Crime declines in town & city of Poughkeepsie

by J.W. STEWART

The overall crime rates in both the City and Town of Poughkeepsie dropped in 1991, according to statistics provided by the two police departments.

Numbers released by the City of Poughkeepsie show its crime rate is down because of a drop in rapes, robberies and auto thefts. There were only 13 rapes in the compared to 17 in 1990, and robberies also fell from 214 to 197.

The most significant crime change was vehicle theft, which plummeted from 198 to 119, a 40 percent swing in one year.

"What I found was there's so many different things we do," she said. "Working here, everything is thoroughly and quickly, which is a change from the number of paperwork, robbers and burglaries.

"Our biggest problem with crime is no different than any other community," he said. "Our biggest problem with crime is no different than any other community.

"They (the people who want drugs) resort to robbers, but I don't think that's the only way," said Delmar. "As if you used a lot of easy money in that so it's not just after a while, it's a never-ending battle," Bowles said.

A similar problem plagues the Town of Poughkeepsie, as Bowles visits to its police chief, Stanley G. Still Jr.

"Drugs are the major motivating factor in criminals today, Houses and inside, and if the criminals can trade goods for crack and cocaine, said Still.

Delmar works at the IRS in Poughkeepsie from 7:30-4:00, Monday through Friday.

"They like things to be done as soon as possible," she said. "She is assigned an internship program she found out about.

Since beginning work at the IRS, Delmar has noticed a difference in this job compared to other jobs.

"It's like we had a busy year. We had a lot of burglaries and our robbers were definitely up," he said.

Although it was lower than last year, he pointed out the Town also suffered from a large amount of larcenies (929) because of all the crime in the area.

Still said $1,327,99 worth of property was stolen from the Town in 1991.

Despite the drug activity, the police chief stated that the crime rate in the Town of Poughkeepsie was lower than it was in 1990 with increases in only house burglaries (293) and armed robberies (22). Still said he was a bit surprised when he saw those numbers.

Some of the major problems with the film lies in the direction and the acting. The main problem with the film is that it is not well-written. The dialogue is flat and often dull. The acting is mediocre, with the exception of a few standout performances. The special effects are also disappointing, with many scenes looking cheap and unconvincing.

The film's pacing is also a problem. It starts off strong, but quickly loses momentum, leading to a disappointing conclusion. The climax is rushed and lacks the impact that it needs to have.

Overall, "Freejack" is a disappointing film that fails to live up to its potential. It is not a must-see for most viewers and is likely to be forgotten quickly. The film's strengths are not enough to overcome its weaknesses, making it a forgettable addition to the film industry.

In conclusion, "Freejack" is not a success. It fails to deliver on its promise and leaves the audience disappointed. The film is not recommended for most viewers and is best avoided.
NYC interns sacrifice sleep and social life to gain experience, contacts in Big Apple

Three days ago by 11 p.m., Michael Silvers was trying to sleep in his one-bedroom apartment in the Village when the phone rang. Despite being one of the few 16-year-olds in his class, Silvers is already working hard to make a name for himself. He speaks fluent Chinese, is fluent in three languages, and is a second-year student at the University of Pennsylvania. But he's not alone. Silvers is one of the thousands of college students who commute to New York City every year to gain valuable work experience. And while it's not easy, Silvers says he's willing to sacrifice his social life for the sake of his career.

Despite several local internship opportunities, Silvers has chosen to commute to New York City to gain work experience. He believes that the sacrifice is worth it.

"I like being in New York City," said Silvers. "It's a great experience." He added that he plans to make New York his permanent home someday.

While Silvers enjoys the experience, he admits that it's not easy. He has to wake up at 5 a.m. every day to catch the 5:30 a.m. train to New York City. And when he gets there, he has to spend the whole day working, often for 12 hours straight. "It's not easy," he said. "But I know it's worth it." He added that he plans to make New York his permanent home someday.

Young people from all over the country are flocking to New York City to gain work experience. And while it's not easy, they see it as an opportunity to gain valuable contacts and experience.

"I think it's worth it," said Silvers. "It's a great experience." He added that he plans to make New York his permanent home someday.

The year of the Accuser
With Clarence Thomas, William Kennedy Smith and Bill Clinton all successfully pleading accusations, will the accuser finally win the Mike Tyson rape trial?

by MARK MARBLE

With the rape trial of Mike Tyson on hold as it is, we are once again treated to what big a hoop (1990-91) this has been for both sides, many in and around the trial, of course, the story is a more than a few had, and now, all said, the accuser. Maybe we could call the past 12 months (1990-91) the alpha kappa psi is celebrating its 100th anniversary by holding many exciting events in the near future, right, boggles the mind. As a result of my research and dedication to the cause, I believe that the trial will end in a settlement.

The good news is that all parties involved have the chance to sort through their problems and come up with some answers.

The trial has been a media circus, and the attention paid to it will undoubtedly continue. But, as the trial progresses, the truth will emerge and the case will be decided.

Even before these events we were writing all business and attending various hearings. Our main concern is to make sure that justice is served and that the truth is revealed.

Prisoner seeks materials for research

The prisoner, who is serving time in a New York state prison, recently wrote to the prison's librarian asking for research materials on the subject of the death penalty. The prisoner is currently serving a life sentence for murder, and is eager to learn more about the history and legal aspects of capital punishment.

Letter to the Editor

I would like to ask a small favor of everyone. We are doing a project for a college class and need to interview someone who is currently serving time in prison. The interview is for a class project and is not for publication. We are looking for someone who has been incarcerated for a long time and can provide a first-hand account of life in prison.

Sincerely,

Withering Heights
With a multi-million dollar project upcoming and a proposal to perhaps radically alter the college's academic structure, is Marist heading into the 21st century unprepared?

Like almost every other social institution in America today, the pressure of change and the need for reform are being felt in higher education. The need for change is evident in the increasing student enrollment. Residence halls and other facilities are branching away from the traditional university setting.

The economic situation is also forcing universities and colleges to reevaluate their mission. They are rethinking the Baby-boom inspired philosophy that there's room for all things to all people. Universities and colleges realize that they may not still be able to finance all of their programs through the issuing of long-term, tax-exempt bonds.

The physical evidence, along with eye-witness accounts, shows that the baby-boom generation is moving away from the traditional university setting.

There's something to consider when one looks at Marist's promising future. The institution is faced with the challenge of preparing for the future and deciding how to allocate its resources. The question is: how should Marist be all things to all people in the future?

From the student body's point of view, the institution is still a small, liberal-arts college with a balanced curriculum. But, Marist is still a small, liberal-arts college with a balanced curriculum.

Fans fuel the flame of ‘Fox Fever’

by TED HOLMLUND

Red Fox fever is back — for real this time. Despite the men’s basketball team’s recent success, the team was struggling to find fans and was facing a losing record. However, a recent men’s basketball game at the McCann Center brought a boost to the team's morale and support.

Despite the men’s basketball team starting the season with a second place finish, there were new faces attending the games. Some members of the cheerleading squad said the fans were more energetic and engaged than in recent years. Richard Santiago (left) and John Joyce showed that they have caught ‘Red Fox Fever’ because the team is winning on a winning streak.

Head Coach Dave Maganty said the victory was a competitive game, and he attributes their performance to the training they did before and after winter intercession. "As the day went on, our communication on the court fell to zero. If they smoothed out some problems, the Red Foxes finished the game," said Maganty. "The freshmen have done all they can possibly do. The Lady swimmers should do well in the conference championships with 11 swimmers and 7 divers.

Lady swimmers in championships

by CHRIS LOLLIEFF Staff Writer

The swimming and diving team will compete in the Metropolitan Collegiate League Championship this weekend. The swim team cannot wait to see the outcome of the meet.

Cheryl Daily, a sophomore, finished in the top ten in two races this weekend. She was waiting to explode. "When we recruited her, we wanted her to be at the top of the heap. She may leave here being the best swimmer in America," said Head Coach Bob Mattice.

The surgery was performed at the Hospital For Special Services in New York. "Once healed, he will be able to start rehabilitation," said Marinelli. "As the day went on, our communication on the court fell to zero. If they smoothed out some problems, the Red Foxes finished the game," said Maganty. "The freshmen have done all they can possibly do. The Red Foxes finished the regular season with a 6-4 mark. The Lady swimmers won again, streak hits three

The women’s volleyball team won a tough match against St. John’s University on Friday, and suffered a loss on Saturday against the University of Pennsylvania. The Lady swimmers won again, streak hits three.

The Red Foxes, 7-12 overall, have a tough time winning away from the home court, but are impressed by their performance. Cagers lose in Garden again; key Pa. roadtrip starts tonight

Last Thursday, the men's basketball team was playing for first place.

The Red Foxes, 7-12 overall and 3-3 in league play, open a critical four-game road trip tonight when they take on St. Francis (Pa.) in a Northeast Conference battle. Saturday, Marist will move down the road and play at Robert Mor­ris, the current leader in the NEC.

After losing three of its last four games, Head Coach Dave Magarity knows his team has to look forward.

"We can't dwell on the negatives," the sixth-year coach said. "These next four games on the road are crucial and we've got to get them all, one at a time."

The Red Foxes may not be heading to Pennsylvania with the greatest of enthusiasm, however.

Last Saturday in historic Madison Square Garden, Mar­ist fell to Fairfield University, 71-52. The Red Foxes have lost their last three games in the Garden.

In the past, Marist has never shot well in the Garden. Saturday was no different as the Red Foxes con­ducted on just 31 percent of their field goals. After trailing by just one at halftime, 28-27, Marist could not make any type of run in the second half.

We were getting some good shots in the second half, but we just couldn't make them," said Magarity.

In order for Marist — or any other team — it needs to shoot well to win. However, Magarity's club relies heavily on defensive pressure after made baskets.

"If we can't put the ball in the hoop, we can't get into our press," Magarity said. "We are not a great half-court team — that isn't our specialty.

Magarity did manage to put four people in double figures against the Engineers.

Leading the way was Tom Fitzsimons with 12 points. Tommy Jamison, Dexter Dunbar and Andy Lake all scored 10 points.

Last Thursday, it looked as though the Red Foxes would move into a first place tie with the Fairfield Stags.

However, after leading the entire game, the Red Foxes could not hold on to a nine-point lead with 4:46 remaining.

Rod Henderson and Iszet Buchanan both missed the front end of one-and-one attempts and with the score tied with 14 seconds left, Dunbar made one of two.

Wendell Breton then scored the winning basket for FDU with three seconds remaining.

"We rarely give a game away," said Magarity. "That wasn't on our part, it was a community effort."

In order for Marist to have a successful roadtrip, Magarity is going to need point production — especially from Lake and Buchanan.

Lake is in a shooting slump, hitting just eight of his shots in the last two games. Buchanan, after scor­ing a team-high 20 against FDU, only managed five shots against Fairfield.

The key to success on the road, said Magarity, is composure.

"We've got to bounces back; these are all games we can win," he said. "We can't worry about the lost game."

Mike Tyson is being accused of raping the 19-year-old beauty contestant at the Miss Teen USA pageant, which was held in Atlantic City last month.

The accuser in this trial is the worst initial version of Tyson. "He was showing me the ropes," said the accuser.

Mike Tyson — former heavyweight champion of the world — is criminal.

"I'm shooting with more confidence. I'm looking to drive a little bit more because they've been sticking to me like glue," said Magarity.

The Engineers could only manage 37 points and led the Red Foxes by a sweeping 74-40 defeat of Lehigh, only two days after a heart-breaking loss to Fairleigh Dickinson.

Fields broke the single-game scoring record on her last basket because she had her parents with her at the court. "They told me to look a little bit more because I'll either score or get fouled," said Fields. "Unexpectedly, the 1-2 punch is working because they're always telling me to drive."

The advice paid dividends as she poured in a record-setting 37 points and led the Red Foxes in a sweeping 74-40 defeat of Lehigh, only two days after a heart-breaking loss to Fairleigh Dickinson.

The key to success on the road, said Magarity, is composure.

"We've got to bounce back, these are all games we can win," he said. "We can't worry about the lost game."

Magarity said the team knows how to win and if we play our game, we will."
