Two students suspended in townhouse incident

by MEREDITH KENNEDY
Staff Editor

Two male Marist students received a one-year suspension following their arrest on Mon., Sept. 12. Joe Jarjura, 19, and Rob Muni, 20, were formally charged with assault in the third degree, a misdemeanor, according to Joe Leary, a sector of safety and security.

Jarjura was also charged with harassment, according to Leary, who said that Jarjura was issued a for a later date, Leary said.

The confrontation occurred at approximately 1:45 a.m. Sat. Sept. 10, in the townhouse.

Two junior female residents, Biling, 20, and Reilly, 20, and of Natasha Reilly, 20, and three non-Marist males from East Haven, Conn., were involved in the incident, Leary said.

Muni and Jarjura have been on suspension for one year, and Dobbs' on-campus housing has been revoked.

"I get hit and a fight occurred," Jarjura said. "I defended myself and my friends defended me." Reilly said she walked into the middle of the fight and saw people everywhere.

"By the time I got downstairs, there were people all over the place," Reilly said. "They were oh the kitchen table and the couch. One was (lying) on the floor." Reilly, who is asymptotic to Leary, suffered a possible fractured rib, said she was thrown across the 17 living room by Jarjura.

"When I got behind Joe to try to stop the fight, and he turned around and looked at me and then threw me across the room," Reilly said.

"I never said anything, I should know that this was a serious matter," Jarjura said.

"They're telling me Natasha jumped in, on my back," Jarjura said. "I swung my back around to get her off and that's when she got hurt.

"I never denied that I jumped on Jarjura's back," Muni said. "I believe he knew what he was doing.

"This makes no sense, because people keep saying it," Reilly said. "I did not jump on Joe's back. I looked right at me and then threw me.

Jarjura and Muni's suspension were placed by Peter Amato, associate dean.

Jarjura said he met with Amato voluntarily on Mon. Sept. 12 and was treated as guilty from the beginning.

"Dean Amato told me that before I said anything, I should know that I am in serious trouble, and that this was a serious matter," Jarjura said.

"Amato said he could not comment on the incident because it involves the disciplinary process of the college, and the case is confidential.

"Dobbs now reality off-campus and is banned from the townhouse section of campus because there are only three female guests were not registered with housing, Reilly said.

"I think it's unfair," Reilly said. "I think the suspension was not handled fairly.

Jarjura said he had no comment about the incident.

"Saifee Saied," Reilly said as she was asked if an incident had occurred earlier that night but did not know the details.

"Saifee is trying to appeal the suspension but they still have to wait to see Geran Cou, vice president and dean for student affairs, will allow him to present his case.

New RDs bring fresh ideas to campus life

by BLYTHE MAUSOLF
Staff Writer

The Office of Housing and Residential Life hired not one but five new assistant directors for this year, because the staff was expanded to fight the elimination of Canthuberry.

The new members of the Housing staff are all former residents, and some of them come from different experiences and backgrounds.

Assistant Director of Housing John Padovan said, "We look to build a team of people with different talents and experiences. So they come together and each as a unique contribution to the team.

The additions are spread out through the campus. Johnson Residence, Sheshas; Sean McGrath in Campus; Kelly Marin in Main; Susan Dobbs in North End and in Oakland is Kelly Doucet.

Last year at this time, Sam John was beginning his senior year at Western Connecticut State University, with a major in Human Resource Management.

He was an active participant of student government and a resident assistant.

Johnson said he came to Marist for a few reasons. "The size of the school, that is, the campus population is big. And I worked in a public institution and Marist is private," Johnson said, "and I want to get a different perspective.

"He said he feels his youth was a "youngster's love for life and the world of ideas and energy.

"He said he is looking forward to working with the freshmen in Sheshas.

"He said he sees it as a challenge and his goal is to keep his students active. and to have fun.

He would like to help Marist build a "community of students, educational, social and cultural level, in order to help students open up to the real world.

About himself, Johnson said, "I am approachable and knowledgeable about who I am and what I do. I believe it important to know who you are and where you come from. And now, I am also learning, and I will always be learning something new.

"Melvin Marin comes from Marist from Bridgewater State College, where she went to graduate school.

In addition to classes and an internship, she worked as assistant director in a resident hall for approximately 700 first-year students.

On her decision to leave, Marin said, "I was finished with grad school, plus I was at Bridgewater for six years, and I needed to leave. I needed to be in a different area, but if you don't get a different type of philosophy in your studies, you're just turning your wheels and not really getting anywhere.

"For interviewing for many middle school guidance counselors, she put out a few housing applications, none of them seemed to be a match.

"From the first time I got on campus, I was just laughed, I felt comfortable. When I left here I said, 'I have to be at Marist,'" Marin said.

"When in a good match between the housing officer and the person being hired, you're on the same wavelength and once that happens you can rally up," Marin said.

"After being very involved in Greek life, at Bridgewater, she is now the resident assistant for Greek organization.

Although, she said, there would have been another student she is excited about making changes in some minor things.

"I like to be involved in more than just the housing area of Marist. When on duty, I'm usually the one doing it by bike. I make a lot of time for students and try to incorporate that into who I am," Marin said.

Like Martin, Jeanine Belcastro comes fresh from the completion of her advanced degree at Boston University, where she majored in Vocal Music Performance.

After graduating in May, she said she would look for a housing position similar to the supervisor position she held as a student assistant and, she said, "I wanted to be involved at a school because of the quality of the students. It feels like there is a difference in the mentality of the students of other schools. There is a lot of trouble in their studies because they are paying a lot more," Belcastro said.

She explained that she had chosen the North End after originally being placed in Sheshas.

Her past experiences had been in the Hoop Lot were replaced, and emergency phones in all parking lots have been repaired and weather-protected. Security has also added two full time campus foot-patrols, and a five hour foot-patrol at Rockefeller Place.

Leary is pleased with the concern for safety.

The Student Body Government shows excellent awareness of safety on campus," says Leary. "In working with the students, we're all very civil and our requests given. Most concerns are very legitimate.

Leary said that the lighting situation is still being worked on, and students have to understand that it takes time.

Despite all these improvements, upsurges can may find things missing. The student escorts have been eliminated from Marist's security due to the New York State Security Guard Act of 1992. The law went into effect in the 1994 school year, and states that any person doing any type of security must be a registered Security Officer. Registration is by N.Y. state could cost Please see TOUR p. 9.

STUDENT LEADERS EXPRESS CONCERN-SECURITY BUDGET Cuts an issue

by BRIAN FRANKENFIELD
Staff Writer

Marist students making progress is what the Student Government's Safety and Security Committee is all about.

On Nov. 11, 1993 the 12-member committee filed a safety and security report with former student body president, Kent Rinthart. The report outlined everything from security foot-patrols to the quality of lighting around campus.

Following this report, a memo was sent to Executive Vice President Mack Sullivan, and Director of Security Joe Leary requesting a tour of campus problem areas. The tour was agreed upon, and conducted each Thursday evening last April.

Student Government officers Jen Novella, Kelly Doucet, Rebecca Ryan and Holly Olson elected the entire campus, from The McCrane Center to Garland's Hoop Lot, pointing out potential dangers.

The tour was extremely effective in getting a response from administration.

"I was very pleased to see improvement when I came back this year," Novella said.

Since then, the steps behind Leo Hall have been locked, certain snow guards were placed on the New Townhouses, the fraying and lights...

TV scandal exposed in Fiennes-driven 'Quizz'

by JUSTIN SEREMBEY
Critic First

The world's most popular TV quiz show, 'Quizz,' has been rocked by a scandal involving actor Charles Fiennes. The actor, known for his leading role in the highly acclaimed movie 'The Quizz,' has been charged with cheating on the set of the show. According to sources, Fiennes was seen using a cheat sheet during rehearsals, raising questions about the fairness of the competition.

Fiennes, who has denied the allegations, is currently under investigation by the TV station. The station has released a statement saying that they are taking the matter very seriously and will be conducting a full probe to ensure the integrity of the show.

The news of Fiennes' involvement has caused a sensation in the entertainment industry. Fans of the show are divided on whether the actor should be allowed to continue participating. Some are calling for his immediate withdrawal, while others believe that he should be given a chance to prove his innocence.

'Quizz' has been a popular show for years, with millions of viewers tuning in each week. The scandal has raised concerns about the reliability of the show and the integrity of its participants.

Vets' Killing Joke-Consolided back with more noise

by TOM BECKER
Critic Music Circle

The world of music continues to evolve, and more and more, the sound of the music is the name of the game. As the music world changes, so do the artists. This week's feature on a new release from the band 'Consolided' is a great example of this.

'Consolided' has a new album out, titled 'Killing Joke.' The album is a departure from their previous work, with a more experimental and electronic sound. The band's frontman, Bob Mortimer, says the change was driven by the desire to create a more dynamic and diverse sound.

The album is a mix of electronic beats, with a rock and roll feel. Mortimer says the band wanted to create a sound that would appeal to a wider audience.

'Killing Joke' is a great addition to the music world, and we recommend it to all music lovers.

Gartland Commons becomes wet resident area

by RON JOHNSON
Editor

At the Gartland Commons, the first wet resident area in the city, the residents are divided on whether the area should be closed.

The area has been called the 'Wet Commons' by some residents, who feel that it is a place where they can safely exercise and socialize.

However, others believe that the area should be closed, saying that it is too dangerous. They argue that the water level is too deep and that there are too many accidents.

The city is currently considering whether to close the area or to make changes to make it safer.

The residents are divided on the issue, with some wanting to keep the area open, while others want it closed.

Former New Jersey High School Principal

by DARYL RICHARD

Former New Jersey High School Principal Jim Clark, after whom the movie "The Great Debaters" is named, passed away last week, inspiring teams around the world to remember his dedication and passion for education.

"The purpose of your existence on earth is not to make a living, but to make a life, a useful, a useful, a significant, a wonderful life," Clark said. "If you are willing to do more than you can" and "If you are willing to work even harder." Clark was known for his commitment to public education and his belief in the importance of education for all.

Students praised the campus den of Jim Clark, who was passionate about teaching and mentoring young people. He was an inspiration to many and his legacy will continue to live on through his work and the students he impacted.

"Jim Clark was a true leader and an inspiration to all of us," said one of his former students. "He had a way of making everyone feel special and valued." Clark's impact on the world will be remembered for years to come.

Easy Street Cafe provides a peaceful atmosphere amidst the chaos of New York City. The cafe is located in the heart of Manhattan, making it the perfect spot for a quick bite or a long day of work.

Upon entering the restaurant, the ambiance is warm and inviting. A menu at the table indicates that a significant portion of the sale is set aside for the education of children. This aspect of the cafe will surely appeal to those who appreciate the value of education.

For example, if you choose to sit in a small nook, you are seated by a table set for two, as is the case for the main course, which is perfectly portioned and perfectly presented. You can also select from a variety of sauces to accompany your meal.

Easy Street Cafe also offers a variety of desserts, such as chocolate brownies and cheesecakes. However, they are not available in the main course, but are more appropriately served in the dessert course.

Upon ordering your meal, the waiter will bring you a glass of water and a complimentary slice of bread. The bread is freshly baked and served warm, complementing the main course perfectly.

Once your meal arrives, you will be presented with a small plate of purple flowers which adds a touch of elegance to the dining experience.

The entire meal is perfectly balanced and satisfying, leaving you feeling both full and content.

The soil is down, the newly-paved sidewalks have come to life, the glimmering in the Student Center is sparkling, and it appears as though Marist College is truly a sight to see.

And hey, we’ve got Barnes and Noble, too.

But there is something at Marist that will take more than $27 million to fix and revitalize. And I’m not talking about the library.

The issue at hand is student sparsity. Let’s face it. This campus just doesn’t care.

But wait, the Circle breaks a story on an arrest made in the one-year-old old case.

You might have expected at least one person on this campus, either a student or a member of the faculty, to have written a letter to the editor regarding the article or the editorial. Well, guess what.

There was nothing in our mailbox Monday morning.

Not really.

Not very much at all. This campus cares enough to react to any story or issue. It is truly unfortunate.

At a matter of fact, it’s pathetic.

Everything we scoff at on this campus indirectly or directly affects you, the students.

So, what do you care?

You cared about parking. You cared about the course hours. You cared about tax on food items. You cared about cultural diversity.

So why not care about crime?

Sure these topics are taboo and shocking, but they do affect this campus.

All we ask is that the students of Marist College give up the apathy and start reacting to issues that are important to them.

Hey Marist—The Circle is your newspaper. It is for the Marist community, by student members of the Marist community.

The students on this campus do like to complain about subjects such as the administration, politics, news, etc. but no one will write in and express their views.

Why not just give it a shot?

This is not a police-state.

Administration is not going to have security hunt you down in the middle of the night and disperse you in your Hudson River just because you have something to say about rape articles or any other story.

Take our word for it. We’re still here.

Part of the education process is to learn how to stand up for yourself, and to learn how to react to issues which bother you or concern you.

You are at Marist to get an education. Use what you have learned to do the next best thing—start caring.

How can you be happy if you constantly complain but never do anything about it?

Now’s your big chance to make a difference and to get rid of the sparsity.

The Circle is giving you that chance. Run with it.

This is your time to get things off your chest. Just do it.

There was nothing in our mailbox Monday morning.

Not really. Luckily, some helpful students came to our rescue and handed in letters minutes before deadline.

“Nothing matters about apathy because it affects us all,” one student wrote. “We’re not apathetic. We’re just tired.”

“Not all of us are apathetic,” another student wrote. “We just don’t have the energy to care.”

Nature born psycho

There is that old saying if the light is not shining, it’s not always a lack of light, but rather a lack of sight. With this in mind, how can you help a friend who is struggling with a mental health issue? Here are some tips:

1. Be an active listener. When a friend is struggling, it’s important to give them your full attention. This means putting aside any distractions and really listening to what they’re saying.
2. Offer your support. Let your friend know that you’re there for them and that you care about their well-being.
3. Encourage them to seek professional help. If you notice that your friend is struggling, it’s important to encourage them to seek professional help. This could mean helping them find a therapist, making an appointment for them, or just being a source of support.
4. Be patient. It’s important to remember that recovery from mental health issues takes time. Be patient with your friend and give them the space they need.

The important thing is to be there for your friend and to offer them the support they need. Remember, it’s okay to seek help for yourself as well. There are resources available to help you through these difficult times.

Letters to the Editor...

In our opinion, people should be asking “how does it feel?”

“Is it different?”

As the saying goes, “If you can’t help them, listen.”

In an era where social media is ubiquitous, it’s easy to feel disconnected from the world around us. With the constant flow of information, it’s hard to know where to turn.

That’s why it’s so important to take the time to listen to those who are struggling. Whether it’s a friend, family member, or someone you don’t even know, taking the time to listen can make a difference.

It’s easy to get caught up in our own lives and forget about the people around us. But by taking the time to listen, we can make a meaningful impact.

Let your friends and loved ones know that you’re there for them. And if you’re struggling yourself, remember that you’re not alone. There are resources available to help you through these difficult times.

The important thing is to be there for your friend and to offer them the support they need. Remember, it’s okay to seek help for yourself as well. There are resources available to help you through these difficult times.
Marist in search of a Dean of Communication

By MAURA BROUILLETTE
Staff Writer

The communications department is looking for a new dean this fall. At a recent meeting of the communications faculty, Dr. Edward J. Conley, chairman of the department, said the search for a new dean is under way.

Dr. Conley said the search committee is working on the selection process. He added that he would be happy to hear from anyone interested in the position.

The communications department is responsible for overseeing the college’s communications programs, including television, radio, print, and digital media.

The department has had a number of successful programs in recent years, including the Marist College Television Network, which produces news and entertainment programming for the college community.

The department is also responsible for the Marist College Press, which publishes the college newspaper, The Sentinel.

The department is located in the Communications Building, which is located on the campus of Marist College.

The Communications Building was designed by architect Frank Lloyd Wright and was completed in 1953.

The building is a prime example of Wright’s work and is considered a masterpiece of modern architecture.

The Communications Building is open to the public and can be visited during regular office hours.

For more information, please contact the Communications Department at (914) 510-5000.

Marist in search of a Dean of Communication

by MAURA BRIOLLETTE
Staff Writer

The communications department is seeking a new dean. The position, which has been vacant for a year, has been advertised widely and the department is hopeful that this will attract a strong pool of candidates.

According to Dr. Patrick, dean of the college, "we are looking for someone who will bring a fresh perspective to the department and help us grow in new directions."

The department currently offers a major in communications and a minor in media studies. It is home to approximately 100 undergraduate and graduate students.

"We want someone who will be able to work closely with the faculty to develop new courses and programs," Dr. Patrick said.

The position requires a Ph.D. in communications or a related field and at least five years of experience in academic administration.

Salary is negotiable and the position will begin immediately.

Interested candidates should submit a resume and letter of interest to the Department of Communications, Marist College, Poughkeepsie, NY 12601.
Booters lose again; in Conn. on Sat.

by TEBI L. STYWEART

The men’s soccer team suffered its second defeat in the last three games Monday afternoon in Loomisville, N.Y.

The Red Frogs (1-3-1) were defeated by the Hoya (1-0-2) in another scoreless loss. The Hoyas, who have lost only once in 29 years, scored in the second half.

"We can’t lose every overtime," Styweart said. "We need to get out of our scoring frame of mind.‚"

Styweart added that the Frogs need to work on their defense and improve their passing.

"The Hoyas are a team we need to beat," Styweart said. "We have to get out of our scoring frame of mind.‚"

The St. Mary’s soccer team suffered a devastating 5-0 loss to the University of Notre Dame Fighting Irish on Sunday as they fell to 0-9-1.

The game was held at the Alumni Stadium in South Bend, Indiana. Notre Dame outplayed St. Mary’s from the start, scoring three goals in the first half and two more in the second half.

The Fighting Irish dominated the game, controlling the ball and creating numerous scoring opportunities. St. Mary’s defense was unable to contain Notre Dame’sAttack, allowing the Fighting Irish to capitalize on their chances.

In the second half, Notre Dame continued their攻势, scoring two more goals to put the game out of reach for St. Mary’s.

The loss was a tough one for the Booters, who were hoping to pick up their first win of the season. Despite the setback, the team remains focused on their goal of improving throughout the season.

Spike: lose big at Seton Hall

by GERARD CARNEY
Staff Writer

Prior to the Seton Hall Invitational last weekend, the women's volleyball team had a 3-4 overall record, and was riding a three-game winning streak.

When the tournament concluded, the Red Roses were wishing they could get on the bus and get out of South Orange, N.J., as quickly as possible.

Marist (4-7 overall; 0-0 in the Northeast Conference) dropped three of its four matches at Seton Hall University last Saturday and Sunday.

The Red Roses swept up against the host school, Seton Hall. The Pioneers defeated Marist, 15-5, 15-0, and 15-6.

Marist then faced Lehigh University. The Red Roses were taken out of the contest by the Engineers in four sets, 15-7, 15-5, 15-1, and 15-10.

The tournament was not a complete failure for Marist. The Red Roses were able to benefit from their final match of the invitational by sweeping past Bucknell University, 15-13, 15-17, and 15-10.

Sophomore middle hitter Liz Herzer said despite the results, the tournament was a learning experience for the entire team.

"Seton Hall is just a powerhouse, simply a better team," Herzer said.

"We could have played better against Lehigh, but we didn't know what we were doing against Seton Hall," Herzer said.

Marist was in Fairfield, Conn., last Tuesday, battling Fairfield University.

Sophomore outside hitter Tara Danis said the tourney didn't get their minds into the contest.

"It was just a disaster. We came out with no intensity or emotion, and it just wasn't the mood we came in ready to play," Danis said.

Director of Athletics Turner, Aries, said she and her teammates are not overly concerned about their performance in the tourney.

"We've played some tough schools recently, but this one, I think we will be fine," Danis said.

The team played their best against themselves.

Herzer also said she believes Marist has the capability to the take the conference title.

Netters snap skid; improve mark to 6-2

by JAMES J. DERIVAN
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team was able to snap a two-match losing streak last Sunday afternoon by defeating the Manhattan Jaspers, 8-1, at the American Bank Racquet Club.

The Red Roses (9-2 overall; 5-0 in the Northeast Conference) were able to pull off the win by a trio of straight sets.

In doubles play, O'Neill, Ceci McCaffrey and Katie Sweeney finished the afternoon with a 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 victory.

Singles players also fared well, with two of the three singles players finishing the afternoon with 6-3, 6-2 victories.

O'Neill started the Red Rose attack with a 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 win in the number one singles; while McCaffrey followed with a 6-1, 6-2 triumph.

Zeegers tallied a 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory in number four singles.

In number-three singles, freshman Holly Robinson needed three sets to knock off her opponent, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The only loss of the day for Marist came from the doubles team of Anne Henry and Sabra Lignori.

The Red Rose tendon fell, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

O'Neill and Zeegers teamed up to win the first doubles, 6-1, 7-5, against Seniors Lisa Maynard and Robinson in the number two doubles.

Head Coach Charles Hardman said he was impressed with the win. "The team played the best they played all season," Hardman said.

O'Neill said her offense made the difference in the win.

"My forehand was on," she said. "I was just ripping (the ball)."

Robinson said she was not fooled in the first set but was not as efficient in the second.

"I just did not have my head in it," she said. "I was a little tired from the first set. I ran around quite a bit."

Zeegers said she found a weakness in her opponent's game and used it to her advantage.

Time is starting to run out on Goldman's team

Despite earning a 2-1 win last Saturday against St. Francis (NY), the 1994 men's soccer season has been absolutely miserable.

After finishing in 1993 schedule with a paltry 4-12-2 showing, the Red Roses currently stand at a dismal 1-7 overall record.

Why hasn't Howard Goldman's team begun to move towards the winning direction?

The answer is plain and simple. No offense.

In eight games, the Red Roses have only been able to tally six goals. Unfortunately for the Red Roses, they have played six of their first eight games atLeonard Field. Marist has also played almost one-half of its schedule.

The good news for Marist is that there are still 10 games remaining this season.

However, eight of those 10 games will be played away from Poughkeepsie.

The only two remaining home games are against Northeasterners on Oct. 5, and Adele favored on Oct. 29.

"It also seems injuries are beginning to take a toll on the team," Sophomore Jed McMullen and Josh Kreger did not suit up for Monday's game against Xaveria.

McMullen apparently suffered a separated ankle against St. John's while Kreger injured his knee against St. Francis (NY).

Goldman and his players had better come up with answers real soon before the season and the playoffs kick right by them.

THE WOMEN'S TENNIS team is the one team Marist's soccer team should try to model.

The women's tennis team has served and volleyed their way to a 6-2 overall standing thus far, compared to last season's imperfect 13-1 record. Marist is also undefeated in the Northeast- Conference play, 3-0.

They have received solid efforts from sophomores Retic Zegar, Ceci McCaffrey and Jen O'Neill throughout most of this season.

First-year Head Coach Charles Hardman is hoping his team can win the Grand Slam tournament of their own—the Northeast Conference title.

WE ALREADY KNOW that Major League Baseball has made the biggest mistake in its history. It seems the National Hockey League would like to follow of the same.

The NHL is apparently looking to cut the cost of its 25th season if the owners and players cannot resolve the dispute over salary cap. It is the same ridiculous situation, only in a different sport.

League Commissioner, Pete Bartmen has met with the players' union in Toronto and New York for the past five weeks to try to come to an agreement.

On Tuesday, the NHL made a proposal which included a tax plan to help finance small-market organizations; however, the NHL Players Association shot down that idea.

WOULDN'T IT BE STRANGE if the NHL and MLB both ceased play?

Even though their seasons are currently being played out, if the NHL and MLB cannot afford to shut down. Besides financial factors, they are the least likely of any major sport to fold, football, baseball and basketball. Since baseball has already struck out, now is the perfect time for professional hockey and other sports to establish more profitable game.

On SUNDAY, approximately 50,000 fans packed Cleveland's Gund Ballroom to commemorate what would have been the Blue Jackets final game of the season.

Fans in attendance were able to watch the game on the field, in a fan-fest pitch contest, and take a tour of the Gund Ballroom.

This was all just a reminder that baseball should be mainly for the fans, not just for the owners and players.

--- ONE-QUARTER of the National Football League season has just completed.

With that in mind, here are your 1994 divisional, conference and Super Bowl champions.

In the AFC East, in no surprise, the Buffalo Bills will once again take the trophy.

Sorry Jet fans, the New England Patriots were able to win a very weak AFC Central; while Joe Montana and holiday Kansas City Chiefs will out due the AFC West.

As for the NFC West, the NFC West power, the SanFrancisco 49ers will gash the NFC West Wide. The NFC West power, the KC Chiefs will defeat Buffalo in the NFC West.

On Sunday, fans will face their former team in the Super Bowl, and earn another championship ring.
