Marist marches in protest against violence

Members of the Marist community organized a march on Sunday afternoon in the McCann parking lot. The march was to protest against violence. Lynn Magee, a junior and second-year resident assistant, organized the march because of the recent increase in violence on the Marist campus. Magee said that her intent was not to protest against the administration, but rather to give students an opportunity to show unity and send the message that violence is not welcome on campus.

"I was thrilled with the number of people showing unity and support," Magee said. "This proves that the Marist community cares."

Approximately 400 students and faculty members who showed up for the march brought a total of 500 candles. The candles were lit while Magee made a brief statement and led them through the McCann parking lot where the wooden stairs behind Sheahan Hall were decorated with flowers.

The group of students and faculty members was followed by the students who had organized the march for safety and security, was the first speaker of the evening, and he showed support for the entire event and said that it is important to keep up student awareness.

"This really is great that students keep awareness going," Leary said. "That will unite the community better."

The second speaker was Kent Courtless, student body president, who said that the student escort service is available, and improved lighting around campus is in the works.

Marchers gather at the McCann parking lot today.

In his speech, Leary said that security has added patrols, and started a van service on campus. He also said that the student escort service is available, and improved lighting around campus is in the works.

The final speaker, Roberto Marist College President, Dennis Murray, said that the students are encouraged to work together. He also said that the students are the one who should be conducting the march.

"It shows Marist College students are empathetic instead of apathetic," Leddy said.

Quake rocks India; students, faculty find loved ones safe

by PATRICIA FARRELL

Four days and one night after the Indian students and faculty of Marist discovered that friends and family in India were safe and well, it was a moment to reflect and appreciate.

The quake which hit the state of Maharashtra, India at 3:46 on Thursday, Sept. 30, has left an estimated 22,000 people dead and 200,000 injured. It measured 6.2 on the Richter scale. In October of 1991, in the Himalayas, leaving 1,600 people dead. It said. "This is history for us, we never knew much about earthquakes."

"I was thrilled with the number so many people came together," Leddy said.

"It shows Marist College students are empathetic instead of apathetic," Leddy said.

Margaret Donnelly, a senior living in the Campus Apartments, said that she was glad to hear that many students were safe. "I was very relieved to hear no one was injured," Chakrapani said. "It was hard to be relieved though, when so many people have died."

Similiar sighs of relief came from Shobha Chakrapani, a graduate student in economics, who said. "This really is great that students keep awareness going," Leary said. "That will unite the community better."

The second speaker was Kent Courtless, student body president, who said that the student escort service is available, and improved lighting around campus is in the works.

"The current divisional structure for the college well," said Grossman. "We are now exploring ways to make ourselves better."

"The current divisional structure for the college well," said Grossman. "We are now exploring ways to make ourselves better."

Robert Grossman, associate professor of business administration, said. "The second option would establish three separate schools and keep the divisional structure for the college."

The second option would establish separate schools and keep the divisional structure for the Humanities, Natural Sciences, and Social and Behavioral Sciences.

The three schools established under this plan would be a School of Business Administration, School of Communication and the Arts and School of Continuing Education.

Another area that is being debated is how the faculty should be governed.

According to Grossman, many departments have advocated having the faculty members elect the department leaders.

The current policy has the administration appointing the divisional chairs.

The academic organization document says that if schools were established within the college, they would be led by appointed deans, who would be selected in accordance with the college search procedures.

This would allow faculty members to play a substantive role in making decisions that affect the college.

These decisions would concern curriculum matters, personnel policies, and accreditation programs. According to the academic organization document.

Departments have also wanted established schools within the college structure, and that the process would be consistent with departments' ability to conduct autonomous and self-governing activities, academic authorities, the academic organization document says.

It is very desirable to have accredited programs within the college," Grossman said. "It would open up what we can offer, and what we want."

"I think (the college setting up schools) is a wonderful idea," Grossman said. "It would make the college even better, but the proposal is what the faculty wants. There is no right way or wrong way to set it up."

"We are discussing the positives and the negatives of each option," Ed Spratt, assistant professor of communication, said. "With only one faculty meeting so far, it is not clear as to what option would best suit the Communications and the Arts division."

Continuity?

Approximately 400 students, faculty and public-consumer administrators marched from the McCann Center to the Gartland Commons Apartments last Sunday to protest the assistant vice president, after this meeting claiming Adin did not know of the vandalism without being consulted, much like residents students when they arrived at Marist in their last home game.

Is this too much to take? Is this an indication of future involvement in protests and actions taken against campus residents?

The major thing that impresses me about this situation is the fact that I was given the right to park on campus, and now it is being taken away.

Mr. or Mrs. President?

The changing role of the first lady has been a major topic of discussion this year. It has been quite a change from the women who wore frilly dresses before this year to the women who have worn suits and ties to meetings with heads of state. They have worn suits to meetings with heads of state.

I am not trying to sound sexist because I do not care if the first lady is a lawyer, a doctor, a nurse, or a teacher. I only care if she is qualified for the role of the first lady.

It seems to me the role of the first lady has changed. It seems to me the role of the first lady is viewed.

The president, I mean Hillary, has been receiving recognition in different types of roles; while others believe this is the year of the woman.

It seems to me Hillary is too much involved in politics. If she makes a mistake, we cannot fire her. It seems to me Hillary is too much involvement in politics. She has to answer for her mistakes, not her president.

The only person I respect in this situation is the first lady, who is the one responsible for her actions. She has to answer for her mistakes, not her president. It seems to me the role of the first lady has changed.

Vacation was no pleasure

Recently I had the unusual pleasure of being on what was described as a "vacation at sea." It was my first time sailing and I wanted to make sure I had the best possible experience. I decided to rent a sailboat and spend a week on the open water. It was an amazing experience overall.

The weather was perfect for sailing and the views were stunning. I couldn't believe how peaceful it was out on the water. I also got to enjoy my favorite pastime, fishing. I spent hours fishing and had a great catch of fish.

At night, we anchored the boat in a secluded cove and had a bonfire. The stars were so bright and we spent hours around the fire, telling stories and roasting marshmallows.

Overall, it was a wonderful vacation and I would highly recommend it to anyone who loves the ocean and outdoor activities. I can't wait to go back again someday.

The Economics of the Citibank Classic Visa card. How Student Discounts and Price Protection contribute to upward growth. A variety of factors have been suggested as contributing to the economic growth of students, including: (1) more lottery winners between the ages of 18 and 22, (2) a 27% increase on earnings from bottle and can returns, (3) more students doubling in earnings in the lightweight round of games, and (4) the Citibank Classic Visa card. It's this last one, however, that affects most students. The Citibank Classic Visa card offers immediate savings to student cardmembers. You can save up to 26% on long-distance calls versus AAT with the free CallBack Service of MCTC. And you can capitalize on a $20 Airfare Discount for domestic flights! Savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music also abound. Maximize these savings with a low variable interest rate of 15.49% and no annual fee, and you can significantly improve your personal bottom line (especially if you're not income tends to be pretty poor). Netters win 5-4; record now 9-1

The women’s tennis team won a hard-fought battle over Hofstra University, 5-4, on Sunday.

With the victory, Marist raises its record to 9-1 (5-0 against Northeast Conference foes).

A victory in the final double match gave the Red Foxes the victory. Head Coach Ken O’Neill won the deciding match for Marist.

It was a stressful match with high intensity, according to O’Neill. “We needed two matches to win, there was a lot of pressure, and I played with Katy Seward who was really great,” she said. “It was a tough match, but we got it.”

Seward and the player well with O’Neill because their different styles of play gave the team balance.

“She (O’Neill) had the patience, and I wanted to go for it,” she said. “I think my competitive spirit was really good.”

Head Coach Ken Harrison could not be reached for comment.

O’Neill also won her singles match, 6-0, 6-4, filled with style. “She believed staying focused was the key to her victory. Her attitude was winning mostly of the said. “It was a great win for her, and she’s second in the second set. I had to work against the wind.”

“She made the mistake,” Kasia Ziata said. “I won a match in straight sets, 6-0, 7-6.

“Just a matter of staying focused, and just outputting my opponent.”

Seward said the Red Foxes recorded an impressive 9-0 win over Buffalo on Saturday.

Senior came the charging score of a 6-1, 7-6 victory in her match. Seward said she was happy to raise her play, despite being injured.

Senior Katie Seward was another success story according to Ziata. “She’s a winner,” she said. “We were cheering from the bench like we were at a football game.”

Turnovers turn Red Foxes’ season backwards

It was the best of times. It was the worst of times.

Snowfall doesn’t usually mean a lot. Right now, Head Coach Jim Parady’s club is making too many mistakes to win.

The team is on the cusp of a scoring chance, but it has given up points on its turnovers. If they do not, they may only be 500 people at the homecoming game on Oct. 16 against Duquesne.

Seniors forward Gianuseppe Mazzella’s performance is the main reason for the team’s recent success.

Mazzella has provided the offensive spark for the Red Foxes who were previously in an offensive drought.

The senior scored the game-winning goal in a 2-0 victory over Long Island on Sunday. He also netted a goal in a 3-0 win over the Saints.

Head Coach Howard Goldman’s squad needs Mazzella to continue to perform and provide senior leadership if this win streak is to continue.

Stat of the Week

Senior quarterback Brian McCourt threw for a career-high 355 yards in a losing effort against the St. John’s Redmen last Thursday.

Outlook

Head Coach Howard Goldman and company could be getting involved in yet another streak.

After starting the season with seven consecutive victories, the team’s soccer team came away with its second straight shutout victory by blanking the Iona Gaels, 2-0, at Loughnane Field.

The win improved the Red Foxes’ record to 2-7 overall. However, Marist is still 0-5 in the Northeast Conference.

The Foxes were once again paced by a goal from senior forward Giang-gianni Cuttitta, who netted his second goal this season from sophomore Craig O’Brien at the 9:20 second mark of the first half.

Sophomore Craig Cuttitta scored the tying goal on a penalty kick at 20:30 in the second period. Cutting, from freshmen, N.Y., has been the main force of firepower for Marist lately, scoring the game-winning goal against Iona, while netting two in a 3-M Fairport triumph over Saint Peter’s.

“Actually, it’s the first goal (against Iona) kind of got me going,” Mazzella said. “I feel more confident.”

Gridders fall to Redmen, 31-30

It appeared Marist was on the verge of beating the St. John’s Redmen for the fourth consecutive year last Thursday.

The senior completed 50-55 passes for 303 yards, while throwing for three touchdowns.

“We knew Marist was a good quarterback,” Head Coach Jim Parady said. “He played big when he needed to play big.”

Senior Don D’Aousto nearly matched Russo’s performance in the duel between the two running backs.

The senior backed halfback rushed for 127 yards on 16 carries, including 62-yard touchdown run which gave the Red Foxes a 27-18 lead.

Senior quarterback Brian McCourt completed 9-24 passes for a career-high 222 yards. D’Aousto said the team solidified the fourth quarter with Marist clinging to a 2-0-20.9 lead.

After the fumble, the Redmen took over possession on the Red Foxes 43-yard line. Russo scored the winning touchdown six plays later, extending Marist’s lead to 31-18.

“It just squirmed through,” Parady said. “We have to rectify on your fundamentals. It was very unfortunate it happened at that juncture.”

Senior linebacker David Cappelletti said the loss was the only reason the squad lost.

“Marist’s defense did (defeat) was one thing,” he said. “We took the loss as a team and will bounce back quickly because a competitor like the Redmen. The Kansas City Chiefs will be waiting for Marist on Saturday.”

The Pittsburgh Steelers will take the AFC Championship with Barry Foster’s running and a rugged defense. Cleveland, despite being 3-1, is doing it with miracles. Belichick or Vinne Testaverde? For a team to win a division, it needs one solid quarterback. If John Montana is on the field, it’s not the Kansas City Chiefs. The AFC will be won by the AFC West.

Runners place fifth

The men’s and women’s cross-country teams both netted fifth place finishes at the Colgate meet.

Marist’s placement does not accurately show the entire picture. The Red Foxes were competing against nationally powers like Canisius, Syracuse and Colgate.

Although there is not a stellar finish for either team, 18 runners did their personal best.

This is what sports are all about.
