Students enraged over financial aid foul-up

by MEREDITH KENNEDY
Managing Editor

Approximately 200 returning Marist students were wrongly informed that their merit scholarships were not being renewed during the summer vacation. The students were each sent a certified letter, postmarked July 25, that stated their financial aid had been revoked.

Brokaw given the Lowell Thomas award
by STEPHANIE SALVATI

NBC News anchor Tom Brokaw received the eleventh annual Lowell Thomas Award this summer.

On June 7, Marist College presented the award to Brokaw at the Explorers Club in New York City.

Marist President Dennis J. Murray spoke at the award luncheon, comparing the journalistic qualities of Brokaw and Thomas.

"Like Lowell Thomas, Tom Brokaw's 'voice for news' and skills as an interviewer have brought the major events in recent world history directly into the homes of millions of Americans each night," Murray said.

The Lowell Thomas award, established by Marist in 1983, recognizes talented individuals in the communications field. To be eligible for the award, the individual must exemplify the ambition, imagination, courage and humanity of legendary broadcaster Lowell Thomas.

Tom Brokaw is best known as the sole anchor and managing editor of "NBC News with Tom Brokaw." He will mark his 30th year with NBC News in 1996. Brokaw began his career at KMOV in Omaha, Neb., in 1962.

He conducted the first exclusive one-on-one interview with Mikhail Gorbachev. Brokaw also reported numerous times from both dangerous and timely locations, such as the White House lawn, rooftops in Beirut and inside Kuwait during Operation Desert Storm.

Brokaw was the only reporter at the scene who witnessed the falling of the Berlin Wall. Brokaw is also a long-time political reporter. Since 1988, he covered every American presidential election. He anchored all of the NBC News coverage, including primaries, national conventions, and election nights in 1984, 1988, and 1992.

Students report maintenance problems with their housing: holes in walls & faulty wiring

by ELIZABETH BROPHY
Staff Writer

While many Marist students and faculty took their summer break, workers for the Division of Physical Grounds were breaking a sweat as they rushed to restore the conditions of the buildings on campus.

Angry students are still wondering if anything had been done.

Students from various residence halls, especially the Garltown Commons Garden Apartments, have been complaining about the maintenance problems they faced when they moved back to campus.

Joshua Kueger, a junior living in the Garltown Commons, said he was surprised when he saw his apartment.

"All the air conditioners were broken, light bulbs were missing and there was plaster in the sink," Kueger said.

Timothy O'Brien, supervisor of mechanical services at Marist, said all the rooms in every residence hall on campus had been visited and restored by the Division of Physical Grounds.

"Over the summer, all the damage done during the school year was fixed," he said. "This is the first year that all the rooms have been painted, and the bathrooms in all the smoke alarms have been changed. Any other maintenance of smoke detectors is handled by an outside, certified contractor. "

However, O'Brien said that pre-season camps, which stay on campus over the summer, enter rooms that have already been checked by maintenance and contribute to some of the damages that exist in the residence halls when the academic semester begins.

"In addition, there are certain conditions that make restoration of the rooms more difficult," O'Brien said. "Phosphorescence from laundry detergent left on the walls can delay the re-painting of rooms."

Timothy Daly, director of physical plant, said Marist spent over $60,000 redoing the housing problems this year, like this bathroom in Garltown Commons.

Tasso found not guilty in 1993 rape of student

by DARYL RICHARD
Editor-in-Chief

A Dutchess County jury found former Marist student John Tasso not guilty on all three charges of first-degree rape of a woman attacked near the Lowell Thomas Communications Center in September 1993.

The verdict was handed down on June 19, after eight hours of deliberation by a jury of seven men and five women.

Senior District Attorney Mayrene Smith said it is difficult to convict most sex crimes.

"The law is set up for the defense, not the victims," Smith said.

Smith said she would not comment on why she thought the jury delivered the not guilty verdict.

The trial concluded almost two years after the incident was initially reported.

According to a testimony that Tasso gave to Town of Poughkeepsie detectives before the trial, he and two other students held the woman down on the ground outside the Lowell Thomas building while a fourth suspect allegedly raped her.

The three other defendants - Shane Coory, Kristiause and Craig Morcom - have pleaded their innocence since first speaking to police after the Sept. 11, episode.

However, according to the reports in the Poughkeepsie Journal, when Tasso took the witness stand during the trial he said his confession was forced by investigators.

"I was scared," Tasso reported in the Journal as telling the jury. "I was terrified of being arrested. I was willing to do anything just not to be arrested."

Since Tasso's acquittal, there has been a diverse reaction from the Marist community.

Director of Safety and Security, Joe Lear, said students have confronted him with feelings of both agreement to great disappointment with the verdict.

New York and Washington Post publish Unabomber's manifesto

New York (AP) - An applauding New York City audience heard Unabomber Ted Kaczynski read from his manifesto in a rare public appearance.

The Unabomber, wearing a green prison jumpsuit, sat in a booth on the stage at the 92nd Street Y, a Manhattan cultural center, reading from a mimeographed copy of his 3,312-word statement that he called "a series of attacks on the present technoculture." The audience was silent except for the clapping of a few who shouted "bravo!" and "how true!"

Kaczynski, now 49, has been convicted of sending a series of pipe bombs that killed three people and injured 238. He shot at and wounded FBI agents in 1995 as they followed him in a car.

Kaczynski, who is serving a life sentence at Supermax in Florence, Colorado, has written several letters and a book, "Untold Stories," but his manifesto is the first time he has spoken publicly to a large audience.

Kaczynski, a former MIT professor who became a recluse, began treasure-hunting for metals, bones and other artifacts when he was a child.

He is known for his deep hatred of technology and science, and for his belief that the United States is an "evil country." He has written that he wants to "kill one person for every year of life," and that he will continue to use his skills to "commit the most heinous crimes possible until I am stopped by my own death or by my capture and execution."
New York and Washington Post publish Unabomber's manifesto

New York (AP) - The government has just released the 70-page Unabomber manifesto that was published anonymously in a series of newspapers across the country.

The Unabomber, whose identity remains unknown, has never been caught, but the government believes he is the person who has committed a series of mail bombings throughout the country.

The manifesto was written in response to a series of mail bombings that occurred in the 1980s and 1990s.

The Unabomber has been identified as Ted Kaczynski, a mathematics professor at the University of California, Berkeley.

The manifesto calls for a return to a simpler lifestyle and an end to the modern world.

The Unabomber's manifesto has been widely debated and has become a symbol of anti-government sentiment.

WMCR gets new place to call home

by Debra Kolloff

Staff Writer

Metcalf College Radio found a new home. WMCR, originally located on the Chapman Boulevard campus, was moved to its new location, The Circle, earlier this month. The relocated station has received a warm welcome from its listeners.

In an interview with the Cambria Times, station manager Peter Deibert said he is pleased with the move. "We are excited about the new location, WMCR has received a lot of positive feedback from listeners," he said.

The broadcast antenna on top of Chapman Hall was adjusted by a professional sound engineer, thus allowing WMCR to broadcast across the entire campus, rather than being confined to a small area.

Dear Undergraduates,

I'm writing to encourage all of you to check out the new location for WMCR. The station has moved to The Circle, and I believe that this is a great opportunity for all of us to get involved in the college community.

The new location provides us with more space and facilities to improve our programming. We will be able to offer more live music shows and interviews, and we will also have the ability to broadcast live from different locations on campus.

I encourage you to tune in and check out the new station. You can also visit our website at www.wmcr.com to see our schedule and listen to our shows.

Thank you for your support, and I look forward to hearing your feedback on the new location.

SNEA NEWS

Dear Undergraduates,

I hope that everyone is enjoying the summer months. With classes now back in full swing, I hope that you have all recovered from the intense final exams of summer break.

I would like to go into detail about what we have done in your absence. I will save that for another day. However, I want to announce a new measure that has been put into place. The SNEA has decided to implement a new policy that will require all students to wear a badge upon entering the college campus.

This decision was made based on the need to ensure the safety and security of all students. The badge will contain a photo and a unique identification number for each student.

I encourage all of you to make sure that you have your badge and that you wear it at all times. This is an important measure, and it is the responsibility of all students to ensure that it is followed.

Thank you for your cooperation, and I look forward to seeing you all on campus.

Sincerely,

Students debate pros and cons of living off campus

by BLETHA MAULICK

Students who have been living off campus have been divided on whether to move off campus or stay on campus. But for the most part, students who have moved off campus feel they have benefited. For those who have stayed on campus, however, it's a different story.

"Living off campus is just so much better," said Kari, who has been living off campus since the start of the fall semester. "You have more freedom, more privacy, and more independence. Plus, you can make your own rules and have your own space."

"I really enjoy living on campus," said Sarah, who has been living on campus since the start of the fall semester. "I like the convenience of having everything right here and being able to get to class easily. Plus, I love being able to socialize with my classmates and meet new people."

The debate on living off campus has been going on for years, and it seems like there are more pros than cons. Ultimately, it comes down to personal preference. Some students enjoy the freedom and independence of living off campus, while others prefer the convenience and social aspect of living on campus.

The situation is complicated by the fact that housing costs are rising, making it more difficult for students to afford off-campus living. However, many students are still choosing to live off campus because of the benefits it offers.

"I think living off campus is the best option for me," said Jack, who has been living off campus since the start of the fall semester. "I can afford it, and I enjoy living on my own."

"I don't think I could afford living off campus," said Emily, who has been living on campus since the start of the fall semester. "I don't think it's worth it."

Ultimately, the decision to live off campus or stay on campus is up to the individual student. It depends on their personal preferences, financial situation, and other factors.

Gate House and St. Peter's: preserving the Marist tradition

The Gate House and St. Peter's, two of the oldest buildings on campus, have a rich history and are considered important architectural landmarks. The Gate House, built in 1856, was originally a gatehouse for a carriage and carriage house, and it was later converted into a residence for the Gatekeeper. The Gatekeeper was responsible for the security of the campus and the residence of the President.

St. Peter's, on the other hand, was built in 1857 as a residence for the President. It was later converted into a residence for the President's family and was used as such until the 1930s, when it was donated to the college.

Both buildings are considered important historical landmarks and are protected by the National Register of Historic Places. The Gate House and St. Peter's are both considered to be among the most historic buildings on campus, and they are an important part of the Marist tradition.

Internships give seniors peek into career field
Students are placed anywhere from psych ward to the Waco hearing in Congress by KENNETH RICHARD

The program provides opportunities for students to gain experience in the real world of work. Students are placed in a variety of positions, including research assistants, policy analysts, and congressional staff. The program has been successful in helping students develop valuable skills that are essential for career success.

"I really enjoyed my internship," said John, a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. "It was a great opportunity to learn about the political process and to develop the skills that are necessary for a successful career."

Three heroes now own three restaurants.

The Vankostons' Kris, Peter, and Dini, have opened and operated the Daily Planet since 1981. In 1990, the Brass Anchor became the family's second establishment in the Miller Valley. Three years ago, they added The Daily Planet on Route 35 in Greendrops.

"The Daily Planet is billed as 'an American diner.' It's a scription on a wall tells people to come on in, watch the news, listen to music, and relax with their friends," says Kris, "This is a huge restaurant and we're open every day of the week. The food is fresh and we're open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m."

The Daily Planet offers a variety of dishes, including soups, salads, and sandwiches. The menu changes daily, and the restaurant is known for its friendly atmosphere and knowledgeable staff.

Pataki reinstates the death penalty

New York has a new governor: George Pataki. New York Governor Mario Cuomo is out, and New York Governor George Pataki is in. Pataki promised to reinstate the death penalty in New York in his campaign against former Gov. Mario Cuomo. He was successful.

He won the election, he passed the law repealing capital punishment, and he made New York's 38-year-old death penalty law come to life. This commercial decision brought something new to the New York scene.

Pataki reinstated the death penalty because it is in the best interest of the state. He wants to make New York a safer place to live and work. This decision is not just about politics, but about making New York stronger.

The decision to reinstate the death penalty is a difficult one. It is not an easy decision, but it is the right one. Pataki has made a strong argument for why the death penalty is necessary.

The death penalty is a deterrent to crime. It is a way to make sure that those who commit the most heinous crimes are punished. It is a way to make sure that justice is served.

The death penalty is not perfect. It is not a perfect system, but it is the best system we have. It is a system that can be improved, but it is not a system that should be thrown out.

Pataki's decision is a wise one. He has made a strong argument for why the death penalty is necessary. He has made a strong argument for why New York needs the death penalty.

New York's history is filled with crimes that have shocked the nation. From the Jonestown massacre to the World Trade Center attack, New York has been forced to deal with the worst crimesimaginable.

Pataki's decision is a strong one. He has made a strong argument for why the death penalty is necessary. He has made a strong argument for why New York needs the death penalty.

Deadpool is a superhero origin story that is a fun and entertaining rollercoaster ride. Alien: Covenant is a thrilling and atmospheric science fiction horror. Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2 is a sequel that is just as good as the first one, with a lot of humor and heart. The Shape of Water is a beautiful and surreal romance with a message of love and acceptance. The Disaster Artist is a biographical drama about the making of The Room, with a great performance by James Franco. Downsizing is a sci-fi comedy about a man who shrinks to save the planet, with a lot of heart and humor. 1,000 Words is a drama about a man who writes a book in 1,000 words, with a great performance by Kevin James. The Bye Bye Man is a horror film about a creature that kills people if they write down the name of the creature. The Shape of Water is a beautiful and surreal romance with a message of love and acceptance.
'Suspects'

when things go sour. Verbal plays the role of the obsessed — because he is crippled, he is usually overwhelmed or humiliated by the others.

However, he shouldn't be dis- missed as a minor character; rather, Verbal is the heart of the story. The whole film is told by Verbal, from his perspective, the way he sees things is the story. His performance here will stick and haunt you.

Director Bryan Singer has a tendency to interweave his characters in a manner that is both clever and subtly charming. In this film, he plays off one another with brilliance, all the while tugging the screw, winding the plot, as well as your nerves, toward its explosive ending. The final scene delivers an unevadeable "ouch you in your butt" moment that will take your breath away.

Unfortunately, this film won't get as much attention as 'Pulp Fiction', but it's just as good. 'The Usual Suspects' will linger in your mind long after it's over. My only advice is to bring a jacket when you go to the theatre, because when this movie ends, whether there's an announcement or not, you will have the chills. - Christy AY

...when things go wrong. Verbal plays the role of the observer — because he is crippled, he is usually overlooked or handled by the others.

However, he should not be dismissed as a minor character; rather, Verbal is the eye of the storm. The whole film is told by Verbal, from his perspective, the way he sees things. His insights will shock and haunt you.

Director Bryan Singer has a great eye for the visual and has captured the intensity of the situation and the atmosphere of the film. His performance here is compelling and memorable.

Spikers go for a full five sets but fall to Knights in end

Sometimes a team can learn a lot from losing a tight five-set match. For the Marist women’s volleyball team, which had lost nine straight matches and had been outscored, 29-16, in its last three games, the loss was a much-needed wake-up call.

The women’s volleyball team, which is coming off a 1-1 finish in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, returned home from New York City on a down note after a four-set loss to Quinnipiac University in the first game of the week. The second game of the week was a home loss to Siena College, which led to the loss to Quinnipiac.

The women’s volleyball team has been struggling for most of the season, and the loss to Quinnipiac was a setback for a team that was hoping to turn things around.

Aber after three years, Howard University Tanzania has won its share of winning in the championship-bound men’s tennis team.

The team, which had been considered a Cinderella story throughout the season, was able to pull off a couple of upsets and make it to the championship.

The team’s success is the result of hard work and dedicated coaching by veteran coach David Peck, who has led the team to a 14-2 record.

Marist redeems themselves; beat St. Francis 20-17

by MARTY SINACOLA
Staff Writer

Many great coaches have said that success in offense is created by a good defense.

The defending Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference champions have been finding it difficult early on to get their offense in gear despite an impressive 2-1 start.

The Marist baseball team came last Saturday when the team traveled to Loretto to take on St. Francis College. The special teams kicked things off early, waiting no time getting Marist on track for a score. Sophomore Mario Wilson recovered a St. Francis fumble on the opening kickoff on the St. Francis fifteen-yard line. That early miscue led to Marist's first touchdown of the game, a two-yard option around the right side by senior quarterback Pete Fox. St. Francis would then take advantage of a Marist turnover, eventually kicking a field goal. The Red Foxes quickly responded with a one-yard touchdown run by junior fullback Lavin Cook. But ultimately, the story of the game was the play of the defense.

According to head coach Jim Parady, the defense came up big when the team needed them most.

"We didn't totally shut them down," Parady said. "But our red zone defense came up with the big play when we needed them to.

There were three times in the first half that St. Francis threatened, having the ball inside the Marist thirty-yard line. And each time, St. Francis came out empty handed.

St. Francis would eventually break the Red Fox defense before the half and cut the lead to 14-10.

The Marist defense turned it up again in the second with another defensive game.

Senior Paul Dockaj took an interception 64 yards for what would turn out to be the game winning score.

Up 20-17 late in the game, the Marist defense once again held its ground, twice defusing St. Francis to establish any type of offensive momentum.

Even though Marist walked away with a 20-17 win, Parady said his team is still not at the level once was has work to do.

"There is definitely room for improvement, but I am pleased to be 2-1," Parady said. "When you win the close games like this, it puts you in a position to have a good season."

Having the non-conference part of their scheduling out of the way, the team can now concentrate on its conference for the rest of the season.

The Red Foxes would like to get revenge on St. John's, but Parady said it is too early to treat it like just another game.

"We are just going to treat it as another football game, because we do have six more after it," Parady said. "But there is a little added incentive to beat them."

With the defense shouldering most of the burden thus far, the offense needs to find more consistency, most notably in the passing game.

The team has used four quarterbacks in three games, including starter Ford missing the second game against Fordham due to injury.

The result has been the passing game coming around slowly. It has only had a 60% completion rate and has only got 77 yards on five of five at 21 completions.

Sullivan resigns as sports information director

by MIKE AGENTLLE, JR.
Staff Writer

Whoever said timing is everything, never knew what he or she meant. On Sept. 13, in a Marist Athletic press release, Dan Sullivan, director of sports media relations and promotions, announced that he is resigning his position as of Oct. 1, 1995. Sullivan, who has accepted the position of assistant athletic director for marketing and promotions at Monmouth University, said this was a very hard decision to make.

"However this gives me the opportunity to achieve the goals I have set for myself," Sullivan said.

According to Athletic Director Tim Murray, now that the 1995-96 school year has begun, the possibility of finding a replacement for the position is going to be a lot harder.

Murray, who has known Sullivan since his time as the part-time assistant basketball coach for Marist in 1987, said he is happy for him.

He knows of Sullivan's goal to be an athletic director sometime in the future and this may be the right step.

However, the search is under way to fill the void.

According to Murray, there is currently no possible replacement for the position.

"We are looking for someone with experience, especially in the Division I athletic program," Murray said. "(We need someone) who understands the local and regional New York based Marist fans.

A 1987 Marist graduate, Sullivan spent the second season as the sports information director in the Sports Information Office.

It was here that he grew to love his job.

Reflecting on the past and learning how to improve for the future

My, what have we missed during the summer.

The ushering in of the new academic year saw an influx of new faces that will not only be patrolling the sidelines of their respective sports but upstart in administration as well.

For starters, programs such as baseball and women's volleyball, sports that have had narrowed pasts, will look to reverse their fortunes under new coaches.

Then there is the departure of Howard Goldman, a fixture who had patrolled the Leonidoff sidelines for 32 years. "Doe" became synonymous with a Marist soccer at the college and will be missed.

As for the administration, the hierarchy that runs the show behind the scenes, took on a new role. Dan Sullivan, the sports information director, sprang one on the Marist community when he announced his resignation from his position effective Oct. 1.

He plans to move on to Monmouth University to pursue his dream of becoming an athletic director. All the luck to him as Marist must fill the position.

And Mike Malet cannot be forgotten. After 25 years, Malet wants to pursue his doctorate. He may need all the luck he can get.

Aside from that, it is business as usual for the usual fall sports. One team in particular has some pretty tough demands in front of it.

Football has to embark on its mission to defend the Metro Atlantic Athletic crown. A feat which sounds easier than it really is.

Gone from last year's squad are defensive stalwarts Bruce Harris and Joe McGunn. And the offense is going to have to work their way out from there.

Quarterback Pete Ford, who is already slowed due to previous injuries, will be protected by a line that is slowed by injuries and has lost notable contributors.

Jovan Rose can regain the form that made him a 1,000 yard rusher the year before.

The bottom line, though, is everybody will be shooting for the Red Foxes. It will make an undefeated team's season worthwhile if it could steal a win from the defending champs.

There was another loss over the summer, but the team didn't happen. At Marist. Rather, it affected a nation coast to coast. The loss of Mickey Charles Mantle will never be forgotten.

He was a man who symbolized an era, when America was at its purest and peaceful. He stood for something that is now gone and for those of whom grew up with him, and learned to switch hits because of him, he was the final link to a time in which things were right in this country and baseball was America's game.

When he died, a part of children's childhood along with America's died with him.

And even in death, he was graceful. He knew his time was near and realized the error of his ways. He possessed the courage of his convictions and admitted he had a dire problem. saw what he had done to his family and impoverished the youth of today not to look upon him as a role model and not to follow his ways.

The magnificent Yankee is going to be missed. There are no more that will ever match the game the way he did. And there will be few such as he.

The Mick will live in infamy, truly a legend of the game and this time. This legend will never die, living in the hearts and minds of people every-where.
