Wheelchair Awareness Day

by James Heiman

Last Monday, Nov. 11th, 11 prominent people from the city of Poegkeespig, spent their entire workday to become familiar with a wheelchair. Included among those eleven people, were such notables as Mayor Jack Economou, Dr. Martin Kolokol, Town Supervisor Edward Schaefer, patent attorney for IBM, Owen Lamb, Charles Diets, director of Adirondack Library, and Mariott College President, Fr. Leo Gallant, plus the entire broadcasting staff of WERK.

The purpose was to make the entire community aware of the problems the disabled face when trying to perform daily activities that non-disabled people take for granted. Each participant was required to go in their environment as he usually would, except he could not get out of the chair. Along with each participant was a Mariott College student who pointed out the obstacles and also assisted the person to overcome impossible tasks.

Starting off the day’s activities, Dr. Kolokol performed hernia surgery while in a wheelchair at Vassar Hospital. The doctor stated that one of the reasons why any operation cannot be done “by someone in a wheelchair” is because of the involved body parts. Mayor Jack Economou operated on a wheelchair performing government business. Mr. Economou stated that it was not as impossible and real as it appeared, but modelled the operating of a wheelchair in such a way similar to that of manipulating a baby carriage around.

In addition to their staff being confined to a wheelchair, the broadcasts of WERK announced the purpose and the variety of activities each wheelchair day with several interviews with the participants. Christina Magnotta, one of the student assistants, presented some of the problems the disabled face in the community over the radio.

Father Leo Gallant offered Mass at the Mariott Chapel at 1:00 p.m. Monday while seated in a wheelchair. In the homily, he stated that there is a greater need for awareness of the non-disabled for the problems of the handicapped.

Mike Ward, chairman of the Committee of the Disabled for Dutchess County, stated that the people involved in the day were successful in making the “average person aware of how it’s hard for a disabled person to see the day as a disabled person.” The success of the day can be attributed to the participants and the volunteers who helped organize the project.

A Day Of Solidarity

by Brother Ernest A. Royal

For the past four consecutive years, Black People everywhere have celebrated a day of togetherness, a day known to us as Black Student’s Day. This year, black students along with members of the Third World Alliance, on behalf of the Mariott Campus presented students all-over, Sister Carmen Ayala, shared her poetry with us and the Bro. William Wright gave us an Americanized Education System. The Sister, Charlene Matthews “whiny” expressed the situation of the brothers and sisters America has deemed “Political Prisoners.” From New York City, a young black poet came to share his original works with us. Steven Freeman of Benoit brought us “Vision of Life” and “Once Again I Say Goodbye.” Cagle Moore, a black faculty member, joined us in Solidarity.

First Annual Parents’ Day Dinner

This past Sunday, the Black Students Union of Mariott College, assisted by the Third World Alliance, executed the first annual Parents’ Thanksgiving Dinner Day. This was the first time of its kind and in relations to the Mariott community.

Our day began early, for we are people of the Sun, with preparations for a successful venture. Under the direction of Sister Katie Pugh, our venture commanded a response of apostophy and the Brother’s and Sister’s love that is shared deep down in the souls of our Black folk.

We gathered in the Campus Center. Voted by our parents, faculty, administrators and students from the immediate Mid-Hudson Valley and began our day of festivities with Brother Neville Baggot (Master of ceremony) brilliantly presenting a Black atmosphere which lay hard on the minds of all present. By speaking of the Black roles being portrayed in America, we spoke of the hatred that everyday living has placed upon us, we spoke of our father’s guidance and of mothers’ love. We stood before them, expressing the feeling that our education was more than this system could provide, that our education was the pursuit of all that is worthy to know. We stood before them scholars of tomorrow, living breathing Black dreams. In the words of this poem, "When you rise, the Black family, whom can put asunder. Further into our evening, we enjoyed a dinner of souls delight prepared for us by our Sisters and Parents. The use of all the cafeteria and the assistance was well appreciated by all in attendance. Our special thanks is extended to Father Leo Gallant, Dean Thomas Wade and his wife, Brother Bill Roberts and Michael Quinn, Dr. Edward O’Keefe and his wife, and Mrs. Berd, Mr. and Mrs. Landau and Brother Belenger. On this day of family, we say to ‘ALFIA’. To our parents, we say thank you. We feel this by the way this world brought their professionals, the young and beautiful Black minds who in everyday steps you tend for us.

Peace

Bro. Earnest A. Royal

His message to his brothers and sisters related the reality that we the Black minority here and everywhere are adaptable. The brother Cagle Moore closed his oration with a most impressive statement: "What happens to you here, don’t let it blow your mind. "Brother Rapides Harris, representing the "South Ferry Corporation," expressed a need for us for our involvement in aiding our brothers and sisters who are presently being oppressed by a system that can be categorized as nothing less than a racist institution. Our solution, as related to us by Bro. Harris, the need for Black administration in the correctional institutions of America. Bro. Joseph Stakes who made a brief appearance was substituted for Bro. Edward Michaels in a presentation of the present situation of Black businesses in America today. Michael Quinn who thus far has shown genuine concern for the Black students on the Mariott Campus spoke to us on the availability of funds here at Mariott.

Bro. Joseph Yasin Stakes offered original poetry which was presented by Neville Baggot. Earnest A. Royal presented an original poem.

Halloween Party

Wards Words

By Mike Word

Last Friday was a very strange day for me. In order to avoid writing about this particular day, I decided to go home and look at my city's annual Halloween candy map. The map is a self-guided tour of city locations that provide children with a safe and enjoyable experience. This year, the city had expanded the map to include several new areas. In addition to the usual trick-or-treating spots, there were also several haunted houses and ghost tours. I found myself wandering through the city, admiring the decorations and talking to people about their experiences. It was a strange day, but I'm glad I went home and experienced Halloween in a new way.
Halloween Party

By Mike Word

On Tuesday, October 31, the Black Student Union of Marist College put on a children's Halloween party for the children of the Mohawk Community. The party was held from 7-9 p.m. in the Martyr Hall, and it was held in a large room with 160 kids present. The event was open to all children of the Mohawk Community. The kids were given candy and other treats. The party was a success, and the children had a great time. We thank the Black Student Union of Marist College for organizing this event.
1973 Who’s Who Announced

The 1973-74 edition of Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges was released this past week by its director, H. Pettus Pollard.

This honor is conferred annually on academically outstanding students from approximately 1,100 colleges and universities in the United States. In selecting candidates, campus nomination committees are instructed to choose those students whose academic standing, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential are decidedly above average.

The basic concept of Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges is to provide a democratic, national basis for the recognition of outstanding campus leaders. First published in 1954, this directory has appeared annually - a unique institution which now includes thousands of listings from over 100 schools in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations in North and South America.

Only college seniors, juniors, and graduate students matriculated in four-year undergraduate institutions or graduate schools are eligible for nomination to Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Nominations are submitted annually after selection by campus nominating committees. In most cases these committees are composed of representatives of the administration, the faculty, and the student body.

Methods for judging the relative merits of various candidates vary widely although there has been a growing tendency to use an objective point-scale system to insulate fairness to the selection. The campus committees are instructed by the national organization to consider students whose academic standing, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential are distinctly above average.

30 Colleges To Join “Year For Action”

WASHINGTON, D.C. Nov. 14, 1973 - Planning grants that will add 30 more colleges and universities to Year For Action program announced today by ACTION Director, Joe Blatchford. The UVA program enables students to earn academic credit while spending one year off campus working with the poor.

Blatchford said that final acceptance of program proposals from the new schools would add 200 full-time student volunteers to the program by spring. This will expand UVA’s Year For Action program to 13 universities - involving 1,700 student volunteers.

UVA was established by ACTION, the citizens service corps, as a pilot program involving 10 schools and 800 student volunteers in September, 1971. It was made a permanent program on July 1, 1972.

Among the new schools are the University of Virginia, Princeton, Rutgers, Minnesota, Hampton Institute, St. Mary’s College in Indiana and California State University in Fresno, Calif.

The planning grants, totaling $150,000, are intended to set up such programs at institutions in 17 states.

Blatchford said, “A year ago 170 schools applied for the program and only 20 could be accepted. But the limits are now being expanded.”

Special Awareness Week In House III

This week, House No. 3 of Champagne House presented to the students, faculty, and community a Special Awareness Program. The purpose of this program was to raise awareness of the importance of diversity and inclusivity on campus. The program included various activities and workshops aimed at promoting understanding and respect among students from different backgrounds.

The week started with a panel discussion on the history of Black Lives Matter, hosted by the Black Student Union. The panelists shared their personal experiences and perspectives on the issue, fostering a deeper understanding of the complexities and challenges faced by Black communities.

On Tuesday, the faculty members of House No. 3 held a workshop on the importance of mental health awareness. They discussed how to recognize signs of mental health issues and the resources available on campus for support.

On Wednesday, a cultural diversity fair was held, featuring food, art, and music from various cultures around the world. This event aimed to celebrate the diversity of the student body and promote cultural exchange.

On Thursday, a Green Week event focused on sustainability and environmental awareness. Students learned about eco-friendly practices and the importance of reducing our carbon footprint.

On Friday, a sports day was organized, where students participated in various sports activities, promoting physical health and teamwork.

The special awareness week in House No. 3 of Champagne House was a success in raising awareness and promoting inclusivity on campus. The events were well-attended, and participants shared positive feedback about the activities.

Special Awareness Week In House III

This week, House No. 3 of Champagnat House presented to the students, faculty, and community a Special Awareness Week. The purpose of this week is to bring about a greater understanding of the issues related to special needs and disabilities. The week's events included various activities such as workshops, discussions, and presentations to raise awareness among the community.

On Tuesday, October 5, Mr. Reif, Principal, and the House Committee presented a PowerPoint presentation on special needs and disabilities. The presentation covered various aspects such as the definition of special needs, different types of disabilities, and the challenges faced by individuals with special needs. The presentation was well-received, and it sparked a lot of interest among the students.

On Wednesday, October 6, the House Committee organized a special needs awareness lunch. The lunch was held in the school cafeteria, and it included a variety of food items that were specially prepared to cater to the needs of individuals with special dietary requirements.

On Thursday, October 7, the House Committee organized a special needs awareness session in the school auditorium. The session included a panel discussion with experts in the field of special needs and disabilities. The panelists shared their experiences and insights, and they answered questions from the students.

On Friday, October 8, the House Committee organized a special needs awareness walk. The walk was held in the school's surrounding area, and it was attended by a large number of students. The walk was a great opportunity for students to show their support for individuals with special needs and disabilities.

The Special Awareness Week was a great success, and it helped to raise awareness among the community about the challenges faced by individuals with special needs and disabilities. The students and faculty learned a lot from the various activities and sessions, and they are now more aware and understanding of the issues related to special needs and disabilities.

Time Sheets Due For Dec. Payroll

Chess Tourney

During the week of November 21-25, the Chess Club will be hosting a Chess Tourney. The Tourney will be held in the school's library, and it is open to all students and faculty. The Tourney will feature several rounds of play, and the winner will be determined by the highest number of points scored.

The Chess Club will be providing refreshments for the participants, and the Tourney will be judged by a professional chess instructor. The Tourney is expected to attract a large number of participants, and it will be a great opportunity for students and faculty to showcase their chess skills.

Marist Students To Send Telegram To Southern University

The following is a draft of a telegram to the Marist students who are currently enrolled at the University of the South:

Dear Students,

We are writing to urge you to send a telegram to the Southern University, expressing your support for the Marist students who are currently enrolled at the University of the South. The Marist students have faced some challenges in recent years, and we believe that it is important for us to show our support for them.

Your telegram should express your support for the Marist students and your commitment to their success. It should also mention your desire to see the Marist students succeed in their academic pursuits.

We hope that you will take the time to send a telegram to the Southern University and show your support for the Marist students. Your support will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Chairman of the Marist Student Council

Freshman Elections

Every year a class of freshmen enters a new frame and a new world, and every year the opportunity to change the way the university is run falls on the shoulders of the new class. This year, students have the chance to elect a new student government, and many have come out to support a new slate of candidates. The candidates are running for a variety of positions, from dormitory president to student body president. The election is a chance for students to have a say in the direction of the university, and many are excited to get involved.

Birth Control Clinic

The University of Washington has recently opened a birth control clinic on campus, providing students with access to a range of reproductive health services. The clinic is staffed by trained professionals and offers confidential counseling, contraceptive services, and referrals for medical care. The clinic is open to all students, regardless of age, income, or insurance status, and provides a safe and comfortable space for students to discuss their reproductive health concerns.

Marist's Future

The new president of Marist College, Sister Mary Beth Killeen, has outlined a vision for the future of the college, emphasizing the importance of providing a holistic education that prepares students for success in their careers and in life. The college is committed to maintaining its traditional values while embracing new technologies and approaches to teaching and learning. The new president has also emphasized the importance of fostering a sense of community and inclusivity on campus.

S.A.G.A.

The Student Association of Graduate and Professional Students (S.A.G.A.) is an organization that represents the interests of graduate and professional students at the University of Washington. The group advocates for increased funding for graduate and professional programs, improved benefits for graduate students, and increased representation in university decision-making processes. S.A.G.A. members are involved in a variety of activities, from organizing events to lobbying for policy changes.

From Peter Pless

To the Class of ’94,

I’d like to take this time to thank you for steering me and the Construction Office in the right direction. We’ve worked hard and we’ve made a lot of progress. I hope that those of you who are graduating this year know how grateful I am for your support and enthusiasm.

Suggestion Box

From Kathie Pugh

There is a suggestion box located in the University of Washington’s main campus, which is intended to provide students with a way to suggest improvements or changes to the university’s policies and services. The box is located in a prominent location on campus and is intended to be a place where students can express their thoughts and concerns.

Open Forum

The Circle Editors open forum is a space for students to discuss issues related to the university and their experiences as students. The forum is a place for students to share their thoughts and ideas, and to engage in meaningful discussions on a range of topics.

LEGAL ASS’T

In only 3 months, college graduates and other qualified persons trained and licensed to practice law in Washington State, Oregon, Idaho, or California can acquire a license to practice law in the State of Washington. The Legal Assistant Program, sponsored by the Washington State Bar Association, provides an opportunity for legal assistants to acquire the knowledge and skills necessary to practice law on a part-time or full-time basis.

Why Football?

The Marist fans did not have the feeling of defeat was like. The very first time in more than a year that the Village was the winning team. But did very truly enjoy the game. The fans were not too happy with the way the game was played. The team had a lot of potential, but they just did not have the spirit and fighting spirit that it had two years ago. The fans were very disappointed.

Faculty Member Will Publish Book

Robert D. Cooper, Lecturer in English at the College at Columbia University, has a new book coming out. The book is titled "Theories of Thought and Language," and is based on his work at the University of Pennsylvania. The book explores the nature of thought and language, and the relationship between them.

Play Review

"Everyman" by Stuart Grass

But Not Just Everyone...

... is a play written by students at the College at Columbia University, starring Bill Davis and directed by student Brian Davis and Richard Christo. The play is a modern adaptation of the medieval English morality play, "Everyman." The play explores themes of death, life, and the importance of living in the present.

demolition, or even organizational change. If the predictions are accurate, we are likely to see a lot more of this kind of protest. As we mentioned before, it is not clear that the "change" is the same as the "progress" that the organization is experiencing. In fact, it is quite possible that the "change" is actually a regression.

WOMAN’S THOUGHTS

There is a need for a woman’s thought in a society that is largely male-dominated. Women have been systematically deprived of education and opportunity, and this has had a profound effect on their thinking. It is important to recognize that women’s thought is not just about gender, but is also about power and control. Women need to be able to express their thoughts and ideas, and to have a say in the decision-making processes that affect their lives.

LEGAL ASSISTANT

The inadequacy of legal representation for individuals in the legal system is a serious problem. Legal assistants can help to fill this gap, and can provide a valuable service to those who cannot afford the services of a lawyer.

LETTERS

Legal assistants can help to fill this gap, and can provide a valuable service to those who cannot afford the services of a lawyer. Legal assistants can also help to increase access to justice, and to make the legal system more efficient and effective.
Faculty Member Will Publish Book

Robert D. Cooper, Professor in English at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been awarded a grant to publish his collection of poetry. This collection, titled Thoughts and Words, is a compilation of poems that explore the human experience and the nature of language.

Professor Cooper has also been awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to support the publication of his latest collection, Reflections in the Mirror. This collection is a collection of essays that explore the themes of love, loss, and redemption.

SUGGESTION FROM KATHIE PUGH

Kathie Pugh, a regular attendee of the library, suggests that they host a workshop on creative writing. She believes that this would be a great opportunity for students to explore their creativity and develop their writing skills.

SUGGESTION FROM RICHARD BRUMMITT

Richard Brummitt, a member of the faculty, suggests that they create a new exhibit on the history of music. He believes that this would be a great way to celebrate the department's rich history and attract more visitors to the museum.

FRESHMAN ELECTIONS

The freshmen class is in the process of electing their class officers. The election will take place next week, and all freshmen are encouraged to vote.

WAYS TO VOLUNTEER

The Student Volunteer Association is looking for volunteers to help with various events throughout the year. Volunteers are needed for events such as the annual fall festival and the spring concert.

Michael Peyton

Marist's Future

Michael Peyton, the new president of Marist College, has been instrumental in the college's recent growth and development. Under his leadership, Marist has expanded its programs and facilities, and has become one of the leading universities in the region.

SITUATIONS OF THE MIND

When I was young, not so old today. I am sure it must have been yesterday.

I am a dream of Portside, a little bit at a time.

Handbook of my name.

It is really true, then, that 'Sue is true!'

I've seen another day, another day; and other ways.

Anchored aspects are grown on height.

Joy and the old way like to be. Sustained is the need to be or for that matter right.

When you're being taken out of young,

Younger than tomorrow; more than tomorrow.

Cagers Coming a Long Way

By J. Ton Gareg

Every year has brought movement for the Red Foxes. The year of 1973 was perhaps the best year for the Red Foxes. It was brought because of the team's hard work and dedication to the game. The Red Foxes were able to win over a lot of games and break many records. This year, the Red Foxes are expected to continue their winning streak.

The booth on the sidestand was being used by a very elderly man who was reading a newspaper. The man had a very thin beard and was wearing a grey shirt. The man had a very gentle manner as he read the newspaper. I noted that he appeared to be enjoying the newspaper.

I turned to the next page and noticed a picture of a football team. The team was playing a game and seemed to be having a lot of fun.

I then turned to the last page of the newspaper and noticed a picture of a very happy man. The man was laughing and seemed to be having a great time.

I turned to the next page and noticed a picture of a very sad man. The man was crying and seemed to be in deep distress.

I then turned to the last page of the newspaper and noticed a picture of a very happy man. The man was laughing and seemed to be having a great time.

The feeling of Christmas in the air was strong. People were out shopping and decorating. The streets were adorned with lights and decorations. The decorations included wreaths, garlands, and ornaments. The trees were decorated with lights and ornaments. People were out enjoying the festivities and spending time with family and friends.

The mood in the air was celebratory. People were out enjoying the holiday season. The streets were filled with people and cars. The stores were open and filled with customers.

I turned to the next page and noticed a picture of a very happy man. The man was laughing and seemed to be having a great time.

SITUATIONS OF THE MIND

When I was young, I read a lot of books. I was curious about the world and always wanted to learn more. I loved reading and I spent a lot of time in the library, where I could immerse myself in the worlds of others. I read everything I could get my hands on, from classics to contemporary authors. I was particularly drawn to mysteries and thrillers, and I devoured them one after another. I loved the way the characters were portrayed and the suspense of the plot. I would stay up late at night, turning page after page, unable to put the book down until the very last word. It was as if I were a part of the story, experiencing the events as they unfolded. I was always on the edge of my seat, eagerly waiting to see what would happen next. I have fond memories of those days, and I still love to read as much as I did then. It is a wonderful way to escape reality and immerse oneself in another world.

“Breath Of Fresh Life”

by Brian Donnelly

The feeling of Christmas is in the air as we draw closer to the end of the year, and we look back on the past twelve months with a mix of emotions. Some days were filled with joy and happiness, while others were more challenging. But the Holiday season always brings a sense of hope and renewal, a time to connect with loved ones and create new memories.

This year, the CUB is proud to present the popular "Arthur, Hurley, & Godtelli" concert, featuring a fantastic range of Christmas tunes that are sure to get you into the festive spirit. With their unique blend of music, these talented performers will have you singing along and feeling the holiday cheer.

"Breath Of Fresh Life" is a beautiful ode to the spirit of Christmas, with its catchy melodies and heartwarming lyrics. It is a perfect way to kick off the holiday season, and we guarantee that you will not want to miss it.

Join us on Friday, December 8th at 8:30 p.m. (after the Christmas Party) at the CUB, where we will be hosting the Arthur, Hurley, & Godtelli concert. This is a fantastic opportunity to get into the holiday spirit and enjoy a night of music and merriment. So, mark your calendars and make sure to come out and see this incredible performance. We promise you won't be disappointed.

It's sure to be an unforgettable evening filled with Christmas cheer and musical magic! Don't miss your chance to experience the "Breath Of Fresh Life" and be lifted up by the joyous sounds of the season. See you there!

Monday Morning Quarterbacks

If ... if ... Call it speculation, Monday morning quarterbacking, or just plain second guessing, it is a sport that most spectators love to play, and one which allows every participant to be a winner.

Of course the perennial victim of these little exercises in self indulgence and athletic theory is the head coach of whatever team you happen to like that lost the game you thought they should win.

All coaches, however, have a way of defending the most critical of Monday morning quarterbacking. Winning stifles all criticism. The football coaching staff at Marist College should be nominated for the national championship of all Monday Morning Quarterback beaters. Over the past three years, the Marist staff has guided the Vikings to a 22-5-1 overall record including two undefeated, untied regular seasons, and a 1-2 mark in post-season competition.

What moves a coaching staff that has the effectiveness that the Marist record is indicative of? According to Marist’s head football coach Ron Levine, it is hard work, a willingness to try new concepts, and a constant effort to make every player produce to the best of his ability. At least that is what I look from a recent conversation with the Marist coach wherein he elaborated on some of the events and decisions that made the Marist Football Club a winning one for the fourth consecutive year.

This year was a year of change for the Vikings. Levine stated that the big push for a coach comes in the first three weeks of the season. The opening games on the Marist schedule this fall made that opening period more crucial than ever with opponents being Manhattan, Westchester Community College and Providence College. Because of the tough opening schedule, the coaching staff, according to Levine was primarily concerned with developing maximum efficiency from the new players who were mastering the positions of responsibility. Levine characterized the decision to switch new personnel as a wise one and went on to state that the new personnel consisted not only of new people new to the Viking uniform such as Ed Bennett, Tony Johnson and Bill Vincent, but that Mike Lewis, Ken Vitale and Paul Viali fell into the category of new personnel because they had changed positions. (Viali was moved from tight end to offensive line with fellow co-captain Ken Vitale who moved from halfback to fullback. Lewis was moved from offensive guard to center where he did an excellent job of replacing Emmett Cooke, who had started every game since the fall of 1968.)

Levine fingered two key reasons for the excellent record posted by the Vikings this year. First of all, Levine pointed out, the players did an excellent job of picking up the slack when a player was injured. Specific examples of this were seen when Ron Vuy and Don Capillo came on at various times to fill in for the injured receivers, especially Mike Cunliffe and Fred Krappe.

Perhaps the most important facet of the success enjoyed this year was the rapid maturation of the players, as individuals and as a team. Looking back, Levine commented that periods of roughness were short and that the bad days were always followed by several profitable practices which erased the effects of the poorer days.

In a final note, Levine felt that the “game of the year” for the players was not the Westchester contest, but rather the last game, perhaps because the Gaels are the only team on the regular season schedule to have beaten the Vikings in three seasons.

Severely hurt by the passing of quarterback Joe D’Angiolillo, who connected on 10 of 14 passes including three for touchdowns, Marist College’s previously undefeated club, football team dropped a 20-18 decision to Seton Hall University in the National Invitation Bowl played two weeks ago at Fordham University’s Jack Cooney Field.

The Vikings made the score close, and came very close to pulling it out of the fire in the fourth quarter when Sheldon Davis picked up a blocked Seton Hall punt and ran it into the end zone. Minutes later, the Vikings got the ball back and quarterback Ed Bennett drove the team to a score pasting three yards to Tim Murphy on a fourth and goal situation. The Vikings were unable to convert the two extra points, however, and, with only 9 seconds remaining in the game, the Pirates ran out the clock to take the national club football championship home to the South Orange, New Jersey campus.

Don Faison, Marist’s senior defensive safety, was named the most valuable defensive player of the game by the corps of sportswriters present. Early in the game, Faison broke through the line on a punt coverage sensed the ball fake, picked the ball off the toe of the stunned kicked and raced 60 yards to put Marist on the scoreboard for the first time in the game. Combined with his overall performance throughout the afternoon, including the coralling of Jerry Alexander, Seton Hall’squick receiver, the kick stam made Faison the recipient of the solid bronze plaque presented by the National Club Sports Association, sponsors of the game.

One week earlier, Faison was named the most valuable player for Marist as the Vikings was the Eastern Collegiate Club Football Conference champion by dethronng the University of Hartford, ECFC Colonial Division champs, 38-7. The Vikings came into the game representing the Metropolitan Division of the ECFC.

Faison won the ECFC award by intercepting three passes in the game, one of which he returned 48 yards for a score, only to have the score nullified by a clipping penalty upholded.

Marist broke the game open early, taking a 20-0 lead into the locker room at halftime on runs by Murray Milligan and quarter back Bennett and a spectacular 19 pass play between Bennett and receiver Fred Krappe as the half ran out.

In the second half, Mike Eres grabbed an errant Hartford pass and returned it all the way for a 26-0 Marist lead. The final Vikings tally came on a 16 yard pass from Bennett to receiver Don Capillo. The lone Hartford TD came on a 27 yard option pass from Massie to the all-league and Ed Mcguiness.

It’s All Over

By Jim Keegan

On Saturday November 4, the Marist College Gridiron team played a unusual game, which perhaps typified a most unpredictable season. I don’t know how I can begin to describe the 1972 soccer season, but I feel that what took place against the Newark State on a cold afternoon exemplifies the frustration of a group of men who could not reach their true potential. There were times during the season when the Red Foxes appeared to be so close to achieving the success that no other soccer team at Marist had ever attained. Against Newark State, the Red Foxes had what appeared to be an apparent victory, but the Red Foxes were too late to slip from within their grasp.

The Red Foxes outdistanced Newark 2-1, and were winning at half time 3-0. For the first half, they outplayed and outheld a highly-talented Newark team that was ranked higher, much more superior. The second half began and ended with two goals that reminded one of a long and extremely painful nightmare. Marist could not put it together and seemed to watch...
