Is Education Possible At Marist College

by Jack Gordon

Education is a term that seems to be taken more and more lightly by the academic community. This truth is to such a degree so comprehensible that the word no longer has any meaning. It is education an accumulation of bits and pieces of incidental intelligence that are to make a scholarly splash when dropped in conversation, or is it not simply an integral part of life but also an instructional device that is to be used in our many meditations that concern life itself? Of course, being shrewd thinkers and self-severing we all would probably choose the latter as our definition. Now the real question that we must ask ourselves is the next question is whether we are adequately equipped to deal with life, but we are not at the outset of our college education?

In effect, what does English 201 or History 402 really have to do with our dealings with our future? Quite a bit, but not for most, probably not very much. We have all heard our professors claim their almost fanatical zeal of education becoming a process of intellectual fear is well founded but unfortunately, very poorly protected against. As a sophomore I had a teacher who I respected but who were they to seek a class this year so long a part of the teaching staff of Marist College; but there remain a good number like him. Not that we get it in a class of books but you must clad yourself in the subject matter of a course. And the professor has his own teacher when he thinks it's time to cause an inventory. This is usually done without your knowledge.

What is needed at Marist is a break in the traditional student distinctions and the dual role of intellectual display as a course requirement. The creative experience intellectual, CONT. P.2 - col.5

Circle Interview

Norton, Kirck, Alpert - Faculty Tenure

by James Daly

On January 28, 1971 the Circle presented an editorial concern to the problem of faculty tenure. The following group interview with three faculty members, Mr. Joseph Norton, Dr. Donald Kirk and Mr. Alpert, was presented at certain faculty through the school.

Circle: Mr. Norton, what justification can you give for faculty tenure?

Norton: Tenure developed as a protection from situations as those the McCarthy era of the early 1950’s. Tenure was developed to prevent back-firing but than that, this is a major justification...

Circle: What is the rationale for a ranked faculty?

Norton: Have a ranked faculty will afford a better method of distributing money. There are the same privileges such as special bathroom or better offices. I can’t see any other rational.

Circle: Why are you opposed to it?

Norton: I am not opposed to it, but I think a new thing is the redefining of what tenure should be. If the tenure is a behind tenure is for protection. If you can sit back and wait seven years to receive this protection? Besides by redefining, for seven years a person tends to be less likely to be promoted.

Circle: From what a tenure should be.

Norton: I consider protection to be from an outside political attitude. I am not opposed to the term tenure in favor of protection and that inclusion of the student faculty for programs. Circles: Mr. Alpert, student bill of rights for example, originating from the students?

Norton: From the student untimely from using the A.A.U.P. statement on student rights as a guideline. I personally believe students should be involved in all financial dealings of the college, since money is where the power is. They may claim to have this here, but I doubt its effectiveness.

Circle: Are you opposed to a ranked faculty?

Norton: I considered it to be the height of absurdity. I feel this way primarily because it creates nonmeaningful expansions to do at present proposals. There are so many alternatives, but we are not attempting any of them.

Circle: Mr. Alpert, do you have to apply for promotion after three years if also according to the rules you have to leave.

Norton: Tenure gives us tenure, we may just attract more innovative people to our faculty.

Circle: Mr. Alpert, would you give up the tenure?

Norton: Tenure loses its true meaning by conferring financial security. Alpert: This week’s two sides to the tenure question. One view is that a faculty member can stop growing, but on the other hand, a faculty member has tenure, say unpopular things. Norton: The object should be to remove tenure and enforce a protective due process system. Alpert: The process can be biased, as you know, a person can become a tenure. Why were June Tate and Jerry Remmertly denied due process? The F.C.P.C. by a unanimous vote demanded additional notice to those two instructors. The administration ignored the proposal.

Norton: The F.P.C.C. should have been up a proposal before the fact.

Circle: Mr. Alpert, would you give up the tenure?

Alpert: Mine is not a typical case, I have a substantial outstanding serious security and I already have it...

Norton: Yes, in principle I would...

The regular funs came down to the pit, this being the season for dog shows in the area. Fox County Dogfight is the most popular one in the area, drawing people from all over the state. The event is held in the middle of the state, around the city of Madison, and is known for its impressive displays of purebred dogs. The show features a variety of dog breeds, from small breeds like Chihuahuas to large breeds like Mastiffs. The event is open to the public and is a great opportunity to see some of the finest dogs in the state.

To The Senior Class

After the meeting of Friday, February 8, the Senior Class is planning to have a special event. The event will be held in the school's gymnasium and will feature a variety of activities, including a DJ, food, and games. The Senior Class is encouraging all students to attend and to bring a friend. The event is open to the public and is a great opportunity to celebrate the end of the year.

Before I begin, I'd like to say that the issue of tuition hikes is a sensitive and important topic. As a student, I believe that tuition hikes should be brought about with the utmost consideration. The purpose of this letter is to share my views on the topic and to encourage others to think about the implications of tuition hikes.

I understand your concerns, but I believe that tuition hikes are necessary to ensure the quality of education. The university is facing financial challenges, and increasing tuition is one way to address these challenges. I urge you to consider the long-term benefits of education and to support the university's efforts to provide a quality education.

Disability In Action

By MIKE WARD

While I was the week before last it became of the birth of my niece, I decided to go to bed and watch her sleep. When I woke up she was gone. She had the most of the sexiest neighbors amazed and the simplest way she knew how. The neighbors were the worst group of people. They all noticed their disabilities, and the next day, they were all at a loss. My niece was the best group of people, but this was not easy for her to understand, because the neighbors never even understood what caused their disabilities, that was why we left them.

During the snows of time I was watching the television, two commentators were talking about the disability issue. They mentioned a group called "Fighting for Our Rights" which had been formed a few years ago in order to fight against discrimination. They claimed that the issue was being ignored by the media, which was one of the reasons why the disability community was not given the recognition they deserved. They were calling for more attention to be paid to the struggles of people with disabilities.

I started with a story about a girl who was born with a disability. She had a hard time fitting in with her peers, and at times felt like she was being looked down upon. However, she never gave up. She continued to work hard and eventually became a successful lawyer. She became an advocate for people with disabilities, and worked hard to promote accessibility and equal opportunities for all.

At the conclusion of the story, the commentators called for more support for the disability community. They encouraged people to become more aware of the issues facing people with disabilities, and to work towards creating a more inclusive society.

When the Romanies arrived in my city, I expected to see a lot of violence and disorder. I was surprised to see that they were a peaceful and hardworking group of people. They created a new neighborhood and started a new school. The community welcomed them and supported them.

We finally reached the site of the new settlement. It was a large area of land, surrounded by trees. The Romanies had set up a number of tents and makeshift homes. Many of the children were playing games and others were reading books. It was clear that they had a strong sense of community and were working hard to build a new life.

I would like to end this story by saying that I was very impressed by the Romanies. They were a hardworking and peaceful group of people who were making a difference in their community. They deserve to be recognized for their achievements and to be given the respect they deserve.

To the Editor:

Before I begin, I'd like to point out that this is not a personal attack on any individual, but rather a discussion of an issue that affects all of us. The issue is the lack of funding for our schools.

In order to address this issue, I would like to propose a two-pronged approach. First, we need to increase funding for our schools. This can be done by raising taxes or by finding new sources of revenue. Second, we need to prioritize education in our budget. This means that we need to cut back on non-essential spending in order to free up more money for education.

I am confident that with the support of our community, we can make these changes and provide a better future for our children.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I'd like to respond to the recent letter about the lack of funding for our schools. While I agree that funding is a problem, I believe that there are other factors at play that may be contributing to the issue.

For example, I've noticed that there is a lack of parental involvement in our schools. This may be due to a variety of reasons, such as working parents or family circumstances. If we can increase parental involvement, we may be able to address some of the issues that are facing our schools.

I look forward to hearing more about this topic in the future.

ADDITIONS: OUTRAGEOUS

by BILL O'REILLY

I am a student at St. John's University and I recently read an article by Bill O'Reilly in the New York Times. The article was titled "The College Campus as a Safe Space for Students with Disabilities."

I found the article to be very thought-provoking and I would like to add my own thoughts on the issue. I believe that it is important for students with disabilities to be given a safe and supportive environment in which to learn and grow.

However, I also believe that it is equally important for all students, regardless of their disabilities, to be given the same opportunities. We cannot create a separate space for students with disabilities without minimizing the achievements we have made in creating a truly inclusive society.

In conclusion, I hope that this letter will be a valuable addition to the ongoing discussion about the needs of students with disabilities.

REPLY:

Sir,

"ADDITIONS: OUTRAGEOUS" by Bill O'Reilly is quite insightful. I would like to add my own thoughts to the discussion.

In my opinion, it is important for all students to be given equal opportunities to succeed. This means that our educational system should be designed to accommodate the needs of all students, regardless of their disabilities.

I believe that it is essential to continue to work towards creating a truly inclusive society, where all students are given the opportunity to reach their full potential.

STONEHILL STOPS SHOOTERS 76-69
DOWLING DECKED DESPITE DELAY

Foxes Tied For Conference Lead

Two nights ago the vanity cages traveled to North Easton, Mass., where they dropped a 76-69 decision to Stonehill College.

Stonehill led almost all the way, taking a 36-28 halftime lead and building it to 52-37 at the 13 minute mark with 5:24 to go in the contest. At this point Bob Ullrich came off the bench to help ease the lead to two points with 2:20 remaining.

Stonehill, however, then hit several key one and one foul shots to ice the game. Bill Spensla (18 pts., 12 rbs), Ray Mainstain (17 pts., 10 rbs), and Joe Scott (13 pts., 10 rbs), led the Mariot attack.

Herb Jacobson, 77 pts., and Mike Alboco with 22 pts., led the way for Stonehill, now 10-2, and 4, Mariot stands 14-4.

The Red Foxes slipped away from Dowling in the second half Saturday night and won 56-45 in a Central-Alantic College Conference basketball game at Our Lady of Lourdes High School.

The victory moved the Foxes to their tie for first place with Bloomfield. Both have 6-1 records.

Marist, ranked sixth in the latest poll by the State Sportswriters Association, is 14-4 overall and has won 10 of their 11 games.

Dowling, routed by the Manhattaner earlier in the season used slowdown tactics and for a while it appeared they might work.

Herb Johnson and Tony Piantino hit several big buckets for Dowling early in the game. Each bucket came after a long period spent looking for the good shot or after a deliberate stall.

With 4:30 to go in the first half, the 'Red Foxes, frustrated by the visitors' pace and more-pass game play, trailed 15-10.

It took nine straight points and then some for coach Ron Petro's cagers to salvage a 23-23 deadlock at the half.

The teams traded buckets until midway through the second half when Brian McGowan sank a free throw and Ray Manning a field goal to give Marist a three-point lead it never lost.

Led by Manning and Ray Clarke, Mariot harassed the Dowling cagers into missing what few shots they took and in the second half the Foxes cooled their nerves and slashed in on the other end of the court.

With 30 seconds left, Mariot was nursing a safe 54-40 spread. Manning paced the winners with seven rebounds and 14 points, including nine in the second half. Steve Shackleford and Lester Chestner had 14 markers each. Clarke, who finished with nine points, secured seven in the second half. McGowan was tops in rebounding with eight.

From the floor, Dowling was 15-26, a red-hot performance of better than 57 percent but with the clutch shots lacking in the second half.

Marist shot 19-48 or just under 40 percent.

Mort: One thing you have to say about this house is there is always agreement. We see the kid's side and they see our side. There is no hassle here.

O'R: What is the kids' side?

Mort: They agree with us.

O'R: One last question Mort and Millie do you have any criticism about today's youth?

Mort: As I said, we're all for the kids. We were kids once ourselves. Of course we didn't have the advantages that today's kids have. I remember when I was dating Millied - I couldn't take her anywhere. If I did I wouldn't have enough bread to keep me in beer and cigarettes. Today's kids have everything; cars, clothes - you name it - send it to them. But my one criticism is that today's kids can't seem to make any decisions. They just wander around aimlessly. They never take a stand on anything.
