New library may be reality soon

by LYNN WIELAND
Associated Press

Construction for "Vision 94" may be over, but in the next few years the bull dozers will be back this time for a new library.

Currently the preliminary plans for a new library are being discussed. A four phase plan, written by Executive Vice President, Mark Sullivan, was presented in October 1994 and the Marist Board of Trustees discussed the matter in a Nov. 5, 1994 meeting.

Sullivan states the program for Marist and said he is excited about the opportunity this type of library will provide students.

"This is a great opportunity to get the cutting edge of library technology," said Sullivan.

Money from a joint effort with IBM, Marist students will have a library with 21st century technology. The library will include multimedia development labs, an electronic reserves area, a continuing project development plan with the Paul Mellon Center for European Library and the full development of an electronic digital library.

For storage and completion data the building, which must be prefabricated, should be ready to be raised in 1997, according to Sullivan. He said that these increased storage units increase the need for continuous planning expediently to satisfy the needs of a growing student population.

The plans for a new library is a result of five years of planning by both students and faculty.

In an interview at the end of last semester, Library Director, John McGlynn, said because there are more students living on campus the library was rapidly running out of space. "With the increase in the number of students the library is able to accommodate and the loss of Cunningham Library space, the need for a bigger library is a must," McGlynn said.

"We need 1,000 seats. It should be one-fourth of the students population and seating is limited. Currently the library is capable of seating 375, statistically not even half of the capacity recommended. Students have also complained to the Circle about the amount of hardcover, update books in the library.

McGlynn said the library received 600 new books a year and considers this part of the problem.

"I'm not sure 600 is enough for our students," said McGlynn.

The new technological library will have to be reconstructed to solve the problems of electrical capacity, information storage and room also and more study groups and quiet study areas.

Sullivan said part of his excitement over the library is that Marist will be ahead of many larger schools who do not have the benefit of an IBM Joint Study Program.

"We are ahead of the game," said Sullivan pointing out an article in the most recent Newsweek, Jan. 30, 1995. The article entitled "Widing the Ivory Tower," discusses various technological advances college campuses are making. perch. University of Pennsylvania is mentioned for distributing e-mail accounts a few years ago. Rice University points out that Marist has had accounts for years.

In fact, according to John Digilio, Senior Programmer Analyst, Marist already has accounts for at least ten years.

The article also refers to Pennsylvania as being in the process of writing all undergraduate residence halls, again, Marist began that process four years ago.

The fact that Marist has already taken steps to allow more of its students to help in further developing the new library.

This type of library will have a lot of planning, but as Sullivan points out the library is the "most important academic building on campus."

Sullivan said he cannot be sure when the project will be financed and when the bulldozers will roll on campus but he said he was sure that the students will add excitement to the learning process at Marist.

Even though this picture is black and white, the campus should look green come spring.

The grass is always greener...

A burning pile of trash, apparently caused by a fire, killed a 16-year-old Marist freshman who was visiting home over the holidays.

Town officials in Farmington, Conn., identified the victim as Timothy P. Kelly, a 1994 Farmington High School graduate. Kelly, who apparently left a pan of cooking food unattended, was found lying in the living room floor of his tiny 229 Neige Rd. home, said Vincent DiPietro, the town fire chief and fire marshal.

The fire, which caused mostly smoke and heat damage to the first floor of the house was accidental, DiPietro said, and neither Kelly's mother nor his 23-year-old brother was home at the time of the accident.

"He may have come home and forgot to turn it off," DiPietro said.

It's unclear what Kelly was doing when the fire started or whether battery-powered smoke detectors in the home had been activated, DiPietro said, but it's safe to say that the detector had been activated by the fire.

"Town hall employees in Farmington began a collection to help Kelly's mother Susan, who lost her belongings in the fire," Friends of Kelly were informed shortly by word of mouth, and most of the people down the hall knew about what happened by the time they got back from break, Sumarram said.

Kelly was a former member of the high school's varsity soccer team and told Sumarram that he was thinking of trying out for Marist's soccer team this spring.

Larry Gagnon, whose son, Brian, was a close friend of Kelly's, had nothing but good things to say about his hometown friend. "Great kid," Gagnon said. "Everybody was his best friend. He was very warm, very attractive looking, smart, articulate, and very polite. It's a real tragedy. He had his whole life ahead of him." Gagnon said he had seen Kelly recently at a Farmington High School hockey game, and he had asked Kelly how he had been enjoying Marist. Kelly said he loved it. "He said it was the best time of his life."

Critical Circle Cove

It's a critical hit for the critics and a kick in the ass for Sigourney Weaver. No one can forget her portrayal of the scathing, comical, and deadly character "Alien" from one of the westerns for science fiction. "Alien," the movie features Weaver as the most intense and frighteningly perfect performer to grace the screen in the past two decades. Weaver's role has been so well written that it is hard to believe she is actually in a movie with Sigourney Weaver.

Weaver stars in the movie as "Emma," a brilliant and beautiful astronaut who is sent on a mission to a distant planet to investigate a strange signal. Weaver's performance is truly remarkable, and she manages to balance her intense and fearless character with a touch of humanity and vulnerability. Her chemistry with the other cast members is amazing, and the movie is a testament to her ability to bring a character to life.

The movie is a critical hit, and Weaver's performance is widely praised. It is a reminder of her incredible talent and the impact she has had on the film industry. "Alien" is a must-see for anyone who appreciates a well-crafted and intense science fiction movie. Weaver's performance is a shining example of why she is considered one of the greatest actresses of all time.
Marist takes the superhighway on-ramp

By ROBERT R. TARGOS Staff Writer

Marist College plans to add a four-lane freeway and a new student center in a major expansion of campus that will cost the college $50 million.

The project, which is expected to begin next year, will include the construction of a new four-lane freeway on the east side of the campus. The freeway will run parallel to the existing two-lane road, providing a much-needed alternative to the congested traffic on campus.

The new student center will be a multi-purpose facility that will house a variety of student services, including the registrar's office, the career center, and the counseling center. The center will also feature a large lecture hall, a library, and a café.

The college has already begun work on the project, and is expected to complete it by 2022. Marist President Dan Siedman said the college is excited about the new facilities, which will provide a significant boost to the student experience.

"We are thrilled to be expanding our campus in such a significant way," Siedman said. "This new student center and freeway will be a major asset to our students, and we are excited to see the positive impact it will have on our community."

Warm winter - blessing or burden for some

Despite the absence of snow this season, the season's forecast seems to be a bountiful one for many, according to the Western Weather Association. An early spring has led to a bountiful harvest for many farmers, while others are experiencing a warmer-than-normal winter.

Some have welcomed the warmth, noting that it has allowed them to enjoy outdoor activities like skiing and hiking. Others have found the weather to be a bit too much for their liking, as it has led to an increase in asthma and allergy cases. Some have also found the warmer temperatures to be a burden, as they have led to increased energy costs and longer heating seasons.

Despite the challenges, many are finding ways to make the most of the warm winter weather. Some have taken advantage of the mild temperatures to spend more time outdoors, while others have found creative ways to cool off and enjoy the warmth.

The key, it seems, is finding the balance between the benefits and challenges of the warm winter weather. For some, it may be necessary to adapt to the changes and make adjustments to their routines, while others may find ways to embrace the warmth and make the most of the season.

Regardless of how one feels about the warm winter weather, it's clear that it has had an impact on the lives of many. Whether blessing or burden, the winter season continues to shape and define our lives in unique and unexpected ways.
New Year’s Resolution

Ah, breathe in that fresh air. Nothing beats the aroma of a new year. New exams, because we’re only a month into 1995, and it’s not shaping up to be any different than the last year, even if we’ve halved through the decade, five years from the last millenium. Each new year brings with it a great feeling of promise and change, restlessness and vows and handshakes and hugs. But most of this is swept aside when people return to reality. Why? I’m still not sure.

You can add this to the long list of tragedies piling up in the 1994–95 academic year. Yes, on to less significant concerns, many our caroling students in the north and of campus write me with their hearts and find that Market Square had not forgotten their favorite disorders in the spirit of Christmas. Twenty-six, and counting. Welcome back indeed.

Meanwhile, students discovered that they no longer have a calendar of events due to Harriet’s quest for “a peaceful campus.”

While on the subject of which campus is no longer being environmentally conscious, it’s rather a lucky way to save money that makes finding out what’s happened rather easy.

But there are other pleasures ahead for students this semester. Anyone hoping to find easy-to-follow recipes will not find the cooking more pleasant, as the major networks televise the Food of 1992. Which will end the time of waiting for the four former Marxist students charged in the rape incident that occurred September 1995? Place your bets. Hey Seniors. Only 106 days until graduation. Life is tiring, and it’s time to face the inevitable. Start a resume now. What can that do? More, because you’ll be able to take it forward without paying those pricey student loans.

If you haven’t interest in your area of study, you are already way behind there.

No employer cares how good your grades were, or how many clubs you were in, but what kind of impression does your resume leave? But you could take the easy route, apply for grad school, procrastinate the real world and hang on for four or five years.

That is, if you’ve got the backs.

Hey, we still have the guarantee to look forward to. The caps, the gowns, the diplomas and of course, the highly-touted and respected speaking engagements. Uh, who is the speaker anyway? Would be nice for someone to wear a suit more than two weeks ahead of time.

Cagers down Wagner, 79-66; Hill posts career-high 23

By GREG BECK

There are many reasons why the monk's basketball team is in a good position to win the NEC title this year. One of these reasons is their ability to dominate on the interior. Junior center Dave Magnys said that he was happy with the amount of time he spent on the court. He noted that his team had been working hard in practice.

"This is the best team in the NEC," Magnys said. "We've been at the top of the NEC all year long. We've been working hard in practice."

Hill posted a career-high 23 points for the Red Roosters in their 79-66 victory over Wagner College. Hill's performance helped the Red Roosters to a 10-point lead at halftime. Magnys added 17 points, while Hill was 13 of 15 from the field. Hill was named the NEC Player of the Week for his performance.

"He's always been a great player," Magnys said. "He's been consistent all year."

The University women's swimming and diving team won its second consecutive league title on Saturday afternoon. The Red Roosters defeated Wagner 132-82 and Bryant 127-87 to clinch the NEC title. The Red Roosters are 17-2 overall and 8-0 in the NEC.

"It's a great feeling to win," coach said. "We've been working hard all season.

The Red Roosters fell to Rider College in three games. The Red Roosters were outplayed in the first game, but came back to win the second and third games.

"We played well in the second and third games," coach said. "We were able to get ahead and keep it up."

Men's swimming is the epitome of Martin sports.

I sit at my computer and ponder about the first official column. I've waited two and a half years for this opportunity, so there goes nothing. The men's swimming and diving team is 10-0 (after defeating Fordham 130-90 late Tuesday night) and on its way to a remarkable undefeated season.

The last dual meet was Tuesday, which was at least partially due to the head coach Larry VanWagner's fish. The men's swimming and diving team was victorious at the Metropolitain Conference Meet. The Red Foxes remain in the lead for the conference meet.

The men's swimming and diving team are quietly in the midst of a 10-0 perfect season, after defeating Fordham University 130-90 late Tuesday Night.

This past week, the Red Foxes hosted the All-Stars on their schedule - St. John's University and Colgate University.

The Red Foxes hosted Colgate on Sunday and quickly made water for the Red Riders, pulling off a 135-101 victory.

The Red Foxes captured the win with scoring first and second-place finishes in the early events.

Senior Angel Tomas was a 2 minute .78 second in the 200-yard butterfly and a 22.70 in the 50 freestyle to top the field in both races.

Freshman Stephen Uchman finished in second behind Tomas with a time of 23.08.

Uchman posted another second-place finish in the 100 freestyle, behind junior Kyle O'Neil. According to head coach VanWagner, the 50 freestyle was the turning point in the meet.

In closing action, freshman Chris Blackwell and sophomore Brenden Ledik set records to race since respectively, in the three-meter dive. Fordham's only win (1.25) was the Red Foxes botted St. John's to a 142-101 triumph over the Red Storm.

On paper, St. John's looked to be the stronger team, but that piece of paper would soon burn down in the McCone pool.

The Red Fox hockey club returned to action on Friday for the first time since Christmas.

The men have had a lackluster start due to injuries.

Drexel University (11-3-7) won 3-0 over the Binghamton University (9-10-7) at the Civic Arena. The Red Foxes will struggle to win against the Bucknell University (16-1-7).

The Red Foxes are back in action at 15-0-7 this season. They tell all of the good news.

They have had no opportunity. Even when they are winning away from home, they are still losing.

Our sport is the epitome of Martin sports.

The Red Foxes lost the game to SUNY Binghamton University's 130-90 in the Mid-Hudson Civic Center.

The women's basketball team continued having scoring woes on Monday in West Point, N.Y.

The Red Foxes (6-11; 3-6) in the Northeast Conference) faced the Army Lady Knights in a Mid-Hudson Valley showdown.

The winner of the game took home a trophy that was sponsored by Anacoa-Lacey Sports in Poughkeepsie.

The Lady Knights defeated the Red Foxes 76-64 and captured the trophy.

The Knights solidly winning 59-49 and the trophy for the second year in a row.

Head coach Ken Babish said both teams played strong defense and put pressure on each other.

The deadlock during the first half gave Army a slight lead at halftime, 37-27.

The Red Foxes tied the game with 13 seconds remaining in the game and stayed close all game and said his team is on the cusp of realizing their team potential.

"There will be no letdown," VanWagner said. "This program has a direction.

That direction leads to a Metropolitain Conference Championship.

With four weeks remaining in the season, VanWagner has begun to "taper" his program.

It is a regiment designed to lower the level of physical and mental training in order to allow the athletes to rest.

Preparing for the championships may not be easy for the inexperienced freshmen.

With a rather large and impressive freshmen class that both bolsters and complements the upperclassmen nicely, VanWagner said he is looking forward to watching youngsters grow.

"They (freshmen) have never been in a college championship before," VanWagner said. "It is a different level to have to deal with. They have been in the stories in regards to the team's success.

Regardless, VanWagner said his team is prime for the finals.

He said his seniors cannot wait to play. "It will be their last chance for a title."

"We (both upperclassmen and freshmen) are motivated for the championship meet," VanWagner. "We are going to do it this year."

The Red Foxes next meet in the Metropolitain Conference Championships on Feb. 16, to Feb. 18.

The Stew's View

Babish claims. This may very well be true. Unless the Red Foxes can produce and put together a better showing on the court.

The World's Most Famous Arena

The men's basketball team travels to the Hudson River on Saturday to face Fairfield University in the annual Madison Square Garden face-off.

Yes, the world's most famous arena (the only thing wrong with the place is that it is home to the New York Rangers).
