Student Rights and Responsibilities. This section titled: "For this week's editorial..."

Among other things, this section states that students at Marist enjoy certain essential freedoms. One of those freedoms is to "have a free and independent student press which adheres to the canons of responsible journalism."

The Index of The Circle has been said to usage journalism, which is the assertion of what is new and what is not, what should be new, and what should not be new.

As journalists, they have their own set of ethical guidelines. However, these guidelines are not always followed. In some cases, journalists have been caught in situations where they have misled the public or written articles that were not accurate. This has led to a decrease in trust in the press by the public.

Editorial

Should a journalist be required to cover the state of Marist College in their work? What is the role of the media in covering higher education institutions? Is it ethical for journalists to cover universities as if they were businesses? Should journalists be held to the same standards as those who report on corporations?

The events of last semester are not over, though. The Circle is still on probation. A suspension has been issued in the future. It is possible that the newspaper may continue to publish articles that are not accurate or that mislead the public.

President's Desk

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me. I am always available to discuss any issues that you may have.

The Circle is a weekly student publication that covers news and events on campus. It is published every Thursday.

Some campaign advice

Editorial

If you are running for student government, consider the following advice:

1. Be an active listener. Pay attention to the concerns of the students.
2. Be an active advocate. Work to improve the campus environment.
3. Be an active observer. Keep an eye on what is happening on campus.
4. Be an active supporter. Help others who are running for office.

In other words, be an active member of the student government.

New director in Special Services

by ROBERT D. TARGOSS

From the beginning of her tenure as director of the Office of Special Services, Linda Pizzagalli has found that her job is anything but a cinch. She faces a number of challenges in running the O.S.S., and the demands on her job are complex and demanding.

"I want to work closely and cooperatively with all the departments on campus," she said. "They have a wide range of responsibilities for the 30-year-old Office of Special Services to its facility in the city of New York, she explained.

Pizzagalli said that her role as director of the O.S.S. is to help the Office of Special Services improve its services to the students. She added that her office is responsible for the coordination of all special services provided by the University.

"I love the work and I am proud to be a part of it," she said. "I appreciate the opportunity to work with the students and to help them achieve their goals.

Expanded role for student I.D.s

by MAURA BRAULETTE

The move to expand the purposes of the student I.D.s is to be implemented on campus. The expansion will include the addition of features to the I.D.s, such as the ability to use them as a means of identification, as a means of access to campus buildings, and as a means of payment for meals.

Construction project continues in snow

by JENNY REED

The construction project continues in the snow, as the weather has made it difficult for the workers to proceed with their work. The project is expected to be completed in the spring.

"We are trying to stay ahead of the weather," said the project manager. "We are working with the weather to complete the work as quickly as possible.

The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Cagers top FDU; improve to 5-11

by ANDREW HOLMLUND

The Cagers continued their winning streak, defeating FDU in a close game on Saturday. The Cagers improved to 5-11 with the win.

Swimmers lose to Fordham

by JERRY LEE

The swimmers lost to Fordham on Sunday, dropping their record to 1-16.

"We were looking for a win, but we fell short," said the coach. "We need to work on our swimming techniques and our strategy.

The swimmers will continue to practice and prepare for their next meet.

A Whole New Perspective on Marist Sports.
Red Foxes fall to DLU, 71-70
by TED HOLMLUND
Sports Editor

In the final moments of the game, senior guard Izett Buchanan flew out of nowhere to tip Danny Basile's missed jumper and was fouled.

"It was a classic example of not letting the players play the game," Chuck Davis said. "It was a classic example of letting the players play the game. Chuck Davis did a tremendous job. Let the player's decide the game." After the game, both teams had identical records: 9-9 overall (5-5 in the Northeast Conference). However, the game was an ex-asperating loss for Marist who blew a 22-point lead with 10:37 left.

Moments later, the referee, Kevin Quirk, blew the whistle with 20 remaining.

Toward the end of the game, Marist's defense blanketed the offensive players, forcing Dasher's guard Antwan Dasher to make an out-of-control desperation drive to the basket. Moments later, the referee, Kevin Quirk, blew the whistle with 20 remaining.

A few seconds later, a loud, collective boo could be heard from the 3,397 fans who picked into Marist's game against Dasher at the James J. Moran Recreation Center, as senior transfer Chuck Davis was called for the fourth foul against Dasher.

It was arguably the loudest crowd at a Marist basketball game in four years.

After Marist's time-out, bountiful fans did all they could to destroy Dasher's concentration, but senior derailed his free throw to give the FDU victory. Buchanan raced down the court to try a desperation heave, but it was too late.

Final score: FDU 71, Marist 70.

Right after the horn sounded, a five-foot-tall, 200-pound student raced on to the court and fell on the FDU bench.

Red Foxes prepare for Metro Champs
by GREG BIBB

Ever heard of "taper and shave" before? If not, you have not been been following the most recent Super Bowl predictions. shelf those old Super Bowl forecasts and turn your attention to this weekend's game.

"Taper and shave" is the method that Marist and other teams use to prepare for the upcoming Super Bowl. According to second year head Coach Lloyd Goldstein, the Red Foxes and other Metropolitan Conference teams have also been doing good old-fashioned training in preparation for the conference championships this weekend at the United States Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Point, N.Y.

What's the deal with this "taper and shave"? Well, it is simple, according to Goldstein.

The team cuts its training distances to about a tenth of its normal weekly training. Then, they shave anything and everything that is long and hairy on their bodies.

The result is a smoother feeling in the water and faster times when they return to training.

Does it work? YES! Well, if anyone should know, it is Coach Lloyd Goldstein.

Coach said the team's success has equaled his expectations at the halfway point of a self-imposed "taper and shave" for the women's swimming program.

"I've been following a solid 6-4 record and has a young nucleus. The team is ready to go on a 22-team roster.

The team's four losses this year were to St. John's, Seton Hall, UCONN and Metro-Foie Rider— all who traditionally are strong programs.

How does this effect the Marist's chances in the upcoming con-

Cage ready for action

The hockey club peppered 40 shots on goal badly defeating the Marist Red Foxes 14-5 yesterday at the Mid-Hudson Civic Center.

"I am confident in the performance of the forwards on the black downs," coach Tom Richter said. "They skated well, but it was the defensemen who really led us to victory."

"I was a little bit of a disaster," the coach said. "They skated with a lot of heart."

Senior right wing John L. Loyd scored the first goal for Marist 4:18 into the contest on an assist from senior left wing Jeff Frost.

"I was just cruising around the ice when I spotted Jeff on the stick-up and I knew the game was done," Loyd said.

"In the first period they had two or three good chances," Kamp said. "But overall, the defense was fairly good."

"The goalie played very well. We were confident in him, but we were denied on both occasions," senior goalie Brad Kamp took a goal away from the pioneers with a nice glove save. Senior defenseman Tom Kamp calmly broke up a two-on-one breakaway to enable Marist to keep its big lead.
