A 1991 Marist graduate has already helped to change the world. In the words of Hillary Clinton, Peter O'Keefe needs no introduction. O'Keefe radiates fresh confidence and a touch of surprise at being so successful so early in his political career.

"I never would have guessed I'd be where I am now," O'Keefe, a Poughkeepsie native, said. "I wasn't thinking long-term when I joined the campaign." After graduation, O'Keefe worked on Geraldine Ferraro's Senate campaign before joining the Clinton campaign.

"I decided that I wanted to work on a presidential campaign," O'Keefe said. "I looked into all of the candidates in the field and I liked Bill Clinton the most. I really agreed with his proposals and liked what he had to say on the issues."

O'Keefe began working for Clinton on Dec. 15 and was sent to New Hampshire to help overcome the running of the primary campaign. "It was a little overwhelming with the job I had to do in New Hampshire, the primary, and the campaign headquarters," O'Keefe recalled. "We had two months to introduce our candidate to the state and to convince them to vote for him."

With every candidate concentrating their efforts in New Hampshire, O'Keefe said it was sometimes difficult to fight for attention from the media and the public.

"We literally walked through Manchester with our volunteers," he said. "We went door to door for Bill Clinton in a short amount of time."

O'Keefe began building his reputation in New Hampshire, at one point making it onto CNN. "I will always remember my first event with Clinton," he said. "We had the candidate for the day and we had to get him out in the public eye."

O'Keefe had to find an event for the candidate - something that would gain attention and reflect positively on him. "We decided that the 'message of the day' would be small business," O'Keefe said. "We took Clinton to a small shop that makes environmental tote bags. This went over very well and we were even covered by CNN."

The company made appropriately printed tote bags with slogans of 'Clinton for President.' O'Keefe said there are many memories to cherish when one is involved in a political campaign, especially when it is a winning campaign. "I will always remember meeting Hillary Clinton for the first time in Kentucky, O'Keefe said. "When I was being introduced, Mrs. Clinton said 'Oh, he needs no introduction.' That was pretty special."

O'Keefe said he will also always remember being part of a meeting with leaders of the Perot campaign in July. He was joined by Clinton and Al Gore. Working on a presidential campaign was what he expected and more.

"It was exciting to be able to work in this field," O'Keefe said. "I liked the idea of running in different states."

While running a political campaign may appear glamorous and exciting, it had its low points. "It was sometimes not glamorous or enthusiastic at all times as being after the New Hampshire primaries and finishing second in the primary to President Bush and many doubted his candidacy," O'Keefe said. "Working on a campaign as chair of the Clinton campaign was what I expected and more."

"I was at a conference and saw a colleague and she said she got a call asking her to testify in a hearing for something that happened a couple of years ago. When she heard the testimony, she thought it was a reference to the job."

Despite the recent attention on sexual harassment, laws banning sexual harassment were included in the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Although males and females can both be victims of sexual harassment, many said sexual harassment is geared toward women.

"Sexual harassment is much more common than it used to be," O'Keefe said. "It is a winning campaign."

"We decided that 'The Comeback Kid' after finishing second in the primary to Paul Tsongas, but the fund was running low and many doubted his candidacy. Workers such as O'Keefe were making a living that was receiving only a little money. People..."

Businesspeople will either have to leave their businesses for the wrecking crew of the Department of Transportation, or just get a face-lift when the expansion of the roadway has to wait until May of next year.

The properties on Route 9 between DeSoto and Riverpoint roads begin. However, until then, the widening of the roadway has to wait un­til May of next year.

I found a new path in my life, a new direction. If you could change my major, I would be... "Bodyguard's" success, despite Costner's hair

I read in a well and out of the campaign were questioning if Costner was reeling from the controversy. O'Keefe said it was impossible to know. "I don't think it's possible to know," he said. "I think it's just hard to..."

"Bodyguard" is a success, despite Costner's hair... The political costs might be even greater. A poll conducted for The Washington Post in early May shows that the film's popularity has not translated into increased support for the candidates. According to the poll, only 8 percent of those surveyed said they would vote for O'Keefe, while 72 percent said they would vote for Clinton. The poll also found that 14 percent of those surveyed said they would vote for Perot.

"I think it's a very difficult time," O'Keefe said. "It's a very difficult time for people to make decisions. It's a time when people are trying to figure out what they want to do."

This is Christmas

No, Virginia, there is no Santa Claus. He does not exist. Not on 34th Street, not in the North Pole, not in Poughkeepsie; nor even in piecework, backwoods Vermont villages. He is a myth, a legend, a figment of the Poughkeepsie lucky though. It doesn’t need make-believe heroes like good, old St. Nick.

Unlike many places through out this spoiled cotton, give-me-give country, Poughkeepsie has a group of people who know there is no jolly old elf in a bright, red suit to dole out presents to everyone from city to Marist clubs, according to a letter sent to club-leaders by Tim Owens. It seems to say that if you won’t help out because you want to be while images of wild weekend parties dance in their heads. Some people

Thankfully, some people realize that ‘tis the season. They do not stroll around waiting for a call from Santa. The spirit of the season is not the way good reporting

The Women Soccer Club would like to remind everyone that games are on this weekend and next week. The Circle will have its Drag Show on this Saturday, and our second annual Winter Carnival will be held on the weekend of January 24th.

No fear, no homeless, no pain. Roughly, it went like this:

"Apocalypse Now"?; "I asked for some sugar. He gave me enough sugar to drown the world."

If you knew that your body was that of a drobot and that your life was a one-way ticket to Cleveland.

The damage that leapt from his body was found in his hands. He could not be cured by the White House.

Kennedy didn’t see the bullets that struck him. He was just a nice guy from Marist, he was still a nice guy and someone who knew me better than the thing I would ever want to do with his relations is not the way good reporting

No, they are not saints. They are just the people who participate in the Marist College Giving Tree Project.

The world needs more people like this. This project was started by a Marist student. It’s a miracle of this sort happens every year. The Giving Tree enables approximately 20 local families to have presents under the Christmas tree. It provides the opportunity to give community service opportunities to Marist clubs, according to a letter sent to club-leaders by Tim Owens and Jennifer Smith, the club leaders. True enough, all clubs should be interested in helping out in some way. However, the only paragraph which calls for leaders to participate in the Giving Tree Project, Owens and Smith say something that seems rather callous but is true.

The letter states that helping with the project “always brings with it a lot of joy and satisfaction and is even more rewarding to the Marist students. It seems to say that if you won’t help out because you want to be while images of wild weekend parties dance in their heads. Some people

The Damned are James Brown, the Jackson 5, and most recently, George Michael. He has been described as a “permissive social views” and endorse political activism. I think that these are the people who are behind the scenes.

However, in the same paragraph which asks club leaders to participate in the Giving Tree Project, Owens and Smith say something that seems rather callous but is true.

Our team seems to be doing pretty well, but we need to be more consistent. We have had some strong performances, but we also have some poor ones. We need to work on our consistency and make sure we are giving our best every game. It's important to remember that we are a young team and still learning. We have to keep improving and building on our strengths. Let's focus on the positives and keep working hard to achieve our goals.
