WMCR forced to change radio band

by TOM SCHWARZ
Staff Writer

When Charlie Melichar, president of Marist College Radio, returned to Marist earlier this month, he was shocked at what he heard playing on 90.1.

"The first thing I heard was a song about some guy's muse, and I almost had a heart attack," said Melichar. WMCR had been replaced directly by WFMU, located in East Orange, NJ. WFMU originally was a student-run, non-commercial radio station at Upsala College in New Jersey. However, when the college went bankrupt in May of 1995, the station was taken over by members of the community.

WXXD in Port Jervis, NY, applied and received an FCC license to broadcast on 90.1 in 1986. When WXXD searched through the FCC available station list for the Hudson valley, they found that 90.1 was free because WMCR was never licensed by the FCC. Yes, since WXXD was poorly funded, a company named Shawangak stepped in and teamed them up with WXXD. Finally, during the Summer and 10 years later, WFMU transmitted its signal via satellite to its new simulcasting station, WXXD. "We weren't on the air, so they didn't think we existed," said Melichar. "No one up here was paying attention, and now they have it." Keen Freidman, station manager for WFMU, said no one would have heard the signal since it only broadcasts one tenth of a watt. He said he extended his apologies to WMCR.

"I feel very bad if we disrupted the station," said Friedman. "I hope that you can find a new frequency to broadcast on." Melichar said he expects the station to be back and running by the end of this week with help from Dave Groth, an engineer at WPDR and WERCA.

Earlier this week, Groth helped Melichar change the frequency of the transmitter located on the roof of Chupp's. "He's helped us out before," said Melichar. "He looked around the band for a new station, and the only clear station he could find was 88.1." Melichar said he thinks the temporary loss of the station helped more than it hurt.

"We were at a stage where we were pushing for people to be aware of the station," said Melichar. "Once this happened, people all over campus were fighting against the problem."

"First, we need to get the local band station that covers the college up and running, but we also applied for an FCC license to get their frequency back," said Keen Freidman. "This process is pending, and we'll see what happens."

Students petition parking problems

by MICHAEL GOOT
Managing Editor

The issue of parking on campus has come up yet again at Marist.

A petition to protest the parking regulations on campus has been circulating. Sophomore Helen McEvoy, who started the petition, said she was concerned about the safety of students who walk back from their cars late at night, especially female students.

"Basically, we want to change it so that everyone would be able to park in a spot closer to their dorms," she said.

McEvoy said if anything happens to her, she would blame the college because of the parking system.

"If I make a long walk and something happens to me walking back at night, I'm going to hold the college liable for that, because they're forcing me to make that walk," she said.

McEvoy's proposal is to change the permit system. There would be two types of parking permits—one for residents and one for commuters. One lot of campus would be designated solely for commuters. Resident students would be able to park in any lot near their residence. If commuters could not find a space in their lot, they would be allowed to park in any of the lots for residents.

McEvoy said she realized that the commuters need to be guaranteed parking. If they couldn't find a space, they would have to spot a lot Guarantees them, she said. Jim Raimo, director of housing and residential life, said he does not see any big problems with the current policy.

"I don't think it's unrealistic for students to walk a short distance to their car," he said. "Most students live within reasonable walking distances."

Raimo said students should try to take steps so they don't have to do things like shopping late at night, but rather during the day, when they have a free morning.

Raimo said the commuters need to have easy access to their cars, because they need to get things like their books and their library books.

"Many times, a commuter has to kind of live out of their car," he said.

British police seize explosives linked to IRA plot

by Six Laniacs
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - Police seized building materials in London and southern England Monday, arresting six men they said were planning a major IRA attack.

The operation resulted in the arrest of a 26-year-old man and the seizure of large amounts of explosives and equipment. Police have not yet said what the materials were for.

One suspect was wounded in a dawn raid in the town of Hounslow, near London, and died of his injuries. The other was arrested in a separate raid in southern England.

The police said they were seeking a fourth man believed to be involved in the plot. They said the suspects were part of a larger group of IRA members planning attacks in the United Kingdom.

Justice Department: New IRA cell headed by ex-IRA man

NEW YORK (AP) - The Justice Department said Monday it had arrested a man who was suspected of being a member of the new IRA.

The man, identified as a former member of the IRA and a major figure in the group, was arrested in New York on charges of plotting to bomb a U.S. military facility.

The arrest was part of a coordinated effort by the Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies to disrupt the activities of the new IRA.

The new IRA is a breakaway group from the Provisional IRA, which has been active in Northern Ireland for decades.

Revolution in Pougkeepsie

Marist web improvements will provide students with time-saving services

By Peter Leonard
Sag River

The Marist College Academic Computing Center recently installed a network of workstations in the library and in the academic and administrative centers. The improvements help the students and faculty. According to Sister Margaret Dunn, academic librarian, students can borrow workstations to have the equipment they need for research. They can access more than 3,000 database features and search for up to 400,000 words of text in a minute. The network is also accessible via the Internet and more than 300 databases, which can be used by students and faculty. The workstations are located in the academic and administrative centers of the college. They can be used by students and faculty to access the Internet and search for information. Marist web improvements will provide students with time-saving services

By Patrick Lamason

The Marist College Academic Computing Department finished working last week on a new server that will help students and faculty. According to the college's director of computer services, Marist College has had problems with server performance in the past few years. The new server will be backed up with dual tape drives.

"The new server will be much faster," said Patrick Lamason, director of computer services. "This will allow students to access information more quickly."

"We are also the first in the country to have this type of system," Lamason said. "This will allow us to access data more quickly and more efficiently." The new server will be used to store student data, including grades, transcripts, and other academic information.

The spirit of the Marist Brothers stays alive with Bro. Ambrose

by Michael R. Gregory

Brother Ambrose, a member of the Marist Brothers, has been an active member of the college community for many years. He has been a strong advocate for the college's mission to provide a Jesuit education to all students, regardless of their socioeconomic backgrounds.

As Marist celebrates its 50th anniversary, the spirit of the Marist Brothers continues to live on at Marist College. The Marist Brothers are a religious order of the Society of Jesus, founded in 1817 by Saint Jean Baptiste deMariste.

Brother Ambrose has been a member of the Marist Brothers since 1953. He has served in many positions at Marist College, including as a school chaplain and as a swimming coach.

Brother Ambrose is known for his dedication to helping students. He has worked with many different groups, including students from low-income families.

"Brother Ambrose is a wonderful person," said one of his students. "He always has time for his students and he is always willing to help them."

"Brother Ambrose is a true Jesuit," said another student. "He always lives his life according to the Jesuit values."

... why he had just taken a brother for two months, which had been a difficult and suffering a terrible illness. Brother Ambrose had visited the hospital before he died and took care of him. "I am here at the hospital where it is peaceful and quiet," he said.

One night on his last night in the hospital, Brother Ambrose visited his sister who was a nurse. "I told her that I was going to go to another school," he said.

The bishop then took him to a hospital to a poor section of town where the children had to walk long distances to the hospital instead of using paper bags. "We thought this was a good idea," he said.

He found that the hospital staff was working very hard. "I think you're doing a great job," he said.

About two months ago, he visited a sick student in a hospital. "I went to see him and he was very happy," he said.

The last time he visited the hospital, Brother Ambrose was made a monk for life.

Woman's Worth: Beijing and Beyond

Marist College, along with the Eleanor Roosevelt Center at Val-Kill and the Roosevelt Library, would like to invite all to an educational conference entitled, Woman's Worth: Beijing and Beyond.

The conference will take place in the Nelly Goletti Theater in the Student Center on Saturday, September 28, beginning at 12:30 p.m. and concluding at 5:30 p.m.

The conference will include a discussion by local women who attended the Beijing Conference, as well as a national telecast including presentations by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, and Secretary of Health and Human Resources Donna Shalala.

The conference promises to discuss the links between global issues found at the Beijing Conference, and the local situation and challenges in Dutchess County. This is an excellent opportunity for the Marist community to become educated about the needs and issues in the larger community.

All are encouraged to attend this educational event.

Perot files suit against commission that excludes him from debates

By Tim Rux

Winston-Salem Journal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ross Perot filed a federal lawsuit Monday against two presidential candidates who didn't make the first round of debates.

He argued that locking him out "will not only undermine the democratic process, but it will also have a significant negative effect on our system of checks and balances."

Perot's attorney said the lawsuit included in the debates, Republican George W. Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton.

"If the responsible authorities and our system of democracy are going to allow the voters to make an informed choice," he added, "it is time for the courts to step in and ensure that the system works for everyone, not just the established candidates."

The lawsuit also asks for a preliminary injunction to prevent the commission from barring Perot from the second debate.

The commission has scheduled a series of debates for the general election. Perot has said he will not participate in the debates unless he is included.

STEAKHOUSE OFFERS A TASTE OF THE OUTDOORS
by Dolores Bade

As I was typing my critique of Bugabo Creek, located on Route 9 near the South Hills Mall, I am slicing down on my television's last night. Bugabo Creek is a fun steak house originated from the Canadian Rockies and, boy, can you still feel the heat of the day. The space looks like a replica of a mountain cabin, and the atmosphere and challenge of the Bugabo Creek are not to be missed! The best part of the decor is the large number of country animal signs with witty sayings. I was so impressed with the place. And the food is worth the trip. Bugabo Creek evolved to offer specialty and unique dishes that truly reflect the taste of the outdoors.

The wait staff was friendly and efficient. We ordered the "Provisions" menu, a S.C.C. steak and a selection of sides. The meat was cooked to perfection and the sides were simply amazing. We also tried the "Bugabo Creek" cheese and a selection of wines. The entire meal was a wonderful experience, and I would highly recommend Bugabo Creek to anyone looking for a unique and enjoyable dining experience.

Bugabo Creek: A Taste of the Outdoors

The wait staff and servers were very knowledgeable about the menu and were able to provide recommendations for our main course.

The atmosphere is relaxed and comfortable, with a cozy mountain cabin feel to it. The lighting is warm and inviting, and the decor is rustic yet modern.

The menu offers a variety of options, including steaks, seafood, burgers, and salads. We ordered the ribeye steak, which was cooked to perfection and served with a side of mashed potatoes and sautéed vegetables. The taste was absolutely delicious, and I would definitely recommend trying it.

Overall, our experience at Bugabo Creek was fantastic. The food was excellent, the service was friendly and efficient, and the atmosphere was inviting and comfortable. I would highly recommend this restaurant to anyone looking for a unique and enjoyable dining experience.
Clinton tries to find his way in Iraq

Saddam Hussein’s defenses are in shambles and the United States is planning a transition to a new Iraqi government. Clinton’s initial response to the question of how to handle Iraq has been met with criticism. The administration’s policy is to keep up pressure on Hussein, but there is little indication of a clear strategy beyond military action.

Making a Difference

Esther

Want to make a difference in someone’s life and enjoy every moment of what you’re doing? Consider a career in community service. Community Service is a club in which you’d be able to volunteer your time to help those in need.

I became involved with the program last fall and have continued up to the present. I now serve as the president of this club on the school board. These kids make me feel great. They completely lifted me up whenever I was down.

I’m still attending the club and help them with some of their needs. I’m still doing the same thing they’ve been doing for the last five years and nothing has changed.

I spent all of last year outside as a volunteer. I went to help out in the community service center last year.

My experiences at college seemed rare and exciting. My life had taken me on a journey that I had never imagined before. I had found new opportunities, met new people, and discovered something greater than myself.

I found my hair and proceeded to act calm. Truth be told, I was in love with the girl at the time. I had let myself be persuaded into the common practice of putting a few dollars in her hand. It was a gesture of affection, and I felt happy.

I’ve since found a more appropriate way to express my feelings. I’ve realized that the gestures of affection should be more meaningful and thoughtful. I’ve learned to express my love in a more personal and meaningful way. I’ve learned to appreciate the small gestures of affection and take them for granted.

The controversy over affirmative action

Affirmative action is a topic that has been much debated. It is considered to be an important part of social justice and equality. The controversy is based on the fear that affirmative action is unfair and discriminates against individuals.

Some people feel that it is a violation of individual rights and does not provide an opportunity for all individuals. Others feel that affirmative action is necessary to create a more diverse and inclusive society.

Iraq takes the back burner for now

The latest news from the White House is that Clinton has not yet ruled out the use of military force in Iraq if the United States and its allies have not been able to negotiate a peaceful solution. The White House officials have promised to continue discussions with the Iraqis, but they have also stated that they will not rule out the use of military force if necessary.

Clinton tries to find his way in Iraq

Saddam's defenses seem to attack United States war planes attempting to enforce the "No Fly Zone". In response to this, President Clinton威胁 to send 3,000 troops to Kuwait. Clinton said that the United States is not sending a contingency military force to Kuwait, but Defense Secretary William Perry has travelled to the Persian Gulf area with large military officials.

The latest word from the White House is that Clinton has not yet ruled out sending American forces to Kuwait. The White House has claimed that the decision has been ordered to discontinue US planes flying over the no-fly zone. However, sources are "worrying" by the White House officials.

Pentagon officials have also added the Clinton Administration's search for direction. There has been difficulty rallying the support of Congress and the American public on the Iraq War. US forces have been raiding oil wells in Kuwait. The White House has claimed that last week's bombing of Iraqi southern air defense unit was to prepare the United States for slashing the oil wells in a massive attack on Iraq.

A major standing for the Clinton Administration occurred when the White House decided that they could not afford to send American forces to Iraq. But, the White House has given a crucial warning to Iraq to stop their attack on Kuwait. The White House has threatened not to stop the Israeli attacks on Kuwait with a large military force to protect the oil fields.

Standing beside a working copier with money in my hand

My experiences at college seemed rare and exciting. My life had been more enjoyable before it. It was all fresh and new. Then, it all became routine, more of the same, nothing more. I had to have some variation to keep it interesting. I think that was the main difference between college and university. After my first day, I realized that I wasn't prepared for such a huge environment.

It was amazing how such a big institution could be so small. Everyone was very friendly and polite. There was the occasional glance from someone who didn't know me. But overall, it was a great place to be.

I fixed my hair and proceeded to sit in chair, only to notice that I was being watched. I quickly looked around and noticed that everyone was staring at me. I realized that I was in a huge chair. I quickly reached into my pocket and pulled out a piece of money.

The controversy over affirmative action

Affirmative action is a topic that has aroused much debate. It is defined as a plan that gives special preferential treatment to people on the basis of their race, gender, or national origin. The purpose is to make up for the opportunities that they did not receive due to discrimination.

Some people feel that it is a reverse discrimination, but affirmative action offers people an equal chance to better their lives. It is a policy that is only given to those who need it, not because of, simply because of affirmative action.

Others oppose the idea of affirmative action. Some people have been turned down because of affirmative action. Some people have been turned because of affirmative action. Some people have been turned down because of affirmative action. Some people have been turned because of affirmative action. Some people have been turned because of affirmative action.

Affirmative action helps those who need it, but it does not mean that everyone is entitled to it. It is important to balance the needs of all people.

Many of Jewel’s songs are related to the beauty and the life she leads.
Jewel’s music is meaningful, as if you are relating to her some-thing deep and personal.
Before I even knew who Keanu Reeves was, I had seen him in several movies. He is an actor who has been in many successful films, including ‘The Matrix’ and ‘The Usual Suspects.’

Jewel’s music is strong and powerful. All of Jewel’s music is crafted beautifully and gracefully, making her one of the most celebrated artists of our time.

NEW YORK (AP) — A series is under way.

The pilot episodes literally coming from the head of its creator, Don, are written, shot, and edited by the show’s super producer, Michael Turturro. The series is called “One from the Vault:” a name inspired by the film that made Scorsese famous, “Mean Streets.”

Scorsese’s new series is called “One from the Vault:” a name inspired by the film that made Scorsese famous, “Mean Streets.”

The show is set in the world of the mob, and it stars Turturro as Don, who is known as “The Professor” because he is a master of the mob’s ways. He is also the creator of the show, and he is a master of the craft of filmmaking.

In the pilot episodes, Don is shown to be a man of many talents, and he is able to use his skills to help him get what he wants. He is also shown to be a man of many secrets, and he is able to keep them hidden from those who do not know him well.

The series is set to premiere on September 26, 1996, and it is expected to be a hit. The pilot episode is titled “One from the Vault,” and it is set in the same world as the original film. The episode is directed by Scorsese, and it is written by Turturro.

Rock veterans band together

by Amanda Lins

Isn’t it Nashville...do you think?

No, I am not talking about those Lipton’s Imitation Tea commercials that benefit children in Africa. John Doe (Damo Detail) of Nashville’s Blackwater Road, Mike McGaugh and Matt Scroggs (Clare W’s Rose), both of whom had come together for a benefit concert, were looking for a drummer. Later on, Madonna’s Manager, Mark Pugh, called John and asked him to make a record. Although the group had yet to be created, but later changed the band name to Nashville Outlaws, the drummer didn’t allow the two to remember the young producer.

Their first album together was added and sold in June. The album is a mixture of different sounds and styles. Mike McGaugh, who had room for a couple of rockers on his soul

I can see the instruments for the guitar and the drums. The best of them is Mike McGaugh, who was a hard worker with the same dedication. The guitar is played by John Doe, and the drums are played by Matt Scroggs. Scroggs also adds vocals and the band is turned into a rockin’ monster.

The band’s current single, "I’m a Rocker," is being released soon.

to me, the sound of Nashville Outlaws is truly out of this world.

Sage has also been licensed a few of our new items. If you are not familiar with the video format, or the fact that you can expect to see Vito (Robert De Niro) in Mean Streets as the Cups. So in Mean Streets you will release Vito's Finish Line? The closer you listen later this fall.

Vito uses AMC technology to give you the sound of the Cups. The Cups will feature all the Scorsese classics from the Cups, including Mean Streets.

One other thing to note—the Cups will be available this fall. We are sure you'll love them! If you do not want to purchase 10,000 Cups if interested, you must let us know.

Vito is the latest software support. We are sure you will be impressed with it too.

Vito’s films are not just a mixture of American and British material, but also a unique blend of different styles. There is a little competition in all the films, but just as there is a place for all the competitors, there is a place for Vito. It is possible that you will see Vito’s films in the fall.

Mean Streets is in theaters in early November. It is not yet available, so you can’t find it.

Introspective Turturro immerses himself in his acting roles

by Michael Warren

Actor Vincent Turturro, who has been on the rise in Hollywood, is preparing for his biggest role yet. In the new film, "Dancing in the Rain," he will play a character who is a struggling actor in New York City.

Turturro, who has been a fixture on the New York theater scene for several years, has been building up to this role for some time. He has appeared in several Off-Broadway productions, and has been nominated for several awards for his work.

"Dancing in the Rain" is a two-person play that focuses on the life of a struggling actor in New York City. Turturro will play the lead role, and he is working with director Tim Robbins on the film.

"It's a challenging role," Turturro said. "But I've been preparing for it for a long time. I've been working with Tim Robbins on the script, and I think we have something special here."

Turturro's past performances have included a variety of roles, from a hard-boiled gangster in "The Godfather Part II" to a sensitive character in "Goodfellas." He has also starred in the hit TV series "Boardwalk Empire," and has been nominated for several awards for his work in that show.

"Dancing in the Rain" is set to open in theaters this fall, and Turturro is already generating buzz as a leading man. He is expected to deliver a powerful performance, and his fans are eagerly awaiting the release of the film.

"I think he's got a real shot at winning an award," said one fan. "He's really good, and he's got a lot of talent. I'm sure he'll do well in this one."

Turturro is no stranger to award-winning roles, having won several awards for his work in "Dancing in the Rain." He is now set to take on a new challenge in a role that is sure to test his acting skills.

Football team beats Iona Gaels 30-7; improve record to 1-1 in the MAAC

by CHRIS SMITH
Sports Editor

It was the defense’s fault. At least, that's the general con- tensus about the Marist victory over Iona.

The Red Foxes' defense dominated as they limited the Gaels to only three first downs and four total plays for less than 10 yards.

The Red Foxes defeated the Gaels by a score of 30-7 on Saturday at Leominster Field to improve their record to 1-1 in the MAAC.

Marist's defense led the way with a strong performance in the first half, holding the Gaels to just 57 yards of total offense. In the second half, the Red Foxes continued their dominance, allowing only 14 yards in the final two quarters.

Defensive back Paul DeJack returns a punt on Saturday in 30-7 win over Iona at Leominster field.

"We did a great job," said Marist head coach Kevin Doherty. "We had a great week of practice and it showed on the field today."}

The Red Foxes will look to continue their strong defensive play as they prepare to face the next opponent on their schedule.

Women's cross country ends up 12th in South Bend

by PHILIP WHITE
Staff Writer

A cold, wet, and rainy day didn't stop the Marist women's cross country team from performing well at the National Catholic Cross Country Championship.

The team finished 12th out of 16 teams, with a team score of 276 points. Individual runner Karen Morgan finished 47th with a time of 26:35.5 and earned All-MAC honors.

"I thought we would end up 16th," said head coach Kevin Doherty. "But I was happy with the way we ran today."}

The men's team also performed well, finishing 16th with a score of 360.

Volleyball loses five in a row

by THOMAS RYAN
Staff Writer

Despite the fact that the women's volleyball team lost all five of its games this past week, head coach Emily Auziet remains positive about her team's play.

"We competed very well with every team we played," said Auziet. "We played good ball and our team showed we could play with all of them."}

Marist's tough week began with a 2-1, 15-8, 8-15, 15-8, 15-11 loss to UMass on Saturday. The next day, the Red Foxes played three more times and lost four of them.

"We're disappointed with how we played because we know we could play much better than we did," said Auziet. "We need to regroup and come back strong for our next games."}

Men's cross country beats MAAC rivals at Notre Dame

by CHRISTOPHER O'DONNELL
Staff Writer

Instead of running on the east coast, the men's cross country team packed their bags for South Bend, Indiana to compete in The National Catholic Championships at Notre Dame.

The team came through in the nick of time, and gave Marist runners a much-needed boost in the MAAC.

"The big accomplishment made by the Red Foxes was beating both Notre Dame and Marist at the MAAC," said Melfi. "The team ran well and showed they have what it takes to win."}

Overall, the men's team finished 12th out of 26 Division I teams. The team will look to build on their success as they prepare for their next meet.

"We're excited about the future," said Melfi. "We have a great core of runners and we're looking forward to the next meet."
