WMCR.....

Student Council To Poll Radio Popularity

WMCR, the college radio station, will be revamped seeking results of a school-wide poll to be taken by the Student Government. This poll according to Frank Figliola, the Attorney General, will be conducted. "To find out what music the students want the station to carry," Mr. Figliola further stated, "The station has a dual purpose. It is a club with its independent executive board, but it also functions as a service to the student body and should serve the interests and desires of the community." The Radio Club was allocated $250 by the Student Government for the school year, this being less than the club has received in subsequent years. According to Pete Varol, the club's president, this will be enough to accommodate the club's present needs in order to operate. Mr. Varol has admitted that this is a reason for the apparent controversy is lack of cooperation among the existing campus clubs and a inadequate number of members interested in assisting on the technical level as against being D.J.'s or announcers. Ron Honick, secretary of the club, feels that the low attendance participation by club members more enthusiastic response from the student body is needed.

Certain recommendations the club has considered are: playing tapes of local bands, a campus phone on the air, a library of records for use by members of the club, and a Radio Week on campus. The station, besides playing records, has a number of discussion and lecture programs: "The Student Council Hour," "The Father Guilmette Show," on Monday 4-9:00 p.m., Mr. Whitley's "Calvin Hour" on Tuesday 8:00 p.m., and Floyd Alson's "Outrageous Opinions" aired Thursday 2-11:00 p.m.

Committee To Conduct Faculty Evaluation

A major effort at evaluating the quality of instruction is currently under way at Marist College. A joint administration-faculty committee, The Committee on Faculty Development, conducted last spring by the administration, and is now presently at work gathering information aimed at helping faculty members to use that information, including classroom visitations, student and departmental hiss, student evaluations, and as solicitation of student opinion through the use of questionnaires.

The Committee on Faculty Development consists of two top college administrators charged with academic affairs, Bro. Edward Cashel, Academic Vice-President, and Bro. John O'Gara, Academic Dean, and three faculty members elected last spring by the faculty, Dr. George Hepper, the chairman of the committee, Bro. Daniel Kirk, and Bro. Richard LaPierre. The major concern of the committee is the professional and intellectual development of the faculty, which naturally encompasses a deep interest in the general quality of instruction at Marist.

The efforts of the committee to involve students in the evaluative process is not a new one at Marist. Last year, similar committees, operating on an experimental basis, sought the opinion of some 100 students on the question of their classroom instruction and their instructors. Although only 35 of the student's who were invited replied, the information furnished by them was sufficiently useful to warrant employment of this procedure on an even larger scale this year.

At the present time over 100 hundred and fifty students have been visited by the committee to evaluate a total of forty-five courses and eighteen instructors. The invitations, originally intended for posting on October 8, were not mailed until October 25 because of printing delays caused by the postal strike. Concurrently, the deadline for reply, October 25, has been postponed to November 30. The questionnaire being used differs considerably from the one used last year, and requires a rating on a four-point scale ranging from 3 (slight) to 1 (good). It includes a request for written comments, and the importance of these comments in evaluating the effectiveness of the response is stressed. The questionnaire is designed to give a sample group of thirty students and was reviewed significantly in response to their criticism. Pretesting procedure also showed that the questionnaire could be completed adequately in thirty to forty-five minutes.

The committee is hoping for a high response rate on the part of students.

T.A.C. Seeks A Free University

Submitting a petition to the student body to support the "Can- tare" show, T.A.C. (Theatre, Action, Communication) begins its second year of activity. The petition called for the moral support of anti-war activists who burned the I-A, A-2, A-3, and 1-I draft files of Local Board 53 in Cantonville, Md. These arrests are said to have occurred in January and are accused of having taken place in prison and $22,000 in fines.

The petition garnered 160 signatures from students and a success by the T.A.C. members.

The active membership of thirty that T.A.C. claims to have.

Symposium to Examine F.D.R. As Campaigner And Politician

Frank Figliola discusses the Radio Club issue with Jack Lemon, manager of the student-run radio station. Figliola has proposed a $250 allocation for the club, which he hopes will be sufficient to accommodate the club's present needs in order to operate. Figliola has also mentioned that the club has received more enthusiastic response from the student body.

The Fourth Annual Franklin D. Roosevelt Symposium opened up with a speech by the President of the American Historical Association's Service Center for Teachers of History. The event was held in the Campus Center.

The program will begin with a screening of the film "The War Bicentennial" at the Gallery Lounge at 9:15 A.M. The morning session will last in the Campus Center and will include a discussion of the work of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The afternoon session will feature a panel discussion of the life and work of FDR. The panel will include Charles C. Griffin, Professor of History of the United States, Vassar College, and trustee of Marist College.

The evening session will feature a screening of the film "The Splendid Little War" (1943), "The New Deal and the American People" (1944), and "The Presidents of the United States of America" (1948). The event is open to the public.

J. Joseph Huthmacher has discussed the life and work of FDR in his book "The Life of FDR." He has also written "The Roosevelt Era: 1933-1938." His work has been widely praised and is considered a definitive work on the life and work of FDR.

In 1935-36 he was Harmsworth Professor of American History at the University of Oxford, and in 1949-52 a Guggenheim Fellow. He was also a member of the American Historical Association, the American Political Science Association, and the American Society for Political and Legal History. His work has been widely acclaimed and is considered a definitive work on the life and work of FDR.

Responding to TAC

First of all, there are the ones who believe the TAC idea is correct. They believe that TAC has a potential, that it has potential for achieving real change in this world, and that it is a necessary movement.

On the other hand, there are those who think TAC is a waste of time, that it is a movement that is full of rhetoric and empty promises.

We believe that TAC is a movement that has potential, and that it is a necessary movement. We believe that TAC can achieve real change in this world, and that it is capable of doing so if it is given the support and resources that it needs.

We urge all students to support TAC, and to contribute to its efforts. We believe that TAC is a movement that is worthy of our support, and that it is a movement that can make a real difference in this world.

Responding to TAC

Conscious Response

Dear TAC Reader,

I was deeply disturbed by the recent article in The Circle, titled "The Marist Movement in America". As a member of the Marist community, I feel compelled to respond to the claims and misrepresentations made in the article.

Firstly, it is important to note that The Circle has a history of misrepresenting the Marist Brothers and their mission. The article in question appears to be an attempt to undermine the good work that the Marist Brothers do, particularly in the areas of education and social justice.

As a former student of a Marist institution, I can attest to the positive impact that the Marists have had on my life. They have provided me with a solid foundation in education and have instilled in me a sense of social justice and service.

I urge you to consider the character and mission of the Marist Brothers before forming any conclusions. They are a community of men who dedicate their lives to the education of young people and the promotion of social justice.

Yours sincerely,

Thought at 5 A.M.

By Peter Walsh

The Marists have always been known for their dedication to education and social justice. As a member of the Marist community, I am proud to see the work they do.

One of the things that sets the Marists apart is their commitment to education. They have established many schools and universities, and have provided a quality education to thousands of students.

However, it is also important to recognize the Marists' commitment to social justice. They have been involved in many social justice movements, and have worked to promote equality and justice for all.

I am grateful for the work that the Marists do, and I encourage others to support them.

Yours sincerely,

From Third Year Ahead:
Open a New Window
by Vincent Broley

I have been given the opportunity of attending a conference on the importance of high school mathematics. I was impressed by the experiences of many of the speakers and the enthusiasm with which they expressed their views. I believe that it is important to open a new window on the subject of high school mathematics, and to encourage young people to explore this fascinating field.

At the conference, a panel of experts was discussing the importance of high school mathematics. One of the speakers, a professor from a well-known university, pointed out that mathematics is crucial for the development of critical thinking skills. He argued that mathematics is not just about numbers and equations, but also about understanding patterns and relationships.

Another speaker, a high school teacher, emphasized the importance of teaching mathematics in a way that is relevant to students' lives. He suggested that mathematics should be taught in a way that is engaging and meaningful, rather than simply as a set of facts and procedures.

In conclusion, I believe that it is important to open a new window on the subject of high school mathematics. By exploring this fascinating field, we can help students develop critical thinking skills and learn how to apply these skills in their everyday lives.
From Third Year Aboard:
Open A New Window
by Vincent Bagley

I have, from the rut of procrastination, any hope of ever coming up with all that has to be done in just a day. As a result, I am constantly constrained to save every minute I can to be applied to the necessary nitty-gritty of preparing for examinations. My answer, therefore, for the American student, is to be found in the fact that the English system is irrationally adjusted to the English system of higher education, but it has been, for many years, the most popular method of preparing for examinations.

At the beginning of each term a Test List is published, The New York Times, the most authoritative of the English newspapers. At the same time, the New York Times puts out a "Test List," the "Test of Englishness," which is the most authoritative of the English newspapers. At the same time, the New York Times puts out a "Test List," the "Test of Englishness," which is the most authoritative of the English newspapers.

First of all, there seemed to be a lot of people in the room. "These people didn't look like they belonged," I thought. "They seemed to be the kind of people who would probably stand out in any crowd." But as I looked up, I saw that they were all normal people, normal and not at all like people that I knew. But it was a strange feeling, almost as if I were in a dream. I think I was there because I was interested in the people, not because I thought I belonged there. It was a strange feeling, almost as if I were in a dream.

Secondly, the purpose of the test is to make sure that all students have a fair chance of getting into a new career. The test is not intended to be a measure of intelligence, but of the ability to learn and to apply what you have learned. Of course, this is not to say that there is any difference between the test and the actual experience of being a student. The test is just a tool to help students who want to learn and to apply what they have learned in a real-world situation.

The Trend Is Liberal

- Cornell, N.Y. - (P.R. - Oxygen) - The latest liberal attitude, considered by some Cornellians as liberal, has been evident throughout the country, causing a great deal of concern. The trend has been toward a more liberal and accepting society, with a greater emphasis on individual freedom and rights.

- Liberalism has been on the rise in recent years, with many new policies and laws advocating for greater equality and civil rights. This trend is not without controversy, as some argue that it is moving too far in the opposite direction.

- The trend towards liberalism has been driven by various factors, including political events, social movements, and changes in public opinion. However, it remains to be seen how far this trend will continue and how it will impact society in the future.

Sailors Take Fifth at Kings Point

- At the Maritime College sailing team, the sailors enjoyed a successful season, placing fifth at the Kings Point Invitational. The team performed well, bringing home valuable experience for future competitive events.

- The sailors faced tough competition, but their hard work and dedication paid off. They worked together as a team, demonstrating their teamwork and commitment to excellence.

- The coach expressed his pride in the sailors, highlighting their efforts and achievements throughout the season. The team continues to strive for improvement and looks forward to the challenges ahead.

Crew Has New Coach

- The crew team has appointed a new coach, who brings fresh perspectives and a renewed energy to the program. The coach is eager to take the team to new heights and guide them towards success.

- The crew has a bright future ahead, with new leadership and a strong foundation. The team is committed to achieving excellence in their sport, and the new coach plays a crucial role in their growth and development.

- The coach's experience and knowledge will undoubtedly benefit the crew, as they prepare for upcoming competitions and face the challenges of the season.
The Trend Is Liberal

- Corvalis, Ore. — (P.R.) — Oregon State College was recently considered by almost all students to be an outstanding example of the way in which the liberal spirit can be fostered throughout the country, recovering from the postwar depression. This year's activities, which have been well coordinated, are expected to be even more successful.

President Kennedy has been particularly concerned with the problem of ensuring that the liberal spirit continues to thrive on the campus. He has made a number of visits to the Oregon State College and has been impressed with the progress that has been made.

New Trends Started in Education

- New York City — It is already well-established that a liberal education is essential if we are to meet the challenges of modern life. This year, for the first time in many years, a number of important changes have been made in the education system. The members will be pleased to see that the university has taken a new approach to the problem of education, leading to a much-needed improvement in the quality of instruction.

Recruiters Refuse Debate

- San Francisco (P.R.) — Military recruiters refused to come in to debate the issue of conscription when they were invited. The plan, brought to the attention of the recruiters by the student members, was to have the recruiters come in to discuss the issue and then be met by students who would debate them. The recruiters refused to come in, stating that they would not participate in such a debate.

The students were not satisfied with the recruiters' refusal and decided to take the matter to the university administration. They have already started a campaign to have the recruiters come in to discuss the issue and then be met by students who would debate them.

The Marist Booters chalked up their second victory of the season on Wed., Oct. 9, by defeating Paterson State 2-0. The game was bastante, and Marist came out with a narrow 2-0 victory. Marist, Paterson seemed to be controlling the play. They took no chances in the first half, and only 2 minute away from the first goal. Suddenly, Bob Krenn kept them from running up a score. Two of the best Marist goals were kept by the Marist goalie, Donnie Vernon and Rich Measel, and with these came the margin of victory.

On Oct. 12 Marist and Maritime battled it out on the outskirts of the field. The game was close, but in the end, Marist came out on top. The Marist goalie, Bill Davis, did outstanding work in keeping the pressure on the Kings defense.

In the second quarter, however, things were turned around. Kings became the aggressor. They attacked the Marist goal successfully and managed to score. However, the Marist goalie, Bob Krenn, was quick and did some outstanding saves.

On Oct. 9, the Red Foxes met the always formidable Nyack squad. The team played as well as can be expected, but they wound up on the losing end 2-0.

On Wednesday, October 10, at home, Marist suffered a tough defeat against the visiting team. The game was lost, but it was a good effort for the Marist team.

Kings continued to dominate the action in the third quarter, and their defense was solid. The Kings continued to pressure Marist and held them scoreless in the final period. However, the Marist goalie, Bob Krenn, was the difference maker.

The final score was 2-0, although Kings had many scoring opportunities, they were either missed or saved by the Marist goalie. The game was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Marist team.

After several consecutive losses, the Marist team is starting to find its rhythm. However, they are still facing challenges.
