Restructuring Begins

by John Reilly

The entire Student Government is being restructured. This restructuring should be finished by April. CUB elections will be held at that time.

The new Student Government is seen as being too complex and confusing. So for next year there will be no Student Government. Instead there will be a Student Body President, and a Council of student leaders. This Council will be composed of representatives of the CUB, S&C, Commuter Union and the Inter House Council.

The main problem in the structure has been to handle the new budget. To deal with this matter there may be a Budget Committee which would consist of members from the groups on the council and a controller. The controller will either be elected or appointed. The controller’s job will be to monitor how students’ money is spent.

Another problem is what to do about the different clubs on campus. Cathy Jones said that the clubs—may be incorporated into the CUB. However, she would not like this to happen because she doesn’t want the CUB to become Student Government. The President of the Student Body would receive $600 a year for his services. His role will primarily be that of an ombudsman: he will be there to bring attention to problems that exist on campus. How well the new structure works will depend on the President of the Student Body.

Any students interested in seeking offices should contact CUB President Kathy Manning or Student Government President Brian Morris. CUB elections will probably be held in April. If possible the elections for President of the Student Body will also be held at that time.

Department Offers Course

by Tommy Kelly

This semester the Psychology department is offering a course entitled Community Psychology and the format of the course differs from most courses. The semester is divided into three sections:

1st 5 weeks - readings and lecture
2nd 5 weeks - visits to agencies serving Dutchess County
3rd 5 weeks - reports in class on the visits

Dr. Christine Mclean teaches the course and is assisted by two graduate students, Martin Jurich and Mike Anderson. The class has been divided three ways for making visits, with each of the three heading a group.

One of the ideas evident in the course is that the needs are not being met of certain groups in society. (Other people, handicapped, people, elderly, poor people, etc). Since these groups have been part of society for a long time, it is not easily linked. To offer people who have needs services cannot receive them. In the class transportation is a problem, especially with regard to the elderly, or too often the people who could benefit the most from a service are not made fully aware of the simple facts that they could receive help. Too often we “blame the victim.” This year, it is the title of one of the courses text books) when we should be casting the blame on the agencies which cater to upper class people and, while not always intentionally, neglect lower class people.

In making visits to hospitals, clinics, or children’s homes the students try to find out that agencies serving where the recipients of the service come from, and what feelings the administrator has about his agency. Dr. Mclean visited the Highland Training Center for Children, it was pointed out that the children were regarded as one of the best in the state for private schools, but the state is also certain groups which cannot benefit from the programs or services. After the damage was done, the state had no power to change it. It was pointed out that it was only a matter of time.

The biggest shame is that people suffer harm, like the children at these schools, and are likely to drift away from school and into trouble. As a student at Marist, a course of this nature would offer him or her field work to go along with what is studied in the classroom. One course certainty, but it will help the student who graduates into that world.
Letters To The Editors

Suggestions

To the Editors:

In the March 19, 1975 edition of the Circle, an article appeared concerning the Mountain, Bond, and Westmoreland single-family home buyers. The article stated that the majority of home buyers are either not aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem. It further stated that the majority of home buyers are not aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem even though they have been living in their homes for many years.

I would like to suggest that the article was misleading. The article stated that the majority of home buyers are not aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem, when in fact, many of these buyers are aware of the problem. The article also stated that the majority of home buyers are not aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem because they have been living in their homes for many years. This is not true. Many of these buyers have been living in their homes for many years and are aware of the problem.

I would like to suggest that the article be revised to reflect the facts. It should state that the majority of home buyers are aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem. It should also state that the majority of home buyers are aware of the fact that they are facing a single-family home buyer problem even though they have been living in their homes for many years.

Bicentennial

To the Editors:

From reading Dorothy Ogden's article on Mountain's bicentennial celebration, I found myself wondering about the role of the Art Department in the celebration. I think it's interesting that the Art Department would take on such an important role in the celebration. It seems to me that the Art Department has a unique perspective to bring to the celebration, and I think it's fitting that they would be involved.

I also think it's interesting that the Art Department would be responsible for creating the bicentennial exhibit. I think it's a great idea to have the Art Department involved in the bicentennial celebration. It would be a great way to bring the community together and celebrate our heritage.

The Editors:

In the March 14, 1975 edition of the Circle, an article appeared concerning the Music, Drama and Art Department. The title of the article was "In Defense of the Music, Drama and Art Department." I would like to express my opposition to the claims made in this article.

The article states that the Music, Drama and Art Department is not fulfilling its responsibilities. It claims that the department is not providing adequate opportunities for students to develop their talents and interests. However, I have observed that the department is doing an excellent job of fostering creativity and providing opportunities for students to explore their passions.

In my opinion, the department is fulfilling its responsibilities and is providing a valuable service to the students. I believe that the department should be supported and encouraged to continue its work.

Sincerely,

I've got myself into a real paradox about black humor. I was writing a story and suddenly realized that what I was trying to say was not only funny, but also profound. I was faced with a dilemma: should I keep the humor or take it out? I was torn between my desire for self-expression and my concern about principles of decorum.

In the end, I decided to keep the humor. I believe that humor can be a powerful tool for communicating complex ideas and confronting difficult issues. In my story, I used black humor to make a point about the absurdity of certain social and political phenomena.

The reaction to the story was mixed. Some people found it offensive and offensive to others, it was taken as a statement on the state of affairs. The debate about the impact of humor continues to this day.

Organization Convenes

A weekend-long event is set to convene in the city. National Organization for Women (NOW) is to host a Task Force on Race, Sex, and Gender. The event aims to bring together activists from diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds to address issues of discrimination and inequality.

One of the immediate goals is to draft a resolution that will be presented to the national NOW convention. The resolution will call for the federal government to create a Department of Equality and Human Rights, which would work towards the equal protection of all citizens regardless of their race, sex, or gender.

Schedule Planned

For Women's Day

A series of events is planned for Women's Day. The events include a concert, a rooftop party, and a women's rights march. The concert will feature performances by up-and-coming artists, while the rooftop party will offer a unique perspective on the city's skyline.

The women's rights march will take place in the morning, with speakers and activists from various organizations discussing the issues facing women today. The event aims to raise awareness and promote activism in support of women's rights.

Ring Ceremony To Be Held

By Rhoda Crispell

The Junior Class Ring Ceremony will be held on Palm Sunday, March 31, 1975 at 1:00 in the theatre.

Fred Lambert, Director of Campus Life, will give the address at the ceremony. Rings will be presented by Dean Richard LaPietra. Other participants will include the Rev. Leo Galli and the Rev. Rhy Williams. Dean Wade will be the Master of Ceremonies and John Sullivan will provide the music.

According to Junior Class President, Rich Dinneen, a cocktail party will be held on Friday, March 31, 1975 for students receiving rings. On Palm Sunday there will be a mass at 11:15 in the chapel for ring recipients and their guests who arrive early. Following the ceremony a Hot Buffet will be served in the New Dining Room.

This year Juniors, Seniors, and former Marist graduates bought 156 rings. Out of an approximate 200 Juniors close to 150 of them bought rings. Rich Dinneen thought less rings were sold than usual because of the rising costs of rings. The price of rings range from $28.11 for the cheapest woman's ring to $100.00 for the most expensive man's ring.

Requirements for purchasing a class ring are that the student must be matriculated for a degree at Marist and he must have earned 90 credits as of September 1974. The student must also have at least a 2.6 index. The companies that sold rings were Balfour, and Dieges and Clust. The student representatives for Balfour were Fred Ashley, Kevin Blas, and Jack Schofield. Representatives for Dieges and Clust were Rich Dinneen, Mary Ellen Fletcher, and Jim Ventola.

Sailing Gains Needed Experience

The Marist College Sailing Team works over this past vacation. On the weekend of March 8-9, skippers Tom Frey and Paul Batsonh and crew members Charlie Bergold and Pat Husman battled for a fifth place despite poor weather conditions at the Varsity Elms held at West Point. Marist finished only 9 point behind the fourth place team.

The following week, the same skippers and crew took sixth place in a field of twelve schools in a regatta held at Kingston Point. Three schools in the regatta were nationally ranked and Marist was edged out of fifth place by one point by the University of Delaware, again sailing in very heavy weather and high seas. The Marist sailors did very well and gained much more sailing experience for future competition.

High On Sports

By Thomas McTeernan

The official arrival of spring tomorrow will set the stage for the 1975 spring sports season here at Marist, with thelacrosse, tennis, sailing, cricket, and track teams all ready for competition. Next week the CIRCLE will present previews of several of the teams along with comments by the respective coaches Don't miss it.

NOTES FROM THE SPORTS DESK

I hate bringing up basketball at this time of the year, but the final Central Atlantic College Conference statistics were released last week and I thought that it would be good to know that Mike Hart and Earl Holmes both placed near the top in two categories. Hart finished third in scoring (15.3), and first in field goal percentage (.459) in league play. Holmes was next in scoring with 18.4 ppg, and second in rebounds with an average of 12.0. - CACC All-Star team will be announced shortly... Besides setting school scoring record, Hart also holds career records for points and rebounds...
