. Windows are being replaced, smoke is being added to the walls and the door of the building is currently open. The fire alarm is being turned off. The doors are being replaced with windows and the building is being closed for a few days.

The building on the corner of Diamond and canoe street is going to move next week. Windows are being replaced, smoke is being added to the walls and the door of the building is currently open. The fire alarm is being turned off. The doors are being replaced with windows and the building is being closed for a few days.

"We plan to do what we've done in the past," sagte Perini. "In the past, the program has sought to bring together employees and to bring together the community."

"Our goal is to help students and to encourage students to bring together the community."

Contact: MCCTA
Theater (during night rehearsals)

Weight Watchers is offering an At School/At Work Program for Marist College. It is an 8 week pre-paid program. Students, staff and faculty are invited to participate. The cost of the program is $30. For more information, please contact Diane O'Brien in the Health Service Office, Ext. 374.
Two from Marist win Fulbright scholarships
Calista to teach in Japan

The Fulbright Foundation in Washington, D.C., has announced that Donald J. Calista, director of the public administration program at Marist College, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship to teach in Japan next year. He is one of two Marist students to win Fulbright scholarships this year.

Calista, who is originally from the Philippines, is currently working on his doctorate in public administration at Marist College. He will be teaching at a university in Japan, and will be responsible for developing courses in public administration.

"This is a great opportunity for Donald," said Dr. John Perini, dean of the College of Education at Marist. "He is well-prepared for this position, and we are proud to have him represent Marist College in Japan."

Calista has been teaching at Marist for 10 years and has had his research on Japanese government awarded him a Fulbright grant. "I am very excited about this opportunity," said Calista. "I look forward to teaching and learning in Japan and contributing to the understanding of Japanese society."

"I am pleased that Marist is able to support Donald in this way," said Dr. Perini. "This is a testament to the quality of education that Marist provides and our commitment to providing our students with unique opportunities to study and work abroad."

Calista's scholarship is one of 10 awarded to Marist students this year. The other student is a senior from the Philippines who is studying for a master's degree in electrical engineering.

Calista will be teaching at a university in Japan, where he will be responsible for developing courses in public administration. He will also be involved in research and community service projects.

"I am looking forward to this opportunity to teach and learn in Japan," said Calista. "I believe that this experience will be very valuable for both me and my students at Marist."

Calista's scholarship is one of several awarded to Marist students this year. The other students are studying in countries such as South Korea, Japan, and China.

"These scholarships are a testament to the quality of education that Marist provides and our commitment to providing our students with unique opportunities to study and work abroad," said Dr. Perini. "We are proud to have these students represent Marist College in countries around the world."
Austrian ruler is a disgrace

By Tim M. LeVallois

The Austrian people need to realize how little respect the world has for their current president, Kurt Waldheim. The fact that he is the leader of one of the most powerful and influential states in the world is quite amazing. However, his past is anything but glorious.

Waldheim was born in Austria in 1913 and grew up in a Jewish family. He joined the Nazi Party in 1938 and became a member of the SS. During World War II, he served as a military officer in the SS, overseeing the forced labor of Jews in the concentration camps.

After the war, Waldheim continued his involvement with the Nazi Party, serving as a diplomat for the East German government. He was later appointed as a UN diplomat and eventually rose to the position of Secretary General.

In 1986, it was revealed that Waldheim had been involved in the War Crimes Tribunal. He was charged with war crimes, but the charges were dropped due to insufficient evidence.

Today, Waldheim's name is synonymous with the war crimes of the Nazi regime. His legacy is one of shame and dishonor, and it is time for the Austrian people to hold him accountable for his past.

LeVallois

letters

Defending Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

The ultimate Marist tour

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

Defining Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

Defining Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

Defining Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

Defining Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig

Letters

Defining Maintenance

By Carol Ficasso

I have a tear of joy. If you are visiting the hallways of Planes, you will notice a familiar face in the hallway. “This is the Spellman Library,” I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

This is the Library in the Library. I kept to the rules of the library, but I had a small piece of the facilities and an archetypal look of how hard a student could or should rule with my own circle.

Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

And this is the Library, the Library that I was in the building, but not in the building. I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass. Then I thought, “This is the Library, the Library that is in the building, but not in the building.” I walked in and saw the books on the shelves, the rows of books, and the shelves behind the glass.

If you see a tear of joy, I wish you knew, of “Spellman and Sons” fame, but for the lack of it, I woke up the other day and my eyes were made up to an appearance of glamourousness.

Dennis W. Craig
Be a Class Officer or
Student Leader 1988-89

Mon. thru Fri.
6 to 8 p.m. — "Music Plus" — News and Sports news - updated reports specialty shows

Mondays: (11-2 am) "Make The Music Go Bang!" (9 p.m) "Sports Page"

Tuesdays: (11-2 am) "Metal Flight"

Wednesdays: (11-2 am) "Urban Sensations" (9-11 pm) "Top 20 College Radio Countdown"

great giveaways

This week: Free Solar Eclipse Tanning Sessions

new rock 92

gnu music

WAMC "POUGHEEPSIE"
For information on booking at one shows. Check the radio station today.

Marist junior is first in comedy contest

by Shelley Smith

Along with variations, the second summer of cover brings another attempt to fill a new mold. "People in Poughkeepsie are a lot more friendly than the people in NYC eyes," said Carmine Porcelli, who grew up in Poughkeepsie.

"The twice I visited the city, it seemed like a land far away. But it seems like it's a lot more friendly than the people in NYC eyes," said Porcelli, who grew up in Poughkeepsie.

"You're not alone," he said.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.

"What kept me here though was the friendly people. I was located about an hour of both worlds" situation that humanism and a kind of "best of both worlds" opportunity that Porcelli agrees that the location for college advancement at Poughkeepsie.
The story behind the M on the river's bank

An alumnus remembers

Although the old M remains, it seems we've gone through many changes at Marist. People come and go. Some people even refer to it as a replica. I'm one of those who believe the old M is the real one.

I was wondering if you could provide me with some information about the old M. I remember seeing it on the Hudson River. Can you tell me more about its history?

The Psyche survey of campaign '88

SURVEY OF CAMPAIGN '88

President of the United States

BUFFALO 43.6%

DULUTH 27.8%

GREEN BAY 27.5%

DOLE 42.5%

KEMP 4%

PEROT 7.6%

SAVAGE 0.1%

SURVEY REACHED 12,000

(number of participants)

12 are pioneers in new service program

by Mollie Garson

Twelve Marist students are the newest members of the Marist College service program. Each of these students has been selected to represent the school in the new program.

The service program is designed to give students the opportunity to volunteer their time and skills to help others. The students will work in various capacities, from tutoring to mentoring, to assist those in need.

Each student in the program will receive a stipend of $60 per week. They will work a minimum of 10 hours per week and a maximum of 20 hours per week.

The service program is open to all Marist students, and applications are being accepted now. If you are interested in learning more about this program, please contact the Office of Community Service at (716) 888-5555.

The weekly crossword puzzle

Answers to last week's puzzle

Thursday morning quarterback

Smits closes out career at Marist

by Chris Barry

The outgoing Marist College basketball team manager Mike Smits

The men's basketball season ended last weekend when Mike Smits retirement from his position as team manager.

Smits, who has been with the basketball team for four years, said he was ready to move on to the next stage of his life.

"It's been a great experience," Smits said. "I've learned a lot about leadership, teamwork, and dedication."
by Joe Muddin

Head Coach Mike Malet hopes this year's lacrosse team can return to the mania-wide-open and team-oriented style of play that the team exhibited during the 1986 campaign when it posted a 12-2 record.

Last year's squad, which posted a 6-8 record, was a different team, according to Malet. "We just never got any rhythm going," he said. Malet attributed last year's change in three things: the loss of nine seniors, an upgraded schedule, and debilitating injuries.

"We dropped the three worst teams from our '86 schedule and picked up three quality Division I teams," Malet said. "We beat the three teams we dropped by a combined score of 73-3."

Malet, however, felt that his squad started to pick things up for the last three games of the season, all of which were wins. "We finally started to play up to our potential," Malet said.

Much of what happens this season will rest upon the shoulders of senior captain Bob Cowie, Dan Arnold, and John Cannon, as well as juniors Tom Donnelan and Pete Cleary, according to Malet.

"I expect big things from those guys this year," Malet said. "If we're going to be successful a lot's going to depend upon them."

One thing that's a step in the right direction for the Red Foxes is the healthy return of senior captain Cowie. Cowie suffered a knee injury that crippled him during much of last year's campaign.

"Bob is our mainstay on defense back there," Malet said. "We have a pretty good defensive corps with Bob and John Cannon."

Cowie, a business major from Elmo, N.Y., felt that injuries doomed the Red Foxes last year.

"If we can overcome the injuries that plagued us last year, we should do real well," Cowie said. "The thing that's definitely going to help is that this year we have much more depth than last year. We have a lot of freshmen who are really going to make an impact."

Peter Oppenheim, a senior attackman from Yakorns Heights, N.Y., felt many of last year's problems were derived from a lack of cohesion.

"We simply lacked team unity last year," Oppenheim said. "This year seems so different. Everyone's so much more enthusiastic."

Cowie agreed. "If we can keep up our intensity level I don't see anything that should stand in our way of reaching our goal--the conference championship."

---

Crews head south for spring training

by David Blonidin

When thinking of Spring Break in Florida, a few things which might come to mind could be warm weather, water, and laying out getting a tan. Something which might come to mind could be warm average college student. Weather while spending most of the day in their boats.

"We run, row, eat breakfast, row all day, run again, eat dinner and go to bed," said Davis.

The men and women have been training all winter, but the most important thing is the thing spent on the water. When Marist hits the water in Florida it will be for the first time since last fall semester, according to Larry Davis, head coach of both crews.

Most of the crews Marist races against are out of state, and won't be able to row on the Hudson until after Spring Break because of the ice on it, said Davis.

The intense week of training is followed by a three week break which begins on March 28, in New York City against Manhattan College.

The Marist crew, which is comprised of about 70 members is looking to improve on last year's season that Davis said was disappointing.

Davis said his goals... for the season are to get as many boats and medals as possible in the Dad Vail Regatta, at Philadelphia, Pa. May 12-14, and win the President's Cup, which is held at Marist on April 30.

These goals are realistic goals after seeing results of the crews in the fall. In the Head-of-the-Charles regatta, the men's lightweight-eight boat beat all schools that compete in the Dad of Vail and took fifth overall. The women's lightweight-eight took second in competition with the Dad of Vail schools.

Last year's disappointment was the fact that many of the races were cancelled, and the lack of time training on the water, said Davis. "Last year was a complete disaster for us."

"If we can over come the injuries that plagued us last year, we should do real well," Cowie said. "One of the races cancelled during that 3-week period last year was the annual President's Cup Regatta hosted by Marist.

Training on the Hudson has many disadvantages because it is a very wide river that is effected by the tides and the weather, Davis said. This causes Marist to miss an average of 20 percent of their time on the water, compared to other teams that miss only about 5 percent, he said.

---

Sports

Malet hopes days ahead are like old days

by Wes Zahnke

A proposal for the creation of a Division One baseball program will be submitted to Marist officials for the third consecutive spring, according to Brian Colleary, director of athletics.

"At this point I don't know that it's a necessity to have baseball," Colleary said. "The school is doing fine without it."

But Colleary added: "I'm an athletic director. I have to like intercollegiate baseball. That's why I submit the proposals."

The proposal will be submitted to Gerard Cox, vice president of student affairs, Colleary said. From there it will go to the president's cabinet. Determinations for funding are done on a priority system, according to Colleary.

Colleary said the proposed program would have to start on the Division One level due to the college's affiliation with the NCAA.

"You don't start Division One baseball overnight," said Colleary. "You need a year to recruit and play a modified schedule. The next year you'd play 75 percent of a regular season, then in the third season you'd be a Division One team."

The proposed team would play in the ECAC Metro Conference, which Colleary labelled a "good baseball conference."

According to Colleary, the school would have to make a few financial and fiscal commitments. The proposal would consist of a "full package", consisting of an operating budget of $80,000, a salary budget of $15,000 and tuition scholarships of some $60,000.

Colleary proposed 10 tuition scholarships over four years, although he said that could be negotiable, in order to save money.

When asked if sufficient student interest would be enough of a driving force to cause the cabinet's approval, Colleary said he didn't think so.

Colleary said there were two proposed sites on campus for playing fields: the intramural field by McCann, and the north end fields behind the Gartland Commons Apartments.

"We could move either one of the backups back, on the intramural field," Colleary said, "and I think the north ends fields are an ideal place to play."

"There was a lot of pressure of playing at an off-campus field, but with the Dad Vail," Colleary observed, "we don't want to play on campus. There is a great feeling when something is going on, on campus."

---

Hockey team ends season with big win

by Ken Foye

The Marist College hockey team finished its regular-season last week with a victory over Seton Hall University and four Marist seniors ended their collegiate careers in grand style.

They each scored at least one goal.

Seniors Mike Medwig and Steve Metz scored two goals each, and classmates Ken Marasco and Rick Race each scored once, as the Red Foxes snared Seton Hall 16-2 at the Mid-Hudson Civic Center. The team closed its season with an 8-6-2 mark in the Metropolitan Collegiate Hockey Conference. The Red Foxes will play a special postseason game against a Marist alumni team Saturday, at 9 p.m. at the Mid-Hudson Civic Center. Alumni from as far back as 1977 -- when the Marist hockey club started playing in a local men's league -- will assemble to take on the current Marist invaders.

Against Seton Hall, the Red Foxes pumped 38 shots on goal in the first period, scoring nine times, and never looked back as they built a 9-2 lead at the end of the first period, scoring nine times, and never looked back as they built a 9-2 lead at the end of the first period. Murray completely covered a hat trick by scoring another goal in the second period. Scott Kendall also scored three goals for his second hat trick in as many games.

Former defenseman Kevin Walsh finished a strong rookie season nicely, tallying five points.

Marist goalies Jim Stanton and Rich Haag had a rather boring night, facing a combined total of only nine shots.

---

The Red Foxes will play a special postseason game against a Marist alumni team Saturday, at 9 p.m. at the Mid-Hudson Civic Center. Alumni from as far back as 1977 -- when the Marist hockey club started playing in a local men's league -- will assemble to take on the current Marist invaders.