Two freshmen have been dismissed from the college for pulling false alarms on November 16, according to college officials. Michael McCrorey and Martin Murphy pulled the alarms early that morning after returning from Sidetracked, a bar on Parker Avenue, Poughkeepsie, according to Joseph Leary, director of safety and security.

The Poughkeepsie fire chief and the Town of Poughkeepsie police discussed the case with Leary, and agreed not to press criminal charges provided there was severe disciplinary action taken. Leary said he strongly requested dismissal to Executive Vice President Mark Sullivan.

Perusing in the periodical piles; students say they want more

Two freshmen have been dismissed from the college for pulling false alarms on the second and third floors in Leo on November 16, according to college officials. Michael McCrorey and Martin Murphy pulled the alarms early that morning after returning from Sidetracked, a bar on Parker Avenue, Poughkeepsie, according to Joseph Leary, director of safety and security.

The Poughkeepsie fire chief and the Town of Poughkeepsie police discussed the case with Leary, and agreed not to press criminal charges provided there was severe disciplinary action taken. Leary said he strongly requested dismissal to Executive Vice President Mark Sullivan.

Generally, both Bull and Library Director John McGinty said most undergraduate schools the same size as Marist have an open stacks policy. The closed stacks policy restricted periods to student aides, which often produced lines of students waiting to be served — About 40 percent of the time, a nurse mistakenly interpreted her father's Irish songs in different pubs and I always wanted to get up on stage and sing with him.

Paddy Noonan is known as "Ireland's Own Ambassador of Irish Culture" throughout all of the United States and Canada, who has traveled in Ireland and England. She said she is still in "walk mode" before sheUng a review of her memoirs, which are currently available in most record stores.

The sequel to a best seller when she is telling the story of her father's life at her birthday, the story will be titled "Second Sess."

"Connie Noonan is a very curious person," she said. "God knows, it just could have been her name."
END OF FALL SEMESTER CLOSING PROCEDURES FOR RESIDENT STUDENTS

The College Residence Areas will close on Wednesday, December 19, 1990 at 10:00 p.m. The last meal served on Wednesday will be dinner. During the period of Friday, December 7th and Thursday, December 14, 1990 all students must sign up with their R.A. or U.C. for a room inspection check-off. This room inspection will take place after your last exam and/or at your RA’s request. The last day to receive a Guest Pass is Tuesday, December 11th. No guests will be permitted during finals week.

After your last final exam, your room must be cleaned, inspected by your R.A. and vacated immediately thereafter. Extra garbage bags will be available from your Residence Director. (Please take all garbage outside to the dumpsters.) Students who have an evening exam must leave their area no later than 10 p.m. See your R.A. for local instructions. Remember, any student who requested a room change for the Spring Semester or is withdrawing at the end of the Fall Semester, must clear out their dormitory room completely of all personal belongings! Students will be contacted during the January Break to pick up their items.

NO motor vehicles will be permitted to drive up to residence facilities for loading due to fire safety concerns. All students must make arrangements to carry their belongings to the parking lots to load their items.

Those students who rented a college refrigerator and are transferring, withdrawing, or participating in an internship, must return the cleaned and defrosted refrigerator to the Housing and Residential Life Office, Campus Center, room 270 by Monday December 17, 1990.

The College assumes no liability for lost, stolen or damaged items left in students’ rooms. Be sure to take all valuables with you. If you are interested in off-campus storage service through a local private agency, please stop by the Housing and Residential Life Office for details.

Students who will not be returning to Marist College Housing for the Spring 1991 Semester due to disciplinary concerns, academic dismissal, or voluntary withdrawal and still have personal items in their rooms must remove them prior to the start of the Spring Semester. The Housing and Residential Life Office has arranged two days when students can return to the College to pick up their belongings. These dates are Thursday and Friday, January 17th and 18th, 1991 between 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Please stop in to the Housing and Residential Life Office so we can assist you in getting into your area and completing any necessary paperwork.

DEPARTURE PROCEDURES

Your RA must inspect your room and file a Room Inspection Form with the Resident Director. You must secure your room (lock the windows, electrical plugs disconnected, curtains drawn, windows secured, and refrigerator defrosted and cleaned). Only those students who are not returning to College Housing for the Spring 1991 Semester MUST return their key to their RA upon check-out. Students who do not return their key will be billed $50.

For the Spring 1991 Semester, the Residence Halls will re-open on Tuesday, January 22nd at 12 noon. The first meal served will be dinner on Tuesday. The first scheduled class of the Spring Semester is Wednesday, January 23rd at 8:15 a.m. Please plan your travel arrangements accordingly! No early arrivals will be approved.

A rude awakening on River Day's Eve

DAN HULL

The thought of River Day before Christmas, and all through the holidays, as a student's first year came to a close. The coffee was running hot, the students were arriving, and the excitement was mounting. But as the clock struck midnight, the first year students were woken up by a rude awakening on River Day's Eve.

The students, still in their pajamas, were surprised to find that the festivities had begun. Patches of the snow had fallen, and the air was crisp. The first year students were greeted with a flurry of activity as the seniors prepared to celebrate the end of their college careers.

The students were in awe as they witnessed the seniors' elaborate preparations. They had decorated the campus with lights and streamers, and the air was filled with the sounds of music and laughter.

Marist 2000: Where we've been; Where we're going

by BARBARA JOYCE

Monday, October 23

"Marist 2000: Where we've been; Where we're going" is a name that the students have been hearing for the past year. It seems to have created some apprehension and some excitement as well. The word "plan" is frequently mentioned in a sentence with "Marist 2000." What is the Marist 2000 plan?" asked Barbara Joyce.

Marist 2000 is a campaign for the future of Marist College. It has been described as a student friendly plan. "Marist 2000 is all about the students," said Bill Stoppie, Vice President of Marketing and Communications. "We want to make sure that everyone, from the students to the faculty to the staff, understands their role in the Marist 2000 plan." The plan is designed to improve the campus experience and to make Marist a more attractive place to live.

New curriculum will soon take shape

by BILL STOLPE

Students in environmental science may be watching at the board on Wednesday, October 25, when the new curriculum is introduced. The new curriculum will be the first major revision in several years. "We are excited about the new curriculum," said Diane Reininger, Chair of the Department of Environmental Science. "It will provide a new focus on the environment and a new approach to learning." The new curriculum will be implemented in the fall of 1991.

The new curriculum will include a emphasis on practical skills, such as fieldwork and data analysis. "We want to make sure that our students are prepared for the real world," said Reininger. "The new curriculum will give them the tools they need to succeed." The new curriculum will also include a new emphasis on interdisciplinary studies. "We want to make sure that our students are prepared to think critically and to solve problems," said Reininger. "The new curriculum will give them the tools they need to succeed." The new curriculum will be implemented in the fall of 1991.

A look back at the old days

by JOHN HUBBARD and PENELLA FEREN

The Marist of the past was a very different place. The campus was much smaller, and the student body was much younger. "We had to work much harder," said one former student. "We had to be more independent." The campus was also much more rustic. "We had to walk everywhere," said another former student. "We had to be more self-sufficient." The campus was also much more rural. "We had to be more self-reliant," said a third former student. "We had to be more environmentally aware." The campus was also much more decentralized. "We had to be more self-governing," said a fourth former student. "We had to be more self-motivated." The campus was also much more traditional. "We had to be more self-disciplined," said a fifth former student. "We had to be more self-controlled." The campus was also much more community oriented. "We had to be more self-sacrificing," said a sixth former student. "We had to be more self-sacrificing." The campus was also much more family oriented. "We had to be more self-sacrificing," said a seventh former student. "We had to be more self-sacrificing." The campus was also much more education oriented. "We had to be more self-sacrificing," said an eighth former student. "We had to be more self-sacrificing."

Marist 2000: Where we’ve been; Where we’re going

By Michael Fenney

As the Marist College class of 1990 left the campus, fear and uncertainty continued to dominate the Marist College campus. The College was a college in transition, with a new president, new goals, new challenges, and new opportunities. The future of Marist College was uncertain, as the College was struggling to redefine itself in the face of rapidly changing economic conditions and competition in a variety of sports.

The College was in a state of flux, with many changes occurring. The enrollment of the College was down, and the College was facing financial difficulties. The College was struggling to attract students, and the College was losing students to other institutions.

The College was in a transition period, and the College was searching for a new direction. The College was in a state of uncertainty, and the College was looking for a new vision.

The Red Foxes will be entering the newly formed Iroquois League when they go to the college level. Last season, the Red Foxes went 13-9 while winning the conference championship.

"This is great for Marist as well as for the other conference members," said Marist's head coach, John Magarity. "It's a chance for us to compete against some of the best teams in the country and also to recruit new players."

The Red Foxes will be playing against some of the best teams in the conference, including Army, Navy, and Fairfield. After the Army game, which was won by Marist, 65-47, the Red Foxes will play another team that is likely to be strong competition. The other team is chosen by the conference, and the game will be held in a new court that was built specifically for the Red Foxes.

The team went 13-9 last season, which was a close match. The team had a good season, and they are looking forward to the new season with high hopes.

Hanna said that the team was able to compete against some of the best teams in the country, and they are looking forward to the new season with high hopes.

Swimmers sunk in two meets

by TED HOLMLUND
Sports Writer

The men's swim team dropped a pair of meets last week, lowering its record to 1-4. Saturday, Marist dropped a tough 122-121 decision to SUNY Stonybrook.

Leading the charge for the Red Foxes was captain Scott Tummisen. The senior finished first in the 50-meter freestyle with a time of 22.80. Tummisen also won the 100-meter freestyle with a time of 49.94. Also notching two personal victories was Britt Hartman. The junior captured the 200-meter butterfly in 2:11.37 and the 200-meter freestyle with a time of 1:54.07.

Tom Bubel earned first place honors in the 200-meter individual medley, winning with a time of 2:09.18. Mike Carr finished first in 3-meter diving with a score of 210.20. Bubel also finished second in the 1-meter diving event.

Franza also scored his first victory ever in the diving events. Bubel also chipped in with a victory in the 200-meter breaststroke and gave solid performances in the 200-meter individual medley and the 500-meter freestyle.

Head Coach Larry van Wagner said he was pleased with the team's dual meet record, but he is looking for better results next semester. "Even though we are 1-4, we have had a few close losses," he said. "We have a lack of depth, but we should be stronger next semester with the return of sophomore Chris Laffier and senior Mike Lynch, who was in an internship program this semester." van Wagner said that the team goal is to be competitive in the conference.

"Our focus at a team is to place in the top three in the conference," he said. Marist will be competing against seventeen other teams in the conference championship.

Playing the consolation game of its own tournament was something Marist hoped would not happen. Yet, this was the first time in the tournament's five-year history that the Red Foxes did not win the championship.

Against Lehigh, Marist had opportunities down the stretch but was unable to convert offensively. Trailering 70-68 with only three minutes left in the game, the Red Foxes had two opportunities to tie the score. However, those were wiped away by turnovers from Andy Lake and Ireti Buchanan.

"It was anybody's game right there," said Lehigh Head Coach David Duke. "We got two easy buckets, the breaks were ours."...

Cagers beaten; lose Classic; slip to 0-5

Five games into the season, the men's basketball team is still searching for its first victory.

This past weekend, the Red Foxes dropped two games in the Pepsi-Marist Classic lowering their record to 0-5, the worst start ever for a Marist team.

The Red Foxes fell to Brown University in the opening round 82-79. Saturday night, Marist received its second defeat of the season when it was defeated by Lehigh University, 76-73.

A wish list complete for every sports fan

Dear Santa,

It's that time of year again. The time when the North Pole gets bombarded with letters from little kids like me from all over the world asking you for things we want for free.

Well Santa, it's my turn. Although some may not agree with me, I have been a very good boy this year and as you know, little kid, you don't have to check my name twice. Since this list is special, being the selfish person that I am, the thing I'm asking for are for other people. They are not for me. I just want to bring to your attention what needs to be given to people during this festive season.

First of all, St. Nick, you can forget about the comb you were trying to give to Marist football coach Rick Pardy. After winning the Atlantic Collegiate Football Conference championship, Pardy had his hair cut short, real short, on Saturday and he won't be needing a comb in the near future.

Men's basketball coach Dave Magarity is next on my list, Santa. What he needs is a win. If his team doesn't beat Army, please help them when they play in California.

Santa, senior forward Reggie Gaur needs a good dose of self-confidence. He has been struggling as of late and in order for the team to do well this year, he has to be a force.

For Hockey Coach Bob Matties, would you bring me a new coach? Zeke Mowart is also on my list. Santa, I, along with Lisa O'lon, would really appreciate it if you could bring him a towel.

For George Steinebrenner, I would like you to bring a pacifier. After being banned from baseball for life, he is still whining to commissioner Fay Vincent for the Yankees win.

For former Marist-great Rik Smits, and the rest of his Indiana Pacers, I would like you to bring a new coach. The Pacers are struggling and Head Coach Dick Versace is behind it. What Rik needs is a coach that will use his talent well and get the Pacers running on the court.

Santa, it would be nice if you could bring a national championship to the Red Foxes. They have a win over Nebraska in the C.M.C. Bowl. The Ramblin' Rock will be the only undefeated team in the land, an accomplishment worthy of a national title.

Next on my list is Patrick Ewing. The New York Knicks center needs a two-week vacation. With no support from his teammates, Ewing is forced to carry the Knicks on his shoulders.

Dan Sullivan, Director of Sports Media Relations and Promotions, needs a bottle of malted milk. You see Santa, Dan will be spending the holidays on the beaches of California and I wouldn't want to see his creamy complexion ruined.

To Mike Tyson, a worthy opponent. After knocking out Alex Stewart, the fighter announced that he will next take on Razor Ruddock before fighting Evander Holyfield. The fight takes place, Tyson won't even be nicked by that Razor.

The Buffalo Bills need some respect, Santa. This team is the only chance that the AFC has in winning the Super Bowl, a game the NFC has won six straight years. However, no one, including myself, has given them their due.

Jerry Tarkanian, basketball coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, needs some thank-you notes to send to the NCAA after it reversed its decision that originally prohibited his club from defending its national title.

Trency Strawberry needs...Oh, forget about him, Santa, he is making $4 million per year, let him buy it himself.

Well, Santa, that's it. I hope this list isn't too much to ask. If you could get me everything on it, the sports world would be a better place.

Thanks Santa,
