Employment rate at 89% for '90 grads
by J.W. STEWART

Eighty-nine percent of Marist's Class of 1990 have succeeded in finding jobs, according to the Outcomes Report released by the Career Development and Field Experience Office.

The annual report, compiled through telephone interviews of Career Development and Field Experience Office from Oct. 1990 to September 1991, shows 41 percent of the 89 graduates and 90 percent of the 89 graduates who are working in a field related to their major. Among the three percent of those employed said they were doing something related to their major.

Percentages of the graduates with jobs are working in a field related to their major, the report said.

The report also states 12 percent of the Class of 1990 went on to graduate school, in which six percent remain unemployed.

Deirdre Sepp, director of Career Development and Field Experience Office, said she is a bit surprised at the 1990 graduates because they are so close to the 1989 numbers.

"The data of the Class of 1989 and the population of its into the population workforce with 49 percent staying even related to their field and 90 percent staying were somewhat related," she said.

Twelve percent of the Class of 1990 went on to graduate school and seven percent are still without a job.

Sepp said she pleased with the recent findings, "I am sure," she said. "I'd like to see more students go on to graduate school everyone has to be responsible for their own future."

Sepp and 1989 graduates surveyed for the 1990 report, 91 percent percent have found employment, and only 80 percent said they jobs related to their field. This is in con- contrast to the 91 percent of 1990 graduate students who said they were working in the major. The major, eight percent said they were happy while 17 percent said they were in work that is not "more than a two-to-one ratio," said Sepp.

Preliminary information on the Class of 1991 is currently being gathered by the Career Develop- ment and Field Experience Office. Sepp said her office should have more information on the whereabouts of last year's seniors by early spring.

The information her office does have shows students employed by such organizations as NBC, the U.S. Army, the Town of Hyde Park, IBM, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and Marist College.

Students that choose to graduate school have stayed as close as Marist and SUNY New Paltz or have traveled as far as Georgetown University and In- stitute University.

In order to avoid the problems encountered by some members of the Class of 1989, Sepp suggests that those students pending gradua- tion call the Career Development Office.

"A college career is not putting in eight to ten hours a week in job- search-related activity, they're not helping themselves," said the third- year director.

Marist, local colleges threatened by threat of AIDS
by JENNIFER CHANDLER

One hundred and forty-three of Duchess County have Acquired Immune Deficiency Syn- drome. AIDS 22 of those 143 are between 20 and 29, according to a study by Marist College AIDS-Related Community Services (ARCS).

G. "Biff" O'Brien, director of Marist's Health Services, said there is a lack of knowledge among students on campus who are infected with the HIV virus — which causes AIDS — and, as a result, are at-risk for being infected with the disease that affects the body's immune system and causes death.

AIDS is caused by the human immune deficiency virus, HIV. It is transmitted only by the exchange of certain body fluids — specifically, blood, semen, vaginal secretions and, in some cases, breast milk.

Local colleges, including Marist, do not offer AIDS-testing on campus because of the lack of con- fidentiality a student possesses, "Someone's HIV-status is so critical to which I'm not comfortable with having to address that prob- lem," said O'Brien. "If a student comes in here for HIV-testing, it might possibly become the knowledge of someone else."

Meryll Silka, director of Bard College's Health Services, said Bard doesn't offer testing because the college is too small.

Department, located in the Poughkeepsie main mall, which does free and confidential testing. Although the testing can be done anonymously, New York State Law requires written consent and pre- and post-test counseling.

While Marist seniors search for the ultimate vacation spot for spring break, the college will continue its search for what many students see as a keystone of the graduation ceremony — a commencement speaker.

The college has already met at least one contest, according to Shailene Kincaid, vice president for College Advancement.

"I have received an answer, and we are moving ahead," said Kopeck. From New York, NBC Southern Bureau's Business Correspondent, who delivered a speech at the Marist College graduation on May 16, the same day as Marist's, according to Maureen Tosser, vice president of the senior class.

"The commencement committee said we'd have a good chance with Brokaw because Marist had a commend- ment opportunity," Kopeck said.

Brokaw attended the Lowell Thomas award ceremony sponsored by Marist last June in New York.

Alex Haley, author of "Roots," also under consideration for this year's commencement speaker and honoray-degree recipient, died of a heart attack on Jan. 10. However, Kopeck said that as of Monday, the college had not contacted Haley, who delivered a speech and field a questionable discussion with students and faculty in the Campus Center last spring.

According to Kopeck, one of the most important factors in the annual search for a commencement speaker is looking for someone who is familiar with the Marist's and the college community.

However, the credibility of the individual is foremost, she added. "He or she must have exemplified some dimension of the college's mission, whether it is in academic achievement, being others or commitment to higher human values," said Kopeck.

She also said it would be so-so to have someone of lesser pro- minence, that it is not the sole criteria in deciding on a speaker.

"We have to be on the live wire," said Kopeck. "It is an honorarium degree, which is the highest honor given by the college," said Kopeck.

Senior Class President Jennifer Chandler, in conjunction with members of the senior class, compiled the list of potential speakers the class wanted, and brought it to the commencement committee last fall.

Connelly, tries, but fails, in ‘Medicine Man’

BY BRIAN MCNELIS

Sonia Connelly is a person who can say the same can’t be said of the role she’s supposed to be able to choose what not to appear in the film “Medicine Man,” it just isn’t an example of the many roles she’s played. She’s not just a good actress, she’s a great one. She’s got a lot of other roles to her credit, and this one will only add to her resume. We all remember “The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly,” and now we can add “Sonia Connelly, the Beautiful.”

The plot is too slow and is developing in a manner that is not very interesting. From the beginning, I was not sure what was going to happen. From the middle of the film, I was not sure what was going to happen. The ending was not as conclusive as I had hoped it to be. I am not sure if I would recommend this film to others.
Marist officials spark awareness on fire prevention

by CHRISTINE UNGOLKA

Everyone on campus must be responsible for fire prevention, said Jim Baiocco, director of student services, who scheduled a fire prevention lecture for this week.

Campus Morale, was secretary and public relations area assistant, who was in charge of fire prevention for the Marist Fire Prevention Program. According to a weekly meeting of the Marist Fire Prevention Program, fire prevention is one of the main duties of the program. The main duties of the program are to reduce the risk of fire on campus and to inform people about fire prevention.

Marist officials have been working on fire prevention for the past few years. They have been working with the local fire department and with the fire prevention program to make sure that everyone on campus is aware of the importance of fire prevention.

"I think everyone on campus should be aware of fire prevention," said Baiocco. "It's important that we all work together to prevent fires from happening on campus.

There are a few things that everyone can do to prevent fires. For example, you should make sure that your dorm room is clean and that you don't have any flammable materials in your room. You should also make sure that your dorm room is well-ventilated.

In addition to these things, everyone should also be aware of the importance of fire safety. For example, you should always know where the nearest exits are and you should always know how to use the fire extinguisher in your dorm room.

I hope that everyone on campus will take fire prevention seriously and that we will all work together to prevent fires from happening on campus."
Marist officials spark awareness on fire prevention by CHRISTINE UNGALA

Everyone on campus must be responsible for fire prevention. This was the message given by_okay Joe Railey, director of student life, during his speeches.

Students are responsible for fire prevention. Joe Railey, director of student life, said that it is the students' responsibility to prevent fires on campus. He emphasized the importance of staying aware of the fire hazards and taking necessary precautions to ensure safety. Railey emphasized that fire prevention is a shared responsibility and encouraged everyone to take an active role in preventing fires on campus.

Joe Railey, director of student life, reminded students of the importance of fire prevention. He highlighted the need for students to be vigilant and aware of fire hazards. He stressed the role of everyone in ensuring a safe environment and emphasized the responsibility of staying informed about fire safety measures. Railey concluded by reminding everyone of the potential consequences of carelessness and the importance of taking proactive steps to prevent fires.

No spring break for PC&d's New Paltz by EIN MUSHER

SUNY New Paltz students do not have spring break this year due to the budget cuts. Instead, there will be a week of intensive, focusing activities on campus.

Students are looking forward to this new format, which will include workshops, seminars, and other engaging events. Some students are concerned about the lack of time to travel and explore other places, but most believe that the week will be a valuable opportunity to enhance their academic and personal growth.

 prioritize for new registration process outlined

by John K. Kelly

Registered for many years, I won’t do it over... to figure out what is the best way to go about it. I think it would be a good idea to have a primary key for the registration process which would allow priorities to be set. I will try the method I described in the previous section, and see how it works.

I think it would be more efficient to keep the process as simple as possible. I will try to make the process as simple as possible. The key to success is to make sure the process is as simple as possible. The key to success is to make sure the process is as simple as possible.

Don’t just vote for change, be a part of it

February 14, 1992 is a big day for the students of Marietta College. A campus-wide student referendum which if ratified by two-thirds of the students voting, would create a new student government with a new constitution. There is no other vote you can cast that is more significant.

Eligible voters are students who currently are registered to vote. In order to vote, you must have a completed referendum form. These forms are available at the Registration Office in the Administration Building.

Every voter has the opportunity to make a difference in the future of Marietta College. A large student turnout is necessary to ensure that the will of the students is clearly expressed. A student government constitution is an opportunity to make Marietta College the best it can be.

The existing Constitution, adopted in 1963, is long past its prime. It is time for a new constitution. We seek your support in this referendum.

A former student at a major college charged with criminal offenses in the second degree has been arrested and arraigned, according to Times of Student Affairs.

Douglas Carrol, 19, from Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested on Jan. 16 at 6 p.m. for allegedly violating a Garden Apartment Community's ordinance of its no trespassing policy. Douglas has been accused of stealing and possessing drugs and using them to cause a disturbance, said Joseph DeMelo, the director of the on-campus police department.

Douglas has been charged with several offenses, including possession of drugs and drug paraphernalia. He is awaiting trial and could be held in jail on bail.

According to the college, the student was apprehended by police and taken to the dormitory for questioning. He was then searched and found to be in possession of a small amount of marijuana.

"This person will be found guilty," said the officer.

Support important for Mrs. Magarity

by NICHOLAS O'PARRILL

Sports Editor

Growing up with four sisters and a single mother, Charles Magarity never really knew what having a brother was like. It was a constant struggle for his mother to get him to a basketball game on time.

"When I was growing up, I was always late," Magarity said. "My mom was never very happy with me."

Now, Magarity and his wife, Mary Lou, are trying to do their part to make sure their four daughters don't have the same experience. Magarity, a longtime fan of the women's basketball team, has been attending games every season, and he's found a way to get his kids involved in the fun.

"My kids love going to the games," Magarity said. "They get so excited to see their friends and have a good time."

Magarity's passion for the sport has rubbed off on his wife, who has been attending games with him for the past few years.

"I used to be a non-believer," Magarity's wife Mary Lou said. "But now, I'm completely hooked."

Magarity and his wife are planning on taking their daughters to all of the women's basketball games this season. They've already purchased season tickets and are looking forward to spending time with their kids at the games.

"It's a great way to spend time with my kids," Magarity said. "And it's a lot of fun to see them enjoy themselves."

Sixteen sports teams were ranked.

Of the 16 teams compiled, the top seven

Women's volleyball tops the scale with a

2.9 while men's lacrosse is at the bottom end with a

2.6. This is where the traditional sports used to be ranked.

The basketball team was sixth on the list with a GPA of 2.67 while the soccer team was fifth of the nine men's team was 2.45.

The compilation is done in order to make the athletes and coaches know how the players are doing on the field.

The men's soccer team with a GPA of 2.45 also

The average overall for women was 2.73 and the men's was 2.55.

Coach Howard Goldman said he was not unhappy with his team's GPA which was in the same range as the men's basketball team.

"It's not terrible for all the time and energy they put in," said Goldman. "But, there is always room to improve in every sport."

Besides those names that no longer belong on the team roster, the athletic department said some of the lower GPAs can be attributed to the large number of women on the teams.

"The adjustment from high school to college can be very difficult and has effects on the GPA," said Doris.

Supporting Doris' point, statistics show the overall freshmen GPA to be a 2.34 according to the Institutional Research Office.

Statistics back both the freshman, faculty and higher GPAs on the average for women.

Freshmen females had a GPA of 2.50 while males had a 2.44. Senior females were at a 2.83 and senior males had a 2.65.

"The average overall for women is 2.81 while junior males averaged 2.64. Sophomore females averaged 2.66 compared to 2.45 for sophomore males.

Head Football Coach Rick Par- dy declined to comment on his team's GPA but said he feels people will be biased about the entire team.

Pardy also added that there are two academic All-Americans on the squad and he doesn't want to "turn them."

Doris said he has tried to make the teams competitive between each other.

The athletic department gives out academic awards at the sports banquet each year, he said.

"The purpose is to show athletes that it's something we pay attention to," said Ritschard. "We want them to succeed academically and let them know we acknowledge academic achievements."

Doris agreed.

"They are student athletes, there shouldn't be any big distinctions for those who are performing academically as well as athletically," he said.

Tyson, Magic and Blair, the week that was Due to the nature of Magic's situation, there was no such tour. Instead, Stern decided to hold Johnson's leaving party at the All-Star game.

First of all, Stern created an extra spot for Magic, the game's premier ambassador who retired last year after constructing the H1V virus.

Secondly, after all the hype, Johnson starts the game and scores 35 points — including three straight treys in the final three minutes.

Third, in All-Star Play, the West has only lost in the last four times in the last 13 seasons.

Finally, and Magic — not Clyde Drexler who never seems to get the recognition he deserves — walks away with the MVP award.

After the game, Magic was still following the script.

When asked about long-time rival and Boston Celtics forward Larry Bird, who missed the game due to injury, Johnson said the two would stare the score "on the blacktop behind Bird’s house."
