UYA Approved At Marist

By Katherine Finneghan

ACTION, the federal agency in Washington for voluntary services, has accepted the latest proposal from the Marist College task force. Marist has been awarded a planning grant of $5,396 to establish a University Year for Action program (UYA). The grant will enable Mal Michelson, director of the program here and advisors to draft a UYA program allowing about 30 Marist students to work with the Poughkeepsie community to help respond to the needs of the local area. The proposal has been submitted and rejected on the basis of its fiscal merits. The emphasis has been placed on the financial need in this area. ACTION demanded that applicants prove that their program is directly linked to the city's needs. Consequently, the focus has been shifted and the areas of concern are now more acceptable to the organization.

Boycott Of Lettuce Continues

By Tom Page

The United Farm Workers Union brought their boycott of lettuce and grapes to the Poughkeepsie area last week. Picket lines were organized at the Shoprite supermarket on Rt. 64, and this is hoped to be continued until Thanksgiving. However, there are efforts being made at this college and at other colleges in the area to expand the boycott. Here at Marist, the cafeteria and Radishkeller are run by Saga Food Service, Jim Ladota, manager of Saga Foods here, stated that there is no company policy concerning the type of lettuce they use by the individual schools. "There is no standard which every manager must follow." He also added that the price of lettuce on the market fluctuates from day to day. This semester has seen a variation in price from $1.00 a crate to $4.00 a crate. The price is mainly determined by the availability of the lettuce. However, there are two types of lettuce which can be purchased. The U.P.W. and the Teamsters both produce similar lettuce, and both are in a three-week struggle at the present time. The Teamsters are a very large union and therefore, we're able to make them reasonable by withdrawing whereas U.P.W. lettuce can sometimes be hard to get.

The end of the first semester is rapidly approaching and with it some of the usual security problems such as cars left on campus, expensive articles stolen from rooms, and lack of help for Security. The Security office requests the following from the Community: If you have a car on campus and have to leave it over the next month, please contact the Security office and find out where to leave the car. All cars that are left on campus and Security has not been notified about them, will be towed away. In the past years, and the security driver will have to pay a towing and storage bill before getting it back. In the future, there will be strict control over the area, it will facilitate new facilities and the U.P.W. will help protect them from vandalism. It is also important for Security to know the owners so that the owner can be notified of something should happen to the car. It is requested also that all important and expensive personal articles be removed from the rooms during the vacation. Last year there were some rooms broken into and all equipment, radios, and stereo sets were stolen. Please take it with you if you have it put in storage.

Anyone wishing to write for Security during the vacation period or winter semester, please come to the Security office and pick up an application. This should be done as soon as possible.

The proposal that was submitted and accepted includes some background data and plans for the program but leaves the concept of the program behind it and the intentions that motivated its creation. Broadly, the proposal is for the UYA program's involvement in U.S. areas which have been described as "disadvantaged". This involvement is in areas which are considered students with an opportunity to both learn and share their skills and knowledge with disadvantaged people in the Poughkeepsie area.

The proposal is an alternative to traditional service programs. It is hoped that the proposal will be accepted by the College and the local area.}

Area fire fighters work hard to put out yesterday's blaze in the vicinity of the Marist College campus.
Why Didn't You Vote?

By Paul Callahy

"I voted," you're probably thinking to yourself as you read this. "How can I not have voted? I'm a responsible citizen." But even if you did vote, chances are you didn't vote for the candidates I wanted. So what gave you the right to decide who I vote for?" This is a question that many American voters ask themselves, and it's one that deserves to be answered.

There are several reasons why citizens choose not to vote. Some may feel that the candidates are not representative of their views or that the political system itself is broken. Others may simply be complacent and believe that their vote doesn't matter. Whatever the reason, the fact remains that many people do not vote. This is a problem because it leads to a lack of representation in government and a lack of accountability to the people.

One way to address this issue is to make voting more convenient. For example, many communities offer early voting and mail-in ballots, which can make it easier for busy people to cast their vote. In addition, targeting younger voters with innovative campaigns can help increase voter turnout.

In conclusion, it is important for all citizens to participate in the democratic process by casting their votes. Whether you agree with the candidates or not, your vote is your voice and it should be heard. Don't let anyone tell you that your vote doesn't matter. It does. Make sure you cast it this year.

Bureau Looks at Consumer Frauds

By Greg Curry

One major part of the Bureau of Consumer Affairs is to protect consumers from fraud. The Bureau of Consumer Affairs is a government agency that investigates and prosecutes consumer complaints in the state of New York. The Bureau's mission is to ensure that consumers are protected from fraudulent practices.

Consumer fraud occurs when a consumer is deceived into paying for a product or service that is not as advertised. This can happen in a variety of ways, such as through false advertising or through unsolicited phone calls.

The Bureau of Consumer Affairs investigates complaints from consumers and works to resolve them. If a business is found to have violated consumer protection laws, the Bureau can take legal action against the business.

Consumer fraud is a serious issue that can have a significant impact on consumers. It is important for consumers to be aware of the signs of consumer fraud and to report any instances of fraud they encounter to the Bureau of Consumer Affairs.

Opportunities Available for Financial Aid

By Maryann McQuade

There are numerous opportunities available for students to finance their education. The federal government and many states offer scholarships, grants, and student loans to help students pay for college. In addition, many private organizations offer scholarships and grants to students.

The federal government offers several programs to help students pay for college. The Pell Grant is a need-based grant that helps low-income students pay for college. The Federal Pell Grant is awarded to eligible students based on their financial need. The Federal Pell Grant can be used to pay for tuition, fees, books, and other education expenses.

In addition to federal aid, many states offer their own scholarship and grant programs. These programs are designed to help students from within the state pay for college. Students should check with their state's Department of Education to learn about the scholarships and grants available in their state.

There are also numerous private scholarships and grants available to students. These scholarships are offered by a variety of organizations, including businesses, foundations, and academic institutions. Students should research these opportunities to see if they qualify for any scholarships or grants.

In conclusion, there are many opportunities available for financial aid. Students should take advantage of these opportunities to finance their education and achieve their academic goals.

Newark, Here We Come

By Joanne Caligari

The students of Newark High School were looking forward to the end of their junior year. The class of 2003 was planning on participating in a class trip to New York City. The students were excited to explore the city and experience all that it had to offer.

The trip was scheduled for the last week of May. The students were due to depart on Friday, May 30th, and return on Saturday, June 7th. The itinerary included visits to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Empire State Building, and the Statue of Liberty.

The students had raised money throughout the year to pay for the trip. They had also recruited chaperones to accompany them on the trip.

The trip was highly anticipated by the students. Many of them had never been to New York City before, and they were excited to see the sights and experience the culture.

In conclusion, the Newark High School class of 2003 was looking forward to their trip to New York City. The students were excited to explore the city and make memories that would last a lifetime.
Bureau Looks At Consumer Frauds

By Gregory Carville

One cannot part of the State Attorney General's Office is that consumer frauds are rampant in the state. The bureau has launched an investigation into the effectiveness of consumer frauds and is seeking to bring the criminals to justice.

The bureau's investigation has revealed that many consumers are being victimized by frauds such as telemarketing, door-to-door sales, and mail-order schemes. The bureau has also uncovered cases of false advertising and misrepresentation.

The bureau's findings have led to the arrest of several individuals and the seizure of large amounts of fraudulent goods.

Opportunities Available for Financial Aid

By Maryanne McGraw

There are several opportunities available for students who are interested in obtaining financial aid for college education. These opportunities include scholarships, grants, and loans.

Scholarships are available from a variety of sources, including the federal government, state governments, and private organizations. Some scholarships are based on merit, while others are based on need.

Grants are also available from the federal government and state governments. These grants do not have to be repaid and are often used to help pay for tuition and living expenses.

Loans are available from the federal government and private lenders. These loans do not have to be repaid if certain conditions are met.

Students are encouraged to research these opportunities and apply for them as soon as possible.

Guest Policy Adopted

By Maryanne McGraw

Discussions in Champlain Dormitory about the adoption of a new 'guest policy' were held recently. The new policy was made due to complaints of寝室mates who were disturbed by the noise made by guests who were on campus.

One student, a member of the Champlain Dorm Committee, said that the new policy would be fair to all students involved.

The new policy states that guests may only stay for a maximum of two days in a week and that they must be signed in to the dorm by a resident advisor. This policy will be enforced by the dorm committee.

Student Payroll Information

Time sheets are due in the Financial Aid Office on Friday, November 17 for the period ending on November 13. Checks will be ready by noon on November 18.

There are approximately 25 students who work in the dormitory and the Financial Aid Office, and their earnings have been established in order to meet the financial aid requirements for each student. Each student will be paid a weekly wage.

The Financial Aid Office will keep a record of each student's earnings and will provide a wage statement to each student at the end of each semester.

Newark, Here We Come

By Joanne Calabrese

The students of the Newark High School are looking forward to their first exhibition of the school year, which will take place on Saturday, November 18. The exhibition is expected to feature a variety of projects and artwork created by the students.

The exhibition will be open to the public and is expected to attract a large crowd.

CIA at Miami

By Carolyn Boyd

At the beginning of this semester, the CIA at Miami held its first meeting. The students are excited to be a part of the CIA and are working hard to make it a success.

The CIA at Miami is an organization that promotes the CIA and its mission. It is open to all students who are interested in the CIA.

The CIA at Miami meets once a week and is attended by a small group of students.

The CIA at Miami is planning a variety of events and activities for the semester, including a CIA-themed party and a CIA-themed movie night.

Why Didn't You Vote?

By Paul Callery

"I didn't vote," said John Smith, a senior at Newark High School. "I just didn't feel like it." When asked why, he replied, "I just didn't see the point."

"I didn't vote," said Jane Doe, a junior at French High School. "I thought it was a waste of time." When asked why, she replied, "I just didn't have the time."

Class Consciousness At Marist

By Harold D. Sander

The current military strategy, as advocated by Mr. Nixon's aide, is that of "selective deterrence," which aims to make targets of those who would be in the way of a nuclear strike. However, the United States has not been able to develop a system of selective deterrence because of the fear that it would lead to a nuclear war.

The middle class is becoming increasingly aware of the dangers of nuclear war and is demanding a change in government policy. The middle class is the backbone of the American political system, and it is critical that their voices be heard. The middle class is also becoming more concerned about the environment and the impact of nuclear war on the planet.

The middle class is demanding a change in government policy to address the issues of nuclear war and the environment. The middle class is an important group of people, and their voices must be heard in the political process.

AV-TV Rebuttal

To the Editor: We are students at the University of Virginia, and we are writing to express our strong opposition to the recent decision by the Student Council and the Board of Visitors to approve the installation of AV-TV in the dormitories.

This decision was made without considering the concerns and opinions of students, and we believe that it is a violation of our rights as university students. A review of the AV-TV proposal reveals that it is not beneficial to the majority of students, as the majority oppose the installation of AV-TV in their dormitories.

We believe that the installation of AV-TV in the dormitories is a violation of our privacy and freedom of expression. The AV-TV system allows for constant monitoring of student activities, and we believe that this is an invasion of our privacy.

We urge the administration to reconsider this decision and to take into account the concerns and opinions of students before making any further decisions.

Sincerely, Students of the University of Virginia

Meat Scarcity

By Chris Locke

I was interested to read an article about meat scarcity that I saw in the newspaper recently. The article stated that there is a global shortage of meat due to a combination of factors, including climate change and overfishing. I was surprised to learn that this scarcity is having a significant impact on the availability and cost of meat in the United States.

I think that this is a problem that we need to address as a society. We should be working to reduce our impact on the environment, and we should be supporting sustainable farming practices.

I hope that the government will take action to address this issue, and I urge people to make changes in their own lives to help reduce their impact on the environment.

Disabilities Seen At Smith Street

By Mary Kelly

I was recently in the Smith Street area and I noticed a number of people with disabilities. I found this to be quite concerning, as it suggests that there may be issues with accessibility in that area.

I think that there are a few things that could be done to address this issue. First, there should be more accessible public transportation options. Second, there should be more accessible facilities in the area, such as stores and restaurants.

I hope that the city will take action to address this issue and that people will be more aware of the importance of accessibility.

Comments On The Law

By Carrie White

In my opinion, the current laws regarding immigration are unjust and need reform. I believe that everyone should have the right to live in this country, regardless of their national origin.

I think that we should be working to create a more fair and just system. This could include providing more resources for refugees and undocumented immigrants, as well as providing a path to citizenship for those who are here illegally.

I hope that the government will take action to address this issue and that we can create a more fair and just system.

Class Consciousness At Marist

By Raymond E. Green

We recently attended a conference on class consciousness at Marist College, and we were struck by the number of discussions that centered around the idea that there is a growing class divide in the United States.

We think that this is a problem that needs to be addressed. We believe that we should be working to create a more equal society, and we should be supporting policies that help to reduce income inequality.

I hope that the government will take action to address this issue and that we can create a more equal society.

Middle States Review

Earlier this week, the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools held a conference on higher education. During their trip to Marist, the evaluation team was presented with a detailed report that highlighted the strengths and weaknesses of the university.

We were impressed by the overall quality of the institution, but we also noted that there are some areas that need improvement. We think that the university should take these recommendations to heart and work to address the areas that need improvement.

I hope that the administration will take action to address the recommendations and that the university can continue to improve.

Mourning Becomes Electra

By Joanna Caligari

On December 19th, the Martha Graham Dance Company will present "Mourning Becomes Electra," which is a modern riposte to the ancient Greek tragedy of Electra. Directed and choreographed by Martha Graham, the production is a deeply moving and theatrical exploration of the dynamics at work in a family yearning for closure and resolution of their internal conflicts.

The story of "Mourning Becomes Electra" takes place in post-war New England, as Martha Graham’s choreography and staging bring to life this American Electra, exploring themes of grief, guilt, and the intricate family dynamics at play.

New Non-Smoking Policy Instituted

By James M. Barks

"Smoke, smoke, smoke until you glow a bright red," goes the old joke. But as the number of hospitals and businesses that are now instituting non-smoking policies grows, it is clear that we are in the midst of a serious shift in attitudes toward smoking.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has recently released its report on the health effects of smoking, which has caused many people to re-evaluate their smoking habits. The report states that smoking is responsible for over one million deaths each year, and that smoking is the leading cause of preventable death in the United States.

As a result of this report, many hospitals and businesses are now instituting non-smoking policies. The new policy at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, for example, states that smoking is not permitted in any part of the hospital, including patient rooms.

Athletics Face Bleak Future

By Kevin O’Connor

What is the future of the Marist College athletic teams? Will the athletic program suffer as a result of the financial struggles? Marist College has been experiencing financial difficulties in recent years, and this has had a direct impact on the athletic program.

Marist has had a very lean budget in recent years, leading to a reduction in the number of sports offered. The school has been unable to fund the necessary equipment and facilities for some of the sports, and this has resulted in a decrease in the number of athletes participating.

However, despite these challenges, there are some positive developments. The Athletic Department has been able to secure additional funding from various sources, and this has helped to offset some of the budget cuts. Additionally, there has been an increase in the number of students who are interested in participating in athletic programs.

It is clear that the future of the Marist College athletic teams is uncertain. However, with the continued support of the Marist community and the efforts of the Athletic Department, it is possible that the program can continue to thrive in the years to come.

Solidarity Day at Greenhaven

Topics: View On Health

By Curtis White

The body contains three basic "substances". The proper use of these substances is critical to maintaining good health. However, the way these substances are used can vary. For example, some people may use substances in a way that is harmful to their health.

In recent years, there has been a growing awareness of the dangers of substance abuse. This awareness has led to a decrease in the use of substances, which is a positive development.

However, there are still many people who use substances in a harmful way. This is a significant problem, and it is important that we work to address it.

Vikings Look To Westchester

By Jim Donnelly

The Marist College basketball team is facing a crucial game with a 14-20 record against the University of Pennsylvania. The game will be played in the Palestra on Saturday at 7 p.m. The team has not won in the Palestra since 1973. Marist is trying to break the team's losing streak against Penn. The game is important for both teams as both are on the verge of falling out of the top 25 rankings.

The defense looked rather revitalized this week. Sleepy tackling aided the Marist defense and prevented the Penn offense from scoring. The defense will need a much better effort this week.

The offense is being looked at too with a tough defense and a strong team. The offense has been scoring for a tough battle in the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) this season. Marist faces a tough Westchester defense, which will be the deciding factor in the game.

The offense has been clicking, despite the defense. The running attack has finally come around to the offense. The offensive line has been playing well, allowing the running backs to score.

The defense is Solid, the team is winning. The offense is catching up. The team is on the right track. The defense is solid, and the offense is catching up.

Booters Look To Next Year

By Jim Donnelly

The Marist College booters ended their season with a nail-biting game against the ArmyCadets. The Marist booters have not won a game in over 10 years.

Donnelly, 21, the Marist booters' coach, is known for his fiery temperament and his ability to lead his team to victory. He has been coaching the booters for the past 10 years, and his record is 40-55.

His team's performance in this game was disappointing, as they were unable to score a single point. However, Donnelly is not discouraged and is already looking forward to next year's season.

The booters' offensive line was unable to score, and the defense was unable to prevent the ArmyCadets from scoring. Donnelly is confident that next year's team will be better and will be able to win a game.

Perspective: Coach Stevens

“Always try to be available to help any of the boys with any problem—scholastic, athletic, or personal.”

This is just one of the many things that make Rich Stevens the coach he is. His cross-country team has shown up for practices and meets before, during, and after all seasons. Rich Stevens works with his way people.

“Have my players watched the Marist Booters?”

Rich Stevens is a resident of the Poughkeepsie area, graduated from the Marist College in 1974, and then attended the State University of New York at New Paltz. He is married and has two children.

“Never underestimate the power of personal relationships.”

An experienced booter must have a good relationship with his coach. The booter must trust and respect his coach, and the coach must trust and respect the booter.

“Nothing is more important than the relationship between coach and booter.”

The most important aspect of the relationship between coach and booter is the trust and respect.

High On Sports

The Marist rowing team will be competing in the New York State Invitational regatta on November 13th. The team will be racing against some of the top teams in the country and is expected to perform well.

The team has been practicing hard and is looking forward to the competition. The team is confident that they will perform well and bring home some silverware.

The team consists of a mix of experienced and novice rowers. The team is led by head coach John Smith, who has been coaching the team for over 10 years.

The team has three main goals for the season: to win the regatta, to improve their times, and to build team camaraderie.
