College Hindered In Plans For Anniversary

by Joe Kohlf

Next year, 1967, marks the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Marist Brothers. It is a year of special celebration for the Church's seventh-largest congregation of male religious, which was founded in France on January 3, 1817.

To date, Marist College has not planned to sponsor any events to commemorate the Marist Sesquicentennial Year. Mr. John J. Connelly, Director of Development, states that no specific information on events will be available for the next issue of the Circle, and that a committee will be formed to organize some kind of commemorative event. This event will be sponsored by the College.

Brock, Linnell Hoy points out one of the major problems facing the Marist College Alumni Association: "Most of the Marist schools depend heavily on the annual subscriptions to carry out the work of the organization. Marist's alumni association is still in its early formative period, and it is not clear how much the organization can earn on a large scale without placing an unusually heavy burden on the alumni."

Brother stated that an effort would be made to keep the alumni informed of the various events taking place in the New York metropolitan area.

Even the simple use of the Marist College name for the Marist organizations celebrating the year is denied to the College. The Marist College Alumni Association, "Marist - 150 Years of Service," is now 150 years old.

At any rate, an effort will be made to bring the Sesquicentennial theme into other major events sponsored by Marist during the year. Contending against these will be the Great Contemporary Christmas Dinner to be held at the American Hotel in New York.

Kosik Returns With Educational Theories

Former Professor Proposes Christian Culture Course

Dr. Frank Kosik returned to Marist College to raise again the standards of "Christianity on Campus" on Tuesday, November 29. Speaking to an overflow audience in the auditorium, Dr. Kosik eloquently and perspicaciously presented his case for an hour and a half, answering questions from the audience for an hour.

Dr. Kosik refused to mince words from the start, stating, "This is the very first time, anytime, anywhere, I was asked to come back... and to house of you who expect the old stuff - it's coming..."

Dr. Kosik's viewpoint was that "the world today is changing so fast that we need to change too."

From the start, Dr. Kosik delivered American society in general, and Marist College in particular, "where only the mediocrity, mediocrity, mediocrity... the mental and religious evolution of this modern culture materialize in society..."

Marit has reached a crisis in its growth and stagnation. It is a crisis in the sense that Marit lacks a clear direction and purpose. Many people have been concerned for some time about the direction in which Marit is heading, and the crisis is evident in the lack of progress and innovation in the school. The crisis is also evident in the lack of student involvement and participation in decision-making processes. It is evident in the lack of a clear vision for the future of Marit.

Letters To The Editor

Congratulations

Congratulations to all involved for a job well done! The recent efforts to improve the school's facilities and programs are truly commendable. It is wonderful to see the dedication and hard work being put into making Marit a better place to learn.

Conforming Attitudes

Dear Editor,

I write to express my concern about the recent changes in the school's dress code. While I understand the need to maintain a professional appearance, I believe that the current dress code is too restrictive and does not reflect the diversity of student cultures.

Dr. Frank Skipp is one of the few people in the world who actually enjoy reading comic books. He dedicates his time to analyzing and discussing these works, an activity which he finds extremely rewarding and entertaining, almost compulsive.

The Great Imposter

Contrary to popular opinion, the Marit College student government does not have a monopoly on the use of the word "impersonation." As a matter of fact, the term was first coined by the Greek philosopher, Socrates. Who knew we'd find out about all these imposters on campus? We should be proud of our students for their creativity and resourcefulness.

The oil field of the book is an integral part of the novel's commentary on modern society's dependence on oil. The story follows the fictional oil company, the Susanville Petroleum Corporation, as it struggles to maintain its dominance in the oil industry. Unfortunately, this is not the only novel to explore the theme of oil dependence. It is a testament to the importance of oil in our lives and the potential consequences of its overuse.

Student Brothers Lend Aid To Local Disturbed Youth

Volunteers Help Tots Find Way Towards Reality

By Betty Bower, UPSI

A visitor peening in might be startled to find a grown man, arrows in his hands, peering at the antics of children climbing about on a broken-down truck. This is a scene not out of the ordinary in an abandoned building in the town.

"This program gives the students a chance to be more active," said a member of the fraternity. "It helps them to feel good about themselves."

The group, which consists of members of the Phi Delta Chi fraternity, meets weekly at the building to paint and repair the vehicles. They also help the children with their studies and play games with them.

Brother James Foley of the fraternity, for example, works as a draftsman at the Ford Motor Company. He said he enjoys helping the children because it gives him a sense of satisfaction.

Discussions

The group also discusses various topics of interest to the members. They feel they can contribute to the community by helping the children.

"Give Me Some Men Who Are Stouthearted Men"

J.G. O'Connell

The quotation for March 1967, "Give Me Some Men Who Are Stouthearted Men," is attributed to the Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon. It is a call to action for those who are willing to stand up for what is right and fight for justice.

Keep Christ in Christmas
Student Brothers Lend Aid To Local Disturbed Youth

By Barry Bauer, UPI

A visitor seeking to be initiated into a new phase of his life, a leader entering the ranks of the Soviet espionage ring, a child's imagination at play, all these are combined in a single experience that can best be described as a "Christmas gift." The experience is given to a visitor who seeks membership in the Communist youth movement, and it is a gift that can be given to any visitor who seeks membership in the movement.

And yet, the visitor does not find his way into the Communist youth movement by chance. He is chosen for membership by the group's leaders, who then proceed to educate him about the movement's goals and objectives. The visitor is then given a "Christmas gift" in the form of a membership card, which entitles him to participate in the movement's activities.

In addition to the membership card, the visitor is given a "Christmas gift" in the form of a book, which is designed to educate him about the movement's history and philosophy. The book is filled with information about the movement's past, present, and future, and it is a gift that can be given to any visitor who seeks to learn about the movement.

The visitor is then given a "Christmas gift" in the form of a training program, which is designed to prepare him for membership in the movement. The training program is filled with information about the movement's goals and objectives, and it is a gift that can be given to any visitor who seeks to become a member of the movement.

In conclusion, the visitor is given a "Christmas gift" in the form of membership in the Communist youth movement, which is a gift that can be given to any visitor who seeks membership in the movement. The visitor is also given a "Christmas gift" in the form of a book, which is designed to educate him about the movement's history and philosophy. The visitor is then given a "Christmas gift" in the form of a training program, which is designed to prepare him for membership in the movement. These gifts are given to the visitor in the spirit of the holiday season, and they are a symbol of the movement's commitment to educate and prepare its members for membership in the movement.

Prior to that, 2 minutes, the game was predominantly Marist’s, Duquesne had led by 2 points after 2 minutes of playing time elapsed. By 800, the Marist had increased its lead to 13 points remaining in the first half. Marist continued to lead by 30 points by the end of the first half and 40 points at the half-time intermission.

The second period belonged to Marist. The Foxes showed Dun- cerry a variety of shots from both inside and out. From the key, junior John Murphy paved the way with 10 points and 20 rebounds, while both Bill Condon contributed 10 points to the ef fort. Senior Rick DeRieti and Tony Powers along with sopho- more John Archimedes and Junior Rick DeRieti provided the outside fireworks.

After the game Coach Potro was very optimistic. “The boys are doing well for a bunch of sopho- omores. We made quite a few mistakes, but the boys are really talented.”

The Freshman score was 69, Duquesne 53.

Marist extended its record to 1-0 in an upset victory over Kings College Saturday night.
