Viewpoint
The Gulf War:
interpretation and perspective

Volume 38, Number 2
Marist College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
February 14, 1991

February expressions

Sophomore Maris Licari fills out a Valentine's Day message for a friend. Freshman Paul Jones, right, and Christopher Smith, sophomore, help sell the candy-grams last week in the Campus Center.

College gears up to fight Cuomo, financial aid cuts

by STACEY MCDONNELL
Managing Editor

Marist officials will call upon faculty, administration, staff and students to help fight Gov. Mario Cuomo's proposed budget, which would cut nearly a million dollars in state aid to the college, President Dennis J. Murphy said.

"I cannot overstate how serious this matter is for Marist," Murphy said in a letter to the college community. "We must make our voices heard by convincing the governor and the Legislature that these proposed cuts would be counterproductive and should be rejected."

And although the college stands to lose $582,000 in aid, officials will keep tuition increases to the bare minimum next year because students will also be hit with losses in the Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) and the Regents College scholarships, he said.

Students participating in the Model U.N. program paid $300 to have their own money to finance this week's program at Princeton University after they were refused funding by the board, said Martin Camacho, one of the participants.

The board was host to the governor's budget cuts and operations of the executive vice president. Special attention to the concentration will be placed on legislators to fight Cuomo.

Clubs find tough competition for funding

by TRICIA RIZZUTO
Staff Writer

Despite the allocation of an additional $9,000 last week by student government, some Marist organizations remain upset about the small amount of money they have received this semester.

"A lot of clubs are saying that they can't do certain activities because they have no money," said John Campbell, general manager of the campus radio station WMCR.

WMCR received about $500 last semester, according to Campbell, but will get only about $350 for the spring term. Steve Sasso, director of college activities, said the smaller allocations are the result of a growing number of new clubs, which increases competition for funding from the $50 activity fee paid by each full-time student per semester.

In addition, Sasso said 66 percent of the money set aside this year for organizations had already been allocated in the fall.

Sasso denied a claim by some club presidents that an oversaturation of college enrollment has led to a misallocation of how much money would be available.

A total of $73,415 was allocated for club activity by the board, said Martin Camacho, one of the participants.

"I'm not happy with the way it was handled," said Dumont.

The budget process is longer and more complicated than many people think.

The word on parking cars: tickets and "boots" are booming

by JOHN DEARDEN
Staff Writer

Security officials may need to order more pens if they're to keep up with the recent rash of parking violations Marist students have been amassing.

Security had issued 294 parking tickets and "boots" — 10 cars this semester through Feb. 3, said J.E. Leary, director of public safety and security.

"There seems to have been a media flap over the Christmas break regarding the parking policy," said Leary.

The boom in tickets is due mainly to the new parking policy instituted last fall by the college.

That policy requires all vehicles parked on campus to be registered with the Office of Safety and Security and parked in their designated areas — areas that students say are often inconvenient to classes and residences.

For all of 1990, 278 vehicles were booted and 20 were towed. According to Leary, 95 percent of the violations were a result of the new parking policy.

When a car is booted, a large sign is applied to the front left-hand tire, immobilizing the vehicle.

Most fines are $25. Another $20 is charged for a boot removal, and to have it all done by an outside firm, usually runs about $60. Towing is used only extreme cases, Leary said.

Flines are paid at Student Accounts, and is a major hassle, says Margaret Cassalina, who must collect the money from the often irate student.

Students say they don't recall any complaints about parking violations.

Cassalina, an accounts receivable clerk, recalls one student even paid a $45 fine with the exact amount in unwrapped pennies.

The money collected from parking violations is deposited into the school's general account, which is used to fund the day-to-day operations of the college, said Lizette Viera, senior accountant.

The problem Marist drivers face is that one, 1,992 parking spaces must accommodate about 4,000 students and staff, although not all of them drive to campus.

"I sympathize with those students who have to walk from McCann to Dyson, but the point is: Park where you're parked, and if you're not parked, walk," said Leary.

Marist staff members are subject to the same rules as are students, and are also ticketed by security, according to Leary.

Anyone hoping security might ease up had better be prepared to shell out some cash, Leary warns.
Another Friday night...

New seminar series geared to female perspectives

by JEAN DESIMONE

Staff Writer

Dr. Margaret Gallagher has chosen a series of sessions designed to help future female students of psychology understand the options available to them in the field. One of the seminar's objectives is to help women network and find mentors in the field.

The seminar is entitled "Women Talking About Women," and will feature presentations by various psychologists and other professionals.

The problems and perspectives that women face in the field of psychology are often overlooked or discounted. The seminar will address these issues and provide a forum for discussion.

Talent night tomorrow

by ROBERT BUCS

Staff Writer

The upcoming Talent Night will feature a variety of musical and theatrical performances. The event is open to all students and is a great opportunity to showcase talents and skills.

Marist students imitate Belgium; class to decide on mock issues

by ISMAEL FERNOW

Staff Writer

Marist College students will participate in a mock international court to decide on issues related to the Gulf War. The court is modeled after the International Criminal Court, and students will role-play judges, attorneys, and defendants.

The court is sponsored by the International Relations Department and is open to all students.

Students plan future, grad school an option

by AMY ANSON

Staff Writer

With a tightening job market, some students are thinking about going to graduate school, two college officials offer some wise advice:

"If you're looking at graduate school, it's important to have a clear idea of what you want to do," said Dean of Students Edward O'Hair. "Make sure you have a solid plan and that you've done your research."
SEILER’S WELCOME BACK COUPONS
DYSON CAFE
BRING THIS COUPON TO DYSON CAFE AND PAY ONLY $1.80 FOR AN EXTRA LARGE SODA.
GOOD FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY

DONELLY CAFE
BRING THIS COUPON TO DONELLY CAFE AND PAY ONLY $1.20 FOR A SMALL COFFEE.
GOOD FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY

BRING THIS COUPON TO SLICES PLUS AND RECEIVE FREE TOPPINGS ON ANY SUB.
GOOD FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY

BRING THIS COUPON TO SLICES PLUS AND RECEIVE FREE TOPPINGS ON ANY SUB.
GOOD FOR THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY

THIRTY BEVERAGE CENTER
1 MILE FROM MARIST COLLEGE

187 N. HAMILTON ST., POUGHKEEPSIE
PHONE 454-1490

WAKE AND BAKE SPRING BREAK 1991!!
FROM CANCUN
$495
DON’T BE LEFT IN THE COLD THIS YEAR!
ALL TRIPS INCLUDE RT AIR, 7 NIGHTS HOTEL, INT TRANSFERS, PARTIES, DISCOUNTS, ACTIVITIES, TAXES AND GRATUITIES (EXCEPT DEPARTURE TAXES)

SUN SPLASH TOURS
1-800-426-7710

THE CIRCLE, FEBRUARY 14, 1991
Last-minute or pre-planned gifts from the heart

The perfect day, the perfect gift

by RICHARD NASS

· Today some gift-givers may rush to Area Super Stores if they fail to purchase to their significant others, as they do on Valentine’s Day.

-Don’t let this happen to you! If you do visit an Area Super Store to pick out the perfect gift for your someone special, you can purchase to your significant other’s heart’s content.

-After all, the perfect gift is a surprise.

-If your significant other is a gardener, consider a gift of seeds. Seeds can be planted now and will yield a beautiful garden in the spring.

-If your significant other is a reader, consider a book. Books are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a cook, consider a cookbook. Cookbooks are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a movie fan, consider a DVD. DVDs are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a musician, consider a music CD. Music CDs are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a traveler, consider a travel guide. Travel guides are a great gift for anyone who enjoys traveling.

-If your significant other is a pet owner, consider a gift for their pet. Gifts for pets are a great gift for anyone who enjoys their pet.

-If your significant other is a sports fan, consider a sports ticket. Sports tickets are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness fan, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.

-If your significant other is a sports enthusiast, consider a sports gift. Sports gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching sports.

-If your significant other is a fitness enthusiast, consider a fitness gift. Fitness gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys exercising.

-If your significant other is a DIY enthusiast, consider a DIY gift. DIY gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys crafting.

-If your significant other is a socialite, consider a social gift. Social gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys socializing.

-If your significant other is a creative artist, consider a creative gift. Creative gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys creating.

-If your significant other is a craftsman, consider a crafts gift. Crafts gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys making things.

-If your significant other is a techie, consider a techie gift. Techie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys technology.

-If your significant other is a foodie, consider a food gift. Food gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys cooking.

-If your significant other is a bookworm, consider a book gift. Book gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys reading.

-If your significant other is a movie buff, consider a movie gift. Movie gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys watching movies.

-If your significant other is a music lover, consider a music gift. Music gifts are a great gift for anyone who enjoys listening to music.
Our relationship with IBM

Listening to some people talk about Marist is, at times, amusing. When tour guides from the Office of Admissions field a group of prospective students and their parents around campus, their monologues occasionally evoke a chuckle from current Marist students, who know what the day-to-day realities of the university are like. But at least they’re honest.

Of course, the tour guides do a fine job of showing visiting students the more salient features of the college – the gym, the Business Center, the donuts in Donnelly Hall, the Quad. Students, who know what the day-to-day realities are like, sometimes chuckle at the tour guides’ wayward monologues. But they’re probably, privately, not as far off the mark. After all, a humoristic question put forth to a tour guide by a current student is, “What’s really funny about Marist’s relationship with IBM?”

Before as long as two years ago, when the IBM-Marist joint study was announced, everyone at Marist—administration, students, faculty, and parents—knew what the day-to-day realities of the relationship were like. It was kind of funny. A couple of Marist students could say, “I even had a conversation with the President about this.”

But the core of the study is this: IBM donated computers to Marist because it wanted to increase the computing capacity of a small to medium-sized customer—Marist—and use those results as marketing and development tools for their businesses.

This is all over now, however. IBM has decided to end its relationship with Marist. It’s okay though. I think Berger King is still smiling. Marist is no longer in the market for IBM computers.

No news means you lose

Letter Policy

The Circle welcomes all letters to the editor. Letters must be typed and include the author’s name, address, and phone number. Letters are limited to 200 words. All letters should be addressed to Marist, The Circle, through campus mail or the online form. The Circle reserves the right to edit submissions for length, libel, style, and good taste.

Occasional pitfalls don’t detract from studying in Ireland

Owen S. Connelly, '91

Our relationship with IBM

Listening to some people talk about Marist is, at times, amusing. When tour guides from the Office of Admissions field a group of prospective students and their parents around campus, their monologues occasionally evoke a chuckle from current Marist students, who know what the day-to-day realities of the university are like—especially when they’re honest. But at least they’re honest.

Of course, the tour guides do a fine job of showing visiting students the more salient features of the college–the gym, the Business Center, the donuts in Donnelly Hall, the Quad. Students, who know what the day-to-day realities are like, sometimes chuckle at the tour guides’ wayward monologues. But they’re probably, privately, not as far off the mark. After all, a humoristic question put forth to a tour guide by a current student is, “What’s really funny about Marist’s relationship with IBM?”

Before as long as two years ago, when the IBM-Marist joint study was announced, everyone at Marist—administration, students, faculty, and parents—knew what the day-to-day realities of the relationship were like. It was kind of funny. A couple of Marist students could say, “I even had a conversation with the President about this.”

But the core of the study is this: IBM donated computers to Marist because it wanted to increase the computing capacity of a small to medium-sized customer—Marist—and use those results as marketing and development tools for their businesses.

This is all over now, however. IBM has decided to end its relationship with Marist. It’s okay though. I think Berger King is still smiling. Marist is no longer in the market for IBM computers.

No news means you lose

Editor’s Notebook

Ike Selby

Think before you type

The Circle welcomes all letters to the editor. Letters must be typed and include the author’s name, address, and phone number. Letters are limited to 200 words. All letters should be addressed to Marist, The Circle, through campus mail or the online form. The Circle reserves the right to edit submissions for length, libel, style, and good taste.

Occasional pitfalls don’t detract from studying in Ireland

Owen S. Connelly, '91

Our relationship with IBM

Listening to some people talk about Marist is, at times, amusing. When tour guides from the Office of Admissions field a group of prospective students and their parents around campus, their monologues occasionally evoke a chuckle from current Marist students, who know what the day-to-day realities of the university are like—especially when they’re honest. But at least they’re honest.

Of course, the tour guides do a fine job of showing visiting students the more salient features of the college–the gym, the Business Center, the donuts in Donnelly Hall, the Quad. Students, who know what the day-to-day realities are like, sometimes chuckle at the tour guides’ wayward monologues. But they’re probably, privately, not as far off the mark. After all, a humoristic question put forth to a tour guide by a current student is, “What’s really funny about Marist’s relationship with IBM?”

Before as long as two years ago, when the IBM-Marist joint study was announced, everyone at Marist—administration, students, faculty, and parents—knew what the day-to-day realities of the relationship were like. It was kind of funny. A couple of Marist students could say, “I even had a conversation with the President about this.”

But the core of the study is this: IBM donated computers to Marist because it wanted to increase the computing capacity of a small to medium-sized customer—Marist—and use those results as marketing and development tools for their businesses.

This is all over now, however. IBM has decided to end its relationship with Marist. It’s okay though. I think Berger King is still smiling. Marist is no longer in the market for IBM computers.

No news means you lose

Editor’s Notebook

Ike Selby

Think before you type

The Circle welcomes all letters to the editor. Letters must be typed and include the author’s name, address, and phone number. Letters are limited to 200 words. All letters should be addressed to Marist, The Circle, through campus mail or the online form. The Circle reserves the right to edit submissions for length, libel, style, and good taste.

Occasional pitfalls don’t detract from studying in Ireland

Owen S. Connelly, '91

Our relationship with IBM

Listening to some people talk about Marist is, at times, amusing. When tour guides from the Office of Admissions field a group of prospective students and their parents around campus, their monologues occasionally evoke a chuckle from current Marist students, who know what the day-to-day realities of the university are like—especially when they’re honest. But at least they’re honest.

Of course, the tour guides do a fine job of showing visiting students the more salient features of the college–the gym, the Business Center, the donuts in Donnelly Hall, the Quad. Students, who know what the day-to-day realities are like, sometimes chuckle at the tour guides’ wayward monologues. But they’re probably, privately, not as far off the mark. After all, a humoristic question put forth to a tour guide by a current student is, “What’s really funny about Marist’s relationship with IBM?”

Before as long as two years ago, when the IBM-Marist joint study was announced, everyone at Marist—administration, students, faculty, and parents—knew what the day-to-day realities of the relationship were like. It was kind of funny. A couple of Marist students could say, “I even had a conversation with the President about this.”

But the core of the study is this: IBM donated computers to Marist because it wanted to increase the computing capacity of a small to medium-sized customer—Marist—and use those results as marketing and development tools for their businesses.

This is all over now, however. IBM has decided to end its relationship with Marist. It’s okay though. I think Berger King is still smiling. Marist is no longer in the market for IBM computers.

No news means you lose

Editor’s Notebook

Ike Selby

Think before you type

The Circle welcomes all letters to the editor. Letters must be typed and include the author’s name, address, and phone number. Letters are limited to 200 words. All letters should be addressed to Marist, The Circle, through campus mail or the online form. The Circle reserves the right to edit submissions for length, libel, style, and good taste.

Occasional pitfalls don’t detract from studying in Ireland

Owen S. Connelly, '91

Our relationship with IBM

Listening to some people talk about Marist is, at times, amusing. When tour guides from the Office of Admissions field a group of prospective students and their parents around campus, their monologues occasionally evoke a chuckle from current Marist students, who know what the day-to-day realities of the university are like—especially when they’re honest. But at least they’re honest.

Of course, the tour guides do a fine job of showing visiting students the more salient features of the college–the gym, the Business Center, the donuts in Donnelly Hall, the Quad. Students, who know what the day-to-day realities are like, sometimes chuckle at the tour guides’ wayward monologues. But they’re probably, privately, not as far off the mark. After all, a humoristic question put forth to a tour guide by a current student is, “What’s really funny about Marist’s relationship with IBM?”

Before as long as two years ago, when the IBM-Marist joint study was announced, everyone at Marist—administration, students, faculty, and parents—knew what the day-to-day realities of the relationship were like. It was kind of funny. A couple of Marist students could say, “I even had a conversation with the President about this.”

But the core of the study is this: IBM donated computers to Marist because it wanted to increase the computing capacity of a small to medium-sized customer—Marist—and use those results as marketing and development tools for their businesses.

This is all over now, however. IBM has decided to end its relationship with Marist. It’s okay though. I think Berger King is still smiling. Marist is no longer in the market for IBM computers.

No news means you lose

Editor’s Notebook

Ike Selby

Think before you type

The Circle welcomes all letters to the editor. Letters must be typed and include the author’s name, address, and phone number. Letters are limited to 200 words. All letters should be addressed to Marist, The Circle, through campus mail or the online form. The Circle reserves the right to edit submissions for length, libel, style, and good taste.
Get the Art & Et Calling Card and your first call is free.

With your Art & Et Calling Card, you can call almost anywhere anywhere. And you can keep your calls, even if you move and get a new number.

Our Calling Card is part of the Art & Et Student Savings Program, a whole package of products and services designed to make a student's budget go further. Just look for Art & Et Calling Card applications on campus. Or call at 1-800-535-4055, Ext. 665. And set your alarm clock.

Art & Et. Helping make college life a little easier.
Wrestling hitting the mats again by BRETT ROLO

When Rick Martinez took over the program, he knew he had an uphill battle ahead of him.

"When I first came here I had hoped to get some kids under our umbrella and start building a program," said Martinez. "I was looking for quality wrestlers to work with.

Last semester a total of 10 wrestlers were on the Marist team with a 145-pound weight division.

The men had a decent amount of weight classes and experience when they returned during the fall semester. "We were lucky to have six wrestlers return," he said.

"We are very fortunate to have

six wrestlers return," he said.

Martinez had his sights set on the lightweights.

In total, 11 matches were won by Marist. Martinez and the other coaches were pleased with the overall performance.

"We have 10 weights and only a club," said Martinez. "It's tough to get people interested in the program."

for Marist is amazing," Martinez said. "I would like to get this program jumpstarted and establish something for the future.

Racquetball team bounces to victories by TED HOLMLUND

The racquetball team finished their season 4-0 with wins over SUNY Binghamton and SUNY Plattsburgh.

The men's team finished the day with a 12-7 victory over SUNY Plattsburgh 11-8.

Junior Ukrai was among the elite with a decisive 11-2, 11-3 victory. Club President Erik Pack also played well to pull off a 13-7 victory.

Come sail away: Club is back on the water by KOURTNEY KLOSEN

The newly renovated Marine College

Club, home of the MAISA Championship, was off to a successful start last week with a trip to the Bahamas. The club, which now owns two sailboats, has already made two trips to the Bahamas and is planning for more trips in the future.

The club is planning to purchase a third boat in the near future. The club is also looking into purchasing a fourth boat.

Fishing is another popular activity for the club. The club plans to make a trip to Canada

next month to fish in the St. Lawrence River.

The club is also interested in purchasing

a fly fishing boat.

Marist employer expo

The EXPO is an opportunity for students to discuss career opportunities with employers representing human services, business, education, communications, government, legal, liberal arts, fashion design, and more.

The EXPO is for you if you are a freshman, sophomore, junior, senior, graduate student, or alumna.

No registration required, just come! Students are advised to dress professionally and bring resumes.

Employers will be able to answer your questions about career pathways, job outlook, summer jobs, and more!

(Match for our ad in next week's Circle where employers attending will be listed)

Mermen avant champions again by KENT RIMAHRT

The men's swimming and diving team took the lead in their first meet of the season.

"This year there are about five guys that are really good," said Martinez. "I was looking for quality wrestlers to work with.

Last semester a total of 10 wrestlers were on the Marist team with a 145-pound weight division.

The men had a decent amount of weight classes and experience when they returned during the fall semester. "We were lucky to have six wrestlers return," he said.

"We are very fortunate to have six wrestlers return," he said.

Martinez had his sights set on the lightweights.

In total, 11 matches were won by Marist. Martinez and the other coaches were pleased with the overall performance.

"We have 10 weights and

only a club," said Martinez. "It's tough to get people interested in the program."

for Marist is amazing," Martinez said. "I would like to get this program jumpstarted and establish something for the future.

Racquetball team bounces to victories by TED HOLMLUND

The racquetball team finished their season 4-0 with wins over SUNY Binghamton and SUNY Plattsburgh.

The men's team finished the day with a 12-7 victory over SUNY Plattsburgh 11-8.

Junior Ukrai was among the elite with a decisive 11-2, 11-3 victory. Club President Erik Pack also played well to pull off a 13-7 victory.

Come sail away: Club is back on the water by KOURTNEY KLOSEN

The newly renovated Marine College

Club, home of the MAISA Championship, was

off to a successful start last week with a trip to the Bahamas. The club, which now

 owns two sailboats, has already made two trips to the Bahamas and is planning for more trips in the future.

The club is planning to purchase a third

boat in the near future. The club is also looking into purchasing a fourth boat.

Fishing is another popular activity for the

club. The club plans to make a trip to Canada

next month to fish in the St. Lawrence River.

The club is also interested in purchasing

a fly fishing boat.

Marist employer expo

The EXPO is an opportunity for students to discuss career opportunities with employers representing human services, business, education, communications, government, legal, liberal arts, fashion design, and more.

The EXPO is for you if you are a freshman, sophomore, junior, senior, graduate student, or alumna.

No registration required, just come! Students are advised to dress professionally and bring resumes.

Employers will be able to answer your questions about career pathways, job outlook, summer jobs, and more!

(Match for our ad in next week's Circle where employers attending will be listed)
Verdict's in: Ladies win

by CHRIS SHEA
Staff Writer

Collins, Galarneau & Fields. Sounds like a prestigious New York City law firm doesn't it? Well, not really. Collins, Galarneau and Charles Fields may not be practicing in the court of law as the legal defense for the women's basketball game last Saturday against Robert Morris, they have been logging some quality practice time on the basketball court.

The three combined for 59 of the team's 80 points in their win over the Colonials. As for the women's basketball team, they have been averaging 22.5 points over the past three games. It was their hottest stretch, scoring a game-high 28 points in a 62-52 win over Hofstra last week.

The Lady Red Foxes have been rolling, with a 5-1-1 record in their last seven games. They have won five games in a row and seven out of their last eight. However, it is still uncertain of whether or not the team's current win streak will continue with the upcoming post-season season.

Galarneau, a senior forward on the squad, was a key player in the team's 81-74 win over Robert Morris. One of her key points during the game was a 3-pointer late in the game to clinch the victory. Her production has been crucial against Robert Morris. Galarneau is currently tied for second (74) in a tightly packed conference race.

Even Head Coach Babineau agreed that the play of his frontcourt was unprecedented. "We have been getting tremendous production out of front-court and obviously I'm real pleased about that. We have been trying to get the ball inside more and it's paying off," said Babineau.

The Lady Red Foxes have averaged 22.5 points over the past few games. They have been on a recent hot streak, scoring a game-high 28 points in a 62-52 win over Hofstra last week. This isn't finished yet though.

"This isn't the squad will qualify for the conference finals but we are still in the hunt," Babineau said.

Right now, they are playing pond hockey. There is not as much leadership in the game as there was in the past. However, there are still a few key players who have been logging some quality playing time.

For all intents and purposes, Ali is an example of what can happen if a boxer steps into the ring. Leonard never had a chance. He didn't.

Two months later, Ali was beaten by Trevor Berbick, a fighter who did not have a chance against Ali. He could not beat Ali.

Leonard then risked permanent damage to the retina by coming out of retirement to fight again and against the odds. Leonard's weight gain was significant.

="Rocky won, and the same can be said for Leonard and one of the greatest fighters ever — Muhammad Ali. Leonard had nothing to prove. He had done it all. He won an Olympic gold medal as an amateur and he won various professional championships. He was a fighter.

For all intents and purposes, Ali is an example of what can happen if a boxer steps into the ring. Leonard never had a chance. He didn't.

Al and Leonard. They are playing the way they want.

...see HOCKEY page 11

Learning the hard way: Champions face facts

It isn't supposed to end like this. Saturday night, 34-year-old Sugar Ray Leonard announced his retirement from boxing immediately following a loss to Roberto Duran. Leonard never had a chance. He knew that his opponent was bigger and faster, but he could not let his experience and his savvy escape him.

He was wrong.

Leonard, the self-proclaimed "king of the ring" and he did that. Leonard won the fight with a stunning 14th round knockout. Leonard had nothing left to prove. He had done it all. He won an Olympic gold medal as an amateur and he won various professional championships. He was a fighter.

For all intents and purposes, Ali is an example of what can happen if a boxer steps into the ring. Leonard never had a chance. He didn't.

Al and Leonard. They are playing the way they want to play.