Students To Survey Campus Life

Students in the Community Psychology class, under the mentorship of Dr. Nelson, are planning a field survey that will attempt to assess various attributes of dorm life at Marist. This survey is the applied part of the course which involves the second half of the semester. The first half of the course dealt with the theoretical groundwork out of which this survey has grown.

The questionnaire that will be used is a standardized test entitled the University Residence Environment Scale. In addition to the URES, the students have devised a brief open-ended questionnaire asking students to comment on other areas of campus life.

The survey conducted by the students will utilize an unusually large sample of 20-25 percent in an effort to assess more accurately dorm living conditions. Consequently, if through the process of random selection, you are chosen to assist in this survey, the students would appreciate your sincere effort in completing the question items. Data analysis and interpretation will be conducted by the students and forwarded to the campus community in future Circle articles. A formal presentation will also be given to all interested administrative personnel and all interested students with the classes' suggestions of initiating possible changes. Future information will also be provided through periodic announcements on WMCH, Marist College Radio.

Library to Feature "Tattle Tape"

By Claudia Butler

The new Library in Fontaine will be equipped with the 3M "Tattle Tape" security system. This system, the most widely used in the country, will cost approximately $18,000 to install. The "system will pay for itself in three months," said Joseph Schaefer, assistant director of learning resources.

Although the system will reduce the casual theft of books it may present another problem. "In the past, if a person took a book without notifying us, the library has an estimated $2,000 to $3,000 worth of books stolen every year," said Vincent Toccacino.

"The books will be treated in such a way that if a person leaves the library without having checked out the book, an alarm will go off," explained the Director of Learning Resources.

The system will be put into place by the end of the year.

in one of the toughest meets of the fall rowing schedule, the varsity shipofters placed 10th of 46 teams in the "Head of the Charles" regatta regularly draw over 50,000 spectators in Boston. Vesper, with several members of the U.S. National team, won the race and the Boston Gunners, in their first appearance, won the Peabody Regatta trophy for overall supremacy in the regatta.

The head rowers in the event were turned out in the morning of Saturday, November 18, in the Charles River Basin. The Viking boat, which had the best time of the heat, consisted of the following rowers:

"We know they were over-powered, a bit stronger, our sculling report," said head coach Ron Lavin.

"I think our rowers were prepared for the competition," he said.

The Vikings will enter Oswego State on the lake in the future and could lose to the Wolfpack in the future.

During the previous Saturday's win over York, the varsity rowers have never won a single season, topping the 8 record in 1994.

"We were very well in the first 700 meters, then fell again," said Goldsmith. "I think the 2nd half was very good and they went properly in the first half and they were just tired."
