Unbinding housing agreement replaced

By David Potter

The Marist College Residential Objective, designed to replace the present housing contract in an attempt to make Marist’s housing agreement legally binding, is unnecessary, according to Attorney Jerald Hankin.

The present housing agreement is not legally binding because its terms are not specific enough, and in some cases, unenforceable, said Chris Falle, chairman of the Residence Evaluation Committee responsible for drafting a Residential Objective, a general statement of principles.

The Residential Objective is to be used in conjunction with the student handbook to replace the present housing agreement, said Falle.

New York State’s code for schools, colleges, and universities, article 160.5 states a school must have rules and regulations for the maintenance of the campus and residence halls and other college property and provide a program for the enforcement thereof.” In addition, “penalties for violations of such rules and regulations must be clearly set forth therein and must include provisions for the cessation of a violation from such campus and property and, in the case of a student or faculty member, his suspension, expulsion or other appropriate disciplinary action,” in order for a housing agreement to be legally binding.

Hankin said the signing of the current Marist 50 administrative regulations by students was unnecessary because students would be legally bound under the rules and regulations, specifying, providing they were not derogatory, found in the student handbook upon entering the school. Associate of Hankin’s said the statement of principles was “a piece of toilet paper.”

Hankin said the manipulation of the 50 regulations in order to be rewritten by an ad hoc committee consisting of three faculty members, three undergraduate council members, three student government members, two administrative assistant, a residence director, according to Fred Lambert, assistant dean of students.

The statement of principles was approved by Champagnat, Leo and Sloanan Halls, but received objections from Gregory House, said Falle. Gregory House believed specific housing regulations should determine the general principles, which was contrary to the SRC’s method. Gregory also objected to the procedure used to pass the statement in Leo and Champagnat Halls. The statement of principles was presented to the Leo and Champagnat House Councils, but not to the student government body in the two dorms. Falle said he did not show the general statement of principles to the Leo and Champagnat Hall student bodies because “that is what leaders are for, to give direction to the people they represent.”

More NYS tuition assistance

By Beth Weaver

Students can receive more money from the state next semester if Governor Hugh Carey’s proposal to increase tuition assistance is passed by the legislature. According to Governor Carey, those in the system would raise the maximum tuition awards to $1,000. He also said “as of last Thursday we received assurance that Carey’s $1,000 increase would go through.”

Assemblyman Melvin Miller, of Brooklyn, also has proposed an increase in TAP awards, but recommends a gradual and proportional increase. Kelly explained under Miller’s plan students receiving TAP awards would receive a smaller percentage of the increase. According to Gerald Kelly, director of financial aid, Carey’s plan would also make the maximum award $1,000.

Kelly said the state works with two budgets. The deficiency budget, which runs from 1977-1978, provides for a $300 increase for freshmen. The second, the normative budget, which is for next year, includes a $300 increase for 1978-1979 underenrolment, a $100 increase in awards for all students which decreases at $900 net taxable income, and an increase in the New York State net taxable income threshold for maximum award from $200 to $250.

He added many problems would be created by the $900 reduction point, and Carey is seeking for a $500 increase on the board’s increase.

Kelly said the increased TAP awards would provide Marist with approximately a $166,000 total increase in awards for the incoming freshmen, and about a $33,000 total increase for sophomores and juniors.

Hines: Kelly unqualified

By Mary Yuskevich

Joseph Hines, director of special services, said Gerald Kelly is not qualified to replace him when he leaves on Feb. 24. Hines said, “Kelly has no experience in special services. He may have all the best intentions in mind, but he has full-time commitments in other areas, and he would be too busy to handle the job.”

Kelly would also continue as the financial aid director and assistant dean of students.

Common interest room reservations

By David Potter

The room reservation procedure at Marist is being changed to allow the “grouping of common interests,” according to the proposal for room reservation procedure, written by Fred Lambert, residence director of students.

Lambert said the reservation procedure was changed because the present procedure is “contrary to the philosophy of the residence halls.” “Allows individuals who have money to live where they want, which is contrary to the common goals of the community,” and freshmen are placed in the dorms “without reason.”

The proposed room reservation procedure is being changed “to have the room reservation policy consistent with our (Marist’s) overall philosophy, which services Marist’s co-ed, to attempt to create an academic environment in residence halls by grouping common interests, and "assure a process of freshman placement which will affect them a sense of identity.”

Peter McDaid, president of interhouse council, believes the new room reservation procedure “should go through as long as it stays within limitations.” McDaid believes groups should be allowed special areas as they “don’t want to be spread out at large.” He said interhouse council will vote on the proposal.

Unchained gas tanks in Donnelly Hall

By Joe Ford

Fire hazards in Donnelly and Champagnat Halls reported last semester have not been corrected according to a recent inspection of buildings on campus.

Although campus chief fire marshall, Tom Hall, said Marist’s fire extinguisher and fire alarm systems are not inadequate because “they’re trying,” several fire safety violations still exist in Donnelly and Champagnat Hall. The Donnelly boiler room contains electrical hazards such as a switchboard without a cover, exposed wires with exposed, dry ragged pieces of insulation, and boxes of materials close to the floor.

In Champagnat, electrical boxes on the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth floors contain loose metal and boxes of materials close to the floor.

Unusually high levels of carbon monoxide were found in the Donnelly Halls in February, 1978, and Marist千万不要 sexual harassment.

Hazardous to your health

We should put an end to this along with Georges and Donnelly Hall. These hallways are particularly dangerous. We need to get these Marines out of those buildings. The only way to do so is to have the fire department come in with a hose. What will happen if there is a fire? What harm can 10,000 be to those with no immediate solutions? This one

A fire alarm was ripped off and put in the dorm at the end of last night. It was a busy area, and the fire alarm was tear gas. The dorm was left in chaos. No student was hurt in the incident. This is just another example of how dangerous and chaotic life can be on campus. It is important to remember that this incident is just one of many that have occurred on campus.

Boaters lose tournament in semi-finals

By Don Proverb

The Adirondacs were eliminated in the semi-finals of the Long Island Cup with a loss to Long Island's 3-1. The Adirondacs played an open and fast game against the Adirondacs. We were able to dominate the play, even against a strong Adirondacs side. They scored on their first shot, and we had a number of chances to equalize. Everyone played well, and we're looking forward to the next round.

Greenhills noted that the squad was presented with a number of opportunities to win, but that they did not take advantage of them. "We had several chances to break the deadlock," said Greenhills. "But we just couldn't find the back of the net." The Adirondacs were able to move more fluidly and attack the goal with more intensity.

On Sunday, Feb. 26, the Adirondacs will play against West Point. All the games so far have been extremely competitive, and we're looking forward to the challenge. "We need to improve our defense and keep our shape better," said Greenhills.

In Intramural Scores, the Women's Basketball team played against the Men's Team to win the championship game which they won by a score of 68-35. The Adirondacs captured the championship by a margin of 3-2.
