Students, staff remember cafeteria worker

by DAWN MARTIN

Students, staff remember cafeteria worker

by BLayne MAUSOLF

Graduates find new campus look a treat during Alumni Weekend

by SUSANNE YANUZ

Students intrigued by homicide conference

by BYLYNE MAUSOLF

Marist College was over run with homicide investigations, forensic pathology and prosecution recently.

Last Thursday and Friday, the Marist College Criminal Justice Department and the City of Poughkeepsie Police Department presented a homicide investigative simulation.

The seminar was first offered by the Poughkeepsie Police Department and the District Attorney's office in 1986, but never surfaced.

Numerous people from police departments and district attorney's offices throughout the country were invited to attend the seminar.

It ran for two full days and was offered as a voluntary course to people who work in the criminal justice field.

The two main coordinators of the seminar were Paul Rau, former positions of the Poughkeepsie Police Department and Mark Loughran, assistant professor of criminal justice at Marist College.

Loughran formerly worked with the district attorney's office in Poughkeepsie and said he felt the seminar would be a good opportunity to have them work more closely with Marist.

Although some people feel the seminar was primarily designed for homicide investigators and prosecutors, Marist students and faculty were also invited to attend.

With more than 200 students at the criminal justice seminar in Criminal Justice, Loughran said the school was hoping to get as many students to participate in the seminar as possible.

A few teachers taught classes and strongly suggested the students attend.

There were many well-known professionals who spoke at the seminar, including Dr. Michael Badens, co-director of Forensic Sciences for the New York State Police.

In his 35-year career as a forensic pathologist, Badens has taken part in the re-investigations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

Although some felt the seminar was only for the students in the Criminal Justice program, Loughran stressed the seminar to the students.

"The whole seminar was for students because they didn't have to pay and there was a lot of interesting stuff," he said.

According to Run, students were able to gain a lot of insight into techniques from the seminar that they didn't know before.

Elizabeth Leno, a senior psychology major from Westfield, Conn., went to the seminar because she is interested in forensic psychology.

Loughran is going to attempt to hold a seminar at Marist College dealing with the topic of violent crime sometime next year.

Students intrigued by homicide conference

by SUSANNE YANUZ

Staff Writer

Marist College was over run with homicide investigations, forensic pathology and prosecution recently.

Last Thursday and Friday, the Marist College Criminal Justice Department and the City of Poughkeepsie Police Department presented a homicide investigative simulation.

The seminar was first offered by the Poughkeepsie Police Department and the District Attorney's office in 1986, but never surfaced.

Numerous people from police departments and district attorney's offices throughout the country were invited to attend the seminar.

It ran for two full days and was offered as a voluntary course to people who work in the criminal justice field.

The two main coordinators of the seminar were Paul Rau, former positions of the Poughkeepsie Police Department and Mark Loughran, assistant professor of criminal justice at Marist College.

Loughran formerly worked with the district attorney's office in Poughkeepsie and said he felt the seminar would be a good opportunity to have them work more closely with Marist.

Although some people feel the seminar was primarily designed for homicide investigators and prosecutors, Marist students and faculty were also invited to attend.

With more than 200 students at the criminal justice seminar in Criminal Justice, Loughran said the school was hoping to get as many students to participate in the seminar as possible.

A few teachers taught classes and strongly suggested the students attend.

There were many well-known professionals who spoke at the seminar, including Dr. Michael Badens, co-director of Forensic Sciences for the New York State Police.

In his 35-year career as a forensic pathologist, Badens has taken part in the re-investigations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

Although some felt the seminar was only for the students in the Criminal Justice program, Loughran stressed the seminar to the students.

"The whole seminar was for students because they didn't have to pay and there was a lot of interesting stuff," he said.

According to Run, students were able to gain a lot of insight into techniques from the seminar that they didn't know before.

Elizabeth Leno, a senior psychology major from Westfield, Conn., went to the seminar because she is interested in forensic psychology.

Loughran is going to attempt to hold a seminar at Marist College dealing with the topic of violent crime sometime next year.

Students intrigued by homicide conference

by SUSANNE YANUZ

Staff Writer

Marist College was over run with homicide investigations, forensic pathology and prosecution recently.

Last Thursday and Friday, the Marist College Criminal Justice Department and the City of Poughkeepsie Police Department presented a homicide investigative simulation.

The seminar was first offered by the Poughkeepsie Police Department and the District Attorney's office in 1986, but never surfaced.

Numerous people from police departments and district attorney's offices throughout the country were invited to attend the seminar.

It ran for two full days and was offered as a voluntary course to people who work in the criminal justice field.

The two main coordinators of the seminar were Paul Rau, former positions of the Poughkeepsie Police Department and Mark Loughran, assistant professor of criminal justice at Marist College.

Loughran formerly worked with the district attorney's office in Poughkeepsie and said he felt the seminar would be a good opportunity to have them work more closely with Marist.

Although some people feel the seminar was primarily designed for homicide investigators and prosecutors, Marist students and faculty were also invited to attend.

With more than 200 students at the criminal justice seminar in Criminal Justice, Loughran said the school was hoping to get as many students to participate in the seminar as possible.

A few teachers taught classes and strongly suggested the students attend.

There were many well-known professionals who spoke at the seminar, including Dr. Michael Badens, co-director of Forensic Sciences for the New York State Police.

In his 35-year career as a forensic pathologist, Badens has taken part in the re-investigations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

Although some felt the seminar was only for the students in the Criminal Justice program, Loughran stressed the seminar to the students.

"The whole seminar was for students because they didn't have to pay and there was a lot of interesting stuff," he said.

According to Run, students were able to gain a lot of insight into techniques from the seminar that they didn't know before.

Elizabeth Leno, a senior psychology major from Westfield, Conn., went to the seminar because she is interested in forensic psychology.

Loughran is going to attempt to hold a seminar at Marist College dealing with the topic of violent crime sometime next year.
Burton pays tribute to 1950’s grade Z movie maker

By JUSTIN HERBERT

Hollywood seems to have lost some of its nostalgic sparkle and has turned its view to the past once again. In the wake of the Madonna sensation, the film industry is increasingly catering to audiences with a taste for the old school. And what better way to pay tribute to the past than to revisit the many grade-Z movies of the 1950s?

Burton, one of Hollywood’s most beloved movie makers, is back with his latest project, “Plan 9 From Outer Space.” The film is a nostalgic tribute to the worst films of all-time, “Plan 9 From Outer Space,” “Bride of the Monster,” “Orgy of the Dead,” and what is hailed as the worst film of all-time. “(Grade: A-)

REYNOLDS
Circle Music Critic
Staff Writer

Most of the songs begin softly, but as the songs build, the band members become more expressive and the music becomes more intense. In fact, during one of the songs, a woman even starts dancing with a 9-year-old girl. We a sense of humor, so it was great to see the band having fun.

In case you know absolutely nothing about the band, Barenaked Ladies has recently returned from a tour and has been performing at the school for several weeks. "It has already found its way into the hearts of many fans," said one student. "It's a great industrial-metal disc."

Overall, Barenaked Ladies' second release is a pleasant addition to the band's repertoire and the fans seem to be enjoying it. As the tour continues, we can only hope that they will continue to please us with their music.

The newly constructed Fitness Center, which has resulted in the temporary disappearance of All Sport and World Gym, has been criticized by several students and faculty members. "The newly constructed Fitness Center," Rivers said. "What we try to teach people who are going to try to help them is that there's no time to give them one-on-one time to go through.

The Mission of the Writing Center

The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

Students witness murder during 1988 shopping trip

For many Martin students, last Sunday evening was another revelation and a reminder of the dangers that lurk in a daily day-to-day world they once thought was safe. Two students, a man and a woman, were found dead in a stairwell on All Sport at All Sport or World Gym. "The newly constructed Fitness Center," Rivers said. "What we try to teach people who are going to try to help them is that there's no time to give them one-on-one time to go through.

The Mission of the Writing Center

The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

Bile uses force while 'Ladies' seem barely alive

Bill Pohlad

by BRIAN FRANKEYE

The circle... it's the only thing that ties us together. In fact, it's the only thing that's ever mattered. The circle... it's the only thing that's ever mattered.

Marist wireroom closed due to floor conditions

by brian frankeye

MCTV has location complaints, find new headquarters inadequate

by ron johnson

The drive opens and brings us to a beautiful park and the string of foot steps on the grass are heard. At the top of the stairs is a small, white cup. We look down and see a small girl in a clas.

Ed Wood's odd behavior, we accept him as he is. Yet we all have skeletons in our closets, and after a while of seeing the world the way we are, it's time to let go of our past and start again.

The complaint? Not enough Kirk! "It's a different pace for Duggs, who plays Ed Wood in the film. He believes his fixation on Angora sweaters to be a way of coping with his past. "I don't think there's a thing less creative."

Overall, Barenaked Ladies' second release is a pleasant addition to the band's repertoire and the fans seem to be enjoying it. As the tour continues, we can only hope that they will continue to please us with their music.

The newly constructed Fitness Center, which has resulted in the temporary disappearance of All Sport and World Gym, has been criticized by several students and faculty members. "The newly constructed Fitness Center," Rivers said. "What we try to teach people who are going to try to help them is that there's no time to give them one-on-one time to go through.

The Mission of the Writing Center

The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

Help for troubled writers is here, Writing Center opens doors to all

by jeannine aviles

Support for writers is a crucial aspect of the creative process. The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

The Circle... it's the only thing that ties us together. In fact, it's the only thing that's ever mattered. The circle... it's the only thing that's ever mattered.

The complaint? Not enough Kirk! "It's a different pace for Duggs, who plays Ed Wood in the film. He believes his fixation on Angora sweaters to be a way of coping with his past. "I don't think there's a thing less creative."

Overall, Barenaked Ladies' second release is a pleasant addition to the band's repertoire and the fans seem to be enjoying it. As the tour continues, we can only hope that they will continue to please us with their music.

The newly constructed Fitness Center, which has resulted in the temporary disappearance of All Sport and World Gym, has been criticized by several students and faculty members. "The newly constructed Fitness Center," Rivers said. "What we try to teach people who are going to try to help them is that there's no time to give them one-on-one time to go through.

The Mission of the Writing Center

The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

Help for troubled writers is here, Writing Center opens doors to all

by jeannine aviles

Support for writers is a crucial aspect of the creative process. The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

The Circle... it's the only thing that ties us together. In fact, it's the only thing that's ever mattered. The circle... it's the only thing that's ever mattered.

The complaint? Not enough Kirk! "It's a different pace for Duggs, who plays Ed Wood in the film. He believes his fixation on Angora sweaters to be a way of coping with his past. "I don't think there's a thing less creative."

Overall, Barenaked Ladies' second release is a pleasant addition to the band's repertoire and the fans seem to be enjoying it. As the tour continues, we can only hope that they will continue to please us with their music.

The newly constructed Fitness Center, which has resulted in the temporary disappearance of All Sport and World Gym, has been criticized by several students and faculty members. "The newly constructed Fitness Center," Rivers said. "What we try to teach people who are going to try to help them is that there's no time to give them one-on-one time to go through.

The Mission of the Writing Center

The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

Help for troubled writers is here, Writing Center opens doors to all

by jeannine aviles

Support for writers is a crucial aspect of the creative process. The Writing Center, located in the Student Services Building, is the one place where students can go to get help with their writing. "Teachers frequently complain about the time to give them one-on-one time to go through," said one professor. "We're doing the best we can.

The Circle... it's the only thing that ties us together. In fact, it's the only thing that's ever mattered. The circle... it's the only thing that's ever mattered.

The complaint? Not enough Kirk! "It's a different pace for Duggs, who plays Ed Wood in the film. He believes his fixation on Angora sweaters to be a way of coping with his past. "I don't think there's a thing less creative."
The administration and Society hope that the Catline will not only become a new dining option, but a cultural, social, and academic hub.

Once the dining facility is fully functional, the Society will provide $500 in a scholarship fund in honor of the catline. The $500 will be distributed among the recipients of the Society's awards.

The Catline is an expression of the students' desire to have a community space in the heart of campus.

In conclusion, the new dining facility is a significant development for the campus and the students. It is the result of the efforts of the Society and the administration, who have worked hard to make this project a reality.

I hope that this new facility will contribute to the vibrancy and diversity of our campus community.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
LIFE AND DEATH

Stop. Think about your life. This one day, you may lose someone. Think about someone who has just left your life. It is a necessary and painful thought.

It is true that you will get used to the idea that someone has left your life, but it is never easy. Why? Because we human beings are based on relationships. Life is a series of relationships. We were talking about being married. When your wife or your husband dies, life is never the same again. Life is not the same without your partner, even if you loved them. Life is not the same without your family, even if you are alone.

Think about them so much your brain wants to explode out of your skull. Think about someone you love. The past and the future mean nothing if we can't appreciate who we love today, what they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

The world spins around us in such a way that we often miss the little things, but it is never too late to change. We can never make it go away.

It is for this reason that we celebrate every Mother's Day, Father's Day, and every other day that we can remember the people we loved. This is why we should always give thanks to the people we love, because they are the ones who make our life meaningful.

Societal respect

I am writing to you to talk about the death of any loved one. What they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

Much is the case with the death of any loved one.

We can never make it go away.

When someone dies, we often think about how much we miss them. We think about the things we could have said to them that we never said.

What they mean to us.

The past and the future mean nothing if we can't appreciate who we love today, what they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

The world spins around us in such a way that we often miss the little things, but it is never too late to change. We can never make it go away.

It is for this reason that we celebrate every Mother's Day, Father's Day, and every other day that we can remember the people we loved. This is why we should always give thanks to the people we love, because they are the ones who make our life meaningful.

Societal respect

I am writing to you to talk about the death of any loved one. What they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

Much is the case with the death of any loved one.

We can never make it go away.

When someone dies, we often think about how much we miss them. We think about the things we could have said to them that we never said.

What they mean to us.

The past and the future mean nothing if we can't appreciate who we love today, what they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

The world spins around us in such a way that we often miss the little things, but it is never too late to change. We can never make it go away.

It is for this reason that we celebrate every Mother's Day, Father's Day, and every other day that we can remember the people we loved. This is why we should always give thanks to the people we love, because they are the ones who make our life meaningful.

Societal respect

I am writing to you to talk about the death of any loved one. What they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

Much is the case with the death of any loved one.

We can never make it go away.

When someone dies, we often think about how much we miss them. We think about the things we could have said to them that we never said.

What they mean to us.

The past and the future mean nothing if we can't appreciate who we love today, what they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

The world spins around us in such a way that we often miss the little things, but it is never too late to change. We can never make it go away.

It is for this reason that we celebrate every Mother's Day, Father's Day, and every other day that we can remember the people we loved. This is why we should always give thanks to the people we love, because they are the ones who make our life meaningful.

Societal respect

I am writing to you to talk about the death of any loved one. What they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

Much is the case with the death of any loved one.

We can never make it go away.

When someone dies, we often think about how much we miss them. We think about the things we could have said to them that we never said.

What they mean to us.

The past and the future mean nothing if we can't appreciate who we love today, what they mean to us.

What they mean to us.

The world spins around us in such a way that we often miss the little things, but it is never too late to change. We can never make it go away.

It is for this reason that we celebrate every Mother's Day, Father's Day, and every other day that we can remember the people we loved. This is why we should always give thanks to the people we love, because they are the ones who make our life meaningful.
21 Society to return to Marist next semester

by BARRY RICHARD Staff Writer

Marist College is about to experience a resurrection, for the 21 Society is about to return. As the conclusion of the 1994 spring semester, the 21 Society had written a letter to the students for the last time, of its organization at Marist.

This summer, the 21 Society is about to the resurrection. After an 18-year absence, the 21 Society is about to return to Marist next semester.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

The resurrection of the 21 Society is a result of the work of three students: Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer; and Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer.

Jennifer Benoit, a biology major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Michelle Bourque, a junior fashion major, agrees that the Writing Center is a really good idea. "It's a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas," she said. "And it’s also a great opportunity for students to interact with each other." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.

Sister Eileen O’Halloran, then president of the Sisters of Mercy, joins the Writing Center as a regular volunteer. "I thought it was a challenge, and I accepted it," she said. "It’s a great opportunity for students to improve their writing skills and to develop their own ideas." The Writing Center is located in the basement of the College of Science and Technology.
Spikers defeated; streak hits six
by Terri L. Stewart

The women's volleyball team is in the midst of a losing streak. Members are looking to keep it to the longest length they have had in several years.

The Red Foxes (6-17 overall, 0-6 in the Northeast Conference) went on to win their sixth consecutive game on Wednesday against Marist College 25-11, 25-9, 17-25, 25-15.

The Red Foxes dropped the first set to Marist 25-11 but came back to win the next three sets.

Head Coach Sally Johnston said her team did not have any problem with the loss.

"We came out and got on top early, and they were coming in for it," Johnston said.

The Red Foxes took the lead early and never looked back.

"Other boats took on water as well," Johnston said. "Some boats had a difficult time completing the course."

Johnston also said her players were not competing against each other but were competing against the course.

"The weather conditions were not ideal," Johnston said. "It was a challenging day for everyone."
Skaters tie Wagner in season opener

by JIM DERIVAN

The Mariit hockey club managed to earn a 4-4 tie against the visiting Wagner College in its season debut at the Seahawks by one goal, 4-3, in the third period. However, James Robertazzi evoted the score to 4-3, and he got interrupted with Wagner's first score.

"When they scored their first goal, the momentous shift," Robertazzi said.

Wagner capitalized on scoring the power play to take the game to two.

Six seconds later, Wagner took the lead.

Senior Noel Smith was called for an elbowing penalty at 1:17, leaving Marist to score the 3-3, in the finals with a powerful goal by Christianni, scored by senior capttain, Kevin Walsh.

Walsh scored the lone goal at 8:21 in the second period.

Third-year Head Coach Kevin Walsh said he was pleased with the way his players fought back to the to stir up the second period. "Did they ever," Walsh said. "They really left it all on the ice."

Wagner scored a safe goal at 8:21 in the second period.

"We had control of the game," said Robertazzi. "They just couldn't handle this issue immediately be-

He said it was a smooth one." According to Doris, he became a

"There are some people on their team who knew me," he said. "I believe we didn't get to see them anywhere in the first place.

Doris announced last Wednesday that he is leaving Marist to take the athletic director position at Fairfield University. He will begin work at Fairfield on Mon Nov. 14.

Doris said the reason he signed with Fairfield was because he was interested in an intriguing opportunity.

"I really wasn't looking to leave here," Doris said. "Money was cer-tinally not an issue. A major challenge which involves the building of new facilities excited me."

According to Doris, he became a candidate for the job only Fairfield's

Mangan finished up in long. Days. Things have moved very Sophomore Josh Kruerger attempts to clear the zone in a game against Northeastern Athletic Conference power,

"Doris's team showed signs of

transition, especially at a critical time, was a smooth one."

President Dennis J. Murray

said Doris was a valuable asset to Marist's athletic program.

"We thank Gene Doris for his

Doris said his only disappoint-

"Marist's varsity teams,

"We had liked to have seen us be more competitive for the Commissioner's Cup which is awarded to the winningest team in the conference."

The football team will be play-

Colaizzo said he tries to downplay team championships at

"There is no point in marathons. Marist could potentially be on saving transportation expenses.

This could also present a positive alternative for members; it would give them the opportunity to exercise and to participate in recreation.

Marist's search for

"Doris's turnover has been immediate, but no replacement has been named yet."

It is uncertain whether Marist will hire another administrator in the athletic department or whether they will

look elsewhere.

Doris said he has been told by the administration that they would give input towards filling the void because of his familiarity with the job. The important for the new AD to handle this issue immediately become facility play a pivotal role in a team's success.

The FOOTBALL TEAM played

for the second consecutive week

Marist-North with a stunning 33-0 victory over St. Peter's College. It was the first time this season the Red Foxes had scored two times and the win kept Marist in third place in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference.

Head Coach Jim Parady has been some of his accomplishments during his tenures include the formation of basketball, softball, men's and women's track, and women's soccer as Division I sports.

"I think my biggest accomplishment has been to bring Marist to a place where it was into changes into Division I."

The football team will be battle-the Duquesne Dukes on Saturday for five of the six regular-season games,

"They defeated Northeastern University, 3-1."

Junior Josh Wood also ran a solid race, second, returned from a season foot injury to place 11th with a time of Marist's men's soccer team dropped the union's latest proposal to end the

lockout, which has halted

the NHL owners would not accept the league's latest proposal to end the

lockout, which has halted

Marist was out-shot by St.

St. Francis scored three of its four goals in the first half, while the Red

Foxes scored just one goal of the

St. Francis, 22-11.

Pete Colaizzo: said he tries to

"Doris's team showed signs of

transition, especially at a critical
time, was a smooth one."

St. Francis scored three of its four

goals in the first half, while the Red

Foxes scored just one goal of the

St. Francis, 22-11.

Pete Colaizzo: said he tries to downplay team championships at

"There is no point in marathons. Marist could potentially be on

saving transportation expenses.

This could also present a positive alternative for members; it would

give them the opportunity to exercise and to participate in recreation.

Marist's search for

"Doris's turnover has been immediate, but no replacement has been

named yet."

It is uncertain whether Marist will hire another administrator in the athletic department or whether they will

look elsewhere.

Doris said he has been told by the administration that they would give input towards filling the void because of his familiarity with the job. The important for the new AD to handle this issue immediately become facility play a pivotal role in a team's success.

The FOOTBALL TEAM played

for the second consecutive week

Marist-North with a stunning 33-0