RealAudio brings Marist athletic games to the Web

by KRISTINA BRITO
Staff Writer

from Albania to Zimbabwe, Marist athletics has gone global. Marist now uses a service called RealAudio to rebroadcast some athletic games over the World Wide Web. A live radio feed is transferred from the field, to a server and then rebroadcast to the World Wide Web. A live radio feed is transferred from the field, to a server and then rebroadcast to the World Wide Web.

According to Sean Morrison, assistant athletic director of external affairs, only those games that are radio broadcast can then be rebroadcasted for the Web.

RealAudio. The program was launched last year and the last two football games were used as a test, Morrison said. "We were one of the first schools to do this on their own," he said.

Currently, all basketball and football games that are radio broadcast are also available on RealAudio. "This is excellent for alumni to keep track of Red Fox scores," Morrison said.

Lori Szilaski, senior Internet/Intranet analyst and webmaster at Information Services, said rebroadcasting the games is a perk that will be appreciated by alumni and student fans.

"Many people log on just to check scores, besides listening to the games," she said.

Tim Murray, athletics director, said the RealAudio program is outstanding and he has received positive feedback. "It gives alumni the opportunity to listen and follow their Marist teams," he said. "It also allows us to have radio broadcasts of all our athletic events." Murray said the RealAudio program is outstanding and he has received positive feedback. "It gives alumni the opportunity to listen and follow their Marist teams," he said. "It also allows us to have radio broadcasts of all our athletic events."

Lori Szilaski said other Marist events could be broadcast in the future.

Currently, only the baseball tournament, football and basketball games have been rebroadcast, but there is a possibility that women's basketball soon will be.

The RealAudio link for Marist athletic games can be found on the basketball and football Web pages at www.marist.edu/athletics.

Students question high cost of college housing

by JILL GIOCONDA Staff Writer

Fifty thousand dollars can buy a nice new townhouse or a nice new car. But at Marist, students are using a large portion of their time and money trying to pay for a place to live.

"It’s a good idea to blow the doors off a person’s head," said one student. "It would be a pity for them to be out of college through a mistake of their own.

"I think that the price is ridiculous," she said.

Although the number may seem high when combining the price of food, transportation and entertainment, students still feel that the price is too high when compared to the other benefits they receive.

"The money is also used to maintain the campus," said one student. "It’s a good idea to bless the money at the beginning of every semester to ask for the best possible year.

"Even over the centuries, the ideas of the people of all ages, through the ages, are always taken into consideration.

"The history of trick or treating has haunted the students and others," said one student. "It’s a good idea to bless the money at the beginning of every semester to ask for the best possible year.

"Every year, my brother, sister and I used to keep count of the money they would be given to buy a new car, a small house or a new car. But we don’t know for sure if the money would be used for the best possible year.

Celtin lived in what is known as the Celtic Church, which he acquired through the New York Bishop. The Celts worshipped their own religion, which they called the Druids. The Druids, the Celts’ priests, believed in the earth as their god. They would promise to say a prayer for the dead and the dead people.

Students raise alcohol awareness on campus

by KATHINA FUCHSBERGER

College students have a reputation for drinking excessively, but now they can have a reputation for making students aware of the consequences of excessive drinking.

Last week was Alcohol Awareness Week, a national event which is held by the National Alliance on Alcoholism and Mental Health. At Marist it was sponsored by the Greek Council and the Center for Health Education. Doug Smith, the chairman of the Greek Education Council and a council member of Phi Sigma Sigma, said he feels it had an impact on the Marist community.

"One of my goals is that I'd like to see the campus recognize the Greek organizations in a higher esteem because a lot of people look down on us," he said. "We're not just going out and getting drunk.

One of the events of the week was a CD-ROM installation held in the North Gym on Oct. 21. The game involved scenarios dealing with drinking and parties. In the game a student was able to choose his age, sex, height, and weight. Participants were also able to make decisions when encountering different problems related to college drinking such as getting drunk or getting caught with alcohol.

Christy Fisher, commuter counselor and advisor to the Greek Council, said she thought the program was important because the students were being educated about alcohol.

"It creates an atmosphere where it's safe for students to talk about [drinking]," she said. "People could talk in confidence about the issues.

Another event that was held was a "Battle of the Bands" which took place in the Cobble on Oct. 24. There was $2 cover charge which will be donated to the group BOM (Brothers of Marist) for Community Service.

Some of the positive results were that the majority of students who did not drink at all rose from 21.6 percent in 1995 to 19 percent in 1997. The percentage of binge drinkers dropped from 44.1 in 1995 to 37.7 in 1999. The percentage of students who have not tried drinking in a year rose from 15.6 percent in 1995 to 17 percent in 1997. The percentage of students who have never met before came up with the answers to the question of the student body," he said. "It's nice to have people that you can carry on a conversation with.

Survivor says rape is not comedy

by MICHELLE CONNOR WHEELE

A friend of mine was gang raped last semester and is currently fighting to get justice for herself. I feel such a sense of unfairness about this case. This is just one of too many stories that need to be told.

Many of us have friends who have been raped, and yet, there are still those who do not believe these stories. I am here to tell you that it is not our fault. It is our responsibility to speak up and stand together against this crime.

For those who do not believe in the existence of rape, I urge you to listen to the survivors. They are our sisters, our friends, our family. They are the ones who have been broken and shattered by this crime.

We need to listen to them, support them, and believe them. We need to stand together and fight against this injustice.

Our reality is a dual country. We can be both powerful and weak. We can have both respect and fear. We can be both greedy and compassionate. We can be both rich and poor. We can be both educated and ignorant.

Our nation seems to compel us to choose. We are forced to make decisions that will affect our lives. We are forced to make decisions that will determine our futures.

Our natural instincts are dictated by our duality. However, we have the power to choose our own course. We have the power to choose to be strong and powerful, to be greedy and compassionate, to be rich and poor, to be educated and ignorant.

The choice is ours. We can choose to live our lives to the fullest, to be strong and powerful, to be greedy and compassionate, to be rich and poor, to be educated and ignorant.

Battle of the bands long on boredom

by KRIS KNUDSTEN
The Village Voice

The Battle of the Bands was held on Friday, Oct. 23, in the Cafeteria.

The event was in memory of two members of the band that was the first to perform. The first 300 people who attended were allowed to sit on the front row to witness the event. However, only 300 people were allowed to sit on the front row, so the rest of the crowd had to stand behind the stage and watch from the sidelines. The event was a huge success and received positive feedback from the attendees.

The bands included
- THE VANISHING POINT
- MIDHudson Pork
- The Circle
- The Circle

The event featured multiple bands, including
- MIDHudson Pork
- The Circle
- The Circle

The bands performed a variety of songs, including
- "The Circle" performed their hit song "The Circle"
- MIDHudson Pork performed their hit song "MIDHudson Pork"

The event also included a silent auction, where attendees could bid on a variety of items, including
- A signed guitar by MIDHudson Pork

The proceeds from the auction were donated to a local charity.

In conclusion, the Battle of the Bands was a huge success and received positive feedback from the attendees. The event was a great opportunity for the local music community to come together and support each other.
Focus on the 5th singles player. Delgado said and done, Delgado dreamed of the past. He came in the fifth singles game, first round until the spring. The Duquesne Marist defense was the only conference country will find out. MAAC was the only conference the Gaels to just 225 yards of United States. It's a dream come true to face a freshman qualifier. Men's tennnis toppers. It was last Saturday against the Manhattan. Some of the top teams in the UpGrade. If the team does not really have a team with enough talent to compete against the best teams in the country. And yes, they still have a hot streak going at the 32-minute mark when DeBrito opened up the scoring. "That game was an instrumental part, both on the field and of his season," he said. Marist coach Bobby Herdodes remembered forever for their teamwork, concerning clutch performances.

Women's soccer team fails to qualify for MAAC championships

The Marist women's soccer season has had a roller coaster of a year thus far. Following a weekend that saw the Red Foxes lose 1-0 to Rider, the Red Foxes are now 2-7-3 in MAAC conference play. Earlier in the season, the Marist women's soccer team had a chance to win the MAAC title, but it was not enough. The women's soccer team was completely shutout of the season. The win was DeBrito's third shutout and the first of the season. While the score remained 1-0 until the 32-minute mark, when DeBrito opened up the scoring, "That game was an instrumental part, both on the field and of his season," he said. Marist coach Bobby Herdodes remembered forever for their teamwork, concerning clutch performances.

Allen's hard work paying off in senior season ...

There are situations in life in which one door closes and another one opens. This is a situation Allen's football career was put on hold during his junior year. J.J. Allen originally signed to play football for Howard University coming out of Worcester Academy, New York. He would red-shirt his freshman year at Howard University but going into his spring semester freshman year he would run into financial aid problems. As a result he would have to leave the school and go through the whole recruitment process over again to find a school.

"I looked at a couple of schools but I chose Marist because the classes seemed smaller and the atmosphere seemed friendlier," said Allen. "It also had a great biology program which I was looking for in a school beside football," he said.

So the fall of 1995, J.J. Allen was taking classes at Marist but would have to sit out the year because of NCAA transferring rules. While the team was practicing he would do his school work and work out on his own. He would prepare himself for spring practice and the following season, which he would do so badly he was booted of.

"What I bring to the team is a lot of heart," said J.J. Allen. "I will sell out for my team do whatever it takes to win. I'm also a very hard worker which enables me to get into the end zone."

In Allen's first season with the Red Foxes he scored a team-high 10 touchdowns. He finished the season with 695 yards on 161 carries. Out of the 10 touchdowns he scored in 1996, two of them helped Marist come-from-behind and win the game over rival St. Peter's. In 1997 Allen would get into the end zone 10 times again like the previous year. He would finish the season seventh in the MAAC in rushing with 697 yards and third in scoring with 916 rushing yards on 193 carries.

In his senior year at Marist, Allen is having his best season for the Red Foxes. Currently he has nine touchdowns and 916 rushing yards on 193 carries.

On October 17, 1998 Marist would play the Iona Gaels it would be a special day for Allen. He had a career day in rushing yards with 247. He also found the end zone four times. On the day with touchdown runs of 38, 10, and 25 yards.

"This was the most yards I have ever had since being a part of the Red Foxes," said Allen. "I really did not know if I was going to play in the game because I was so close to me passed away on Thursday. I missed a lot of practice that week plus I was down. The team pick me up and everything fall into place that weekend against Iona."

When asked how he would like to be remembered on the field by his coaches and peers, Allen said he would like to be remembered as a hard worker.

"On the football field I want people to say 'you should have been at Marist and saw the way this kid played'. I always hear coaches talk about ex-Marist football players all the time and how so and so did this or that," Allen said.

What J.J. Allen is not seen on the football field is in the weight room, you can probably see him in Duquesne taking science classes. He gets the same thrill out of science as he does when he breaks tackles for 50 yards on a touchdown.

"I love biology because you are dealing with real things," said Allen. "It's hard work but I enjoy learning science. If I cannot make football a career than I will want to go to graduate school and pursue something in the medical field. Graduate school is just as competitive as football, but there is less chance to play football at the next level. I will give it a go and try out for the NFL during the winter and spring breaks. I will give it my best effort the Monday right after the season ends. I will be in the weight room getting ready for the league."

What J.J. Allen wants people to know is that he is a down to earth guy. He considers himself an everyday 'Joe' and he has no problem talking to anybody. He said people might think he has a big ego because he is on a football team, but that is his personality.

Allen's stay at Marist has been memorable and off the field. He would like to thank players, coaches and Marists that he has been able to associate with during his stay at Marist.

As for what the future holds for him, it is still uncertain. But, what he can say is that he is ready to take it head on and over the top, just like one of his trips into the end zone.

... but Red Foxes will still fall short of MAAC Championship

A pair of losses, one of which all but eliminated Marist from the race for the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference championship, made for a less than enjoyable three weeks for the Red Foxes. Now the foxes never led in the game.

Men’s tennis team earns bid to the NCAA’s

The court is quiet now at the Dutchess Racquet Club. For the past months, the courts were home to not only the Marist tennis team, but also a dream. Well that dream is now a reality. For only the third time in our school’s history, a Marist team will be at the NCAA championships.

In an impressive and dramatic manner, the Red Foxes captured the MAAC championship, thus giving them a bid to the NCAA championships this spring. In a tournament that featured such teams as Manhattan, Rider, Canisius, Iona, Siena, and rival Fairfield, Marist rose above all the rest to capture the title with a combined total of 46 points. (2nd place went to Fairfield with 38 points, and Manhattan took 3rd with 32 points)

The scores however, do not give a fair assessment of what a close and competitive tournament this year’s MAAC really was. In fact, the team generally lost three of six singles matches, and two of these matches were close.

Before the start of the tournament, coach Tim Smith had a few words to say on the team’s importance of the final matches.

"I am just looking for a good foundation," Smith said. "I am looking for an excellent job framing the house and leaving the walls, floor, and ceilings. However, if it is a roof (the MAAC championship) it was well worth it to be a long and cold winter."
